KILLS ROSS AFTER KIDNAPING

MORE BUSINESS CHIEFS CALLED BY ROOSEVELT

Anxiety Grows Over His Trade Policies.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—With private enterprise reeling and the stock market sagging under his latest threats of new repressive measures, President Roosevelt prepared today for two more conferences this week with industrial tycoons on what is the matter with business and how to end the new depression.

On Wednesday he will meet with the 56 members of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper's business advisory council, headed by W. Averell Harriman, whose advice hitherto has been received by the President in confidential communications—and usually pigeonholed.

On Friday the President will receive a group of big automobile manufacturers and a group of officers of automobile finance companies. The manufacturers will include W. P. Chrysler, chairman of the board of the Chrysler corporation; Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company; W. S. Knudsen, president of the General Motors corporation, and Alvin MacAuley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers association and of the Packard Motor company.

Finance Companies Represented.

In the group of automobile finance representatives will be John J. Schumann Jr., president of the General Motors Acceptance corporation; Henry Ittleson, president of the Commercial Credit Investment trust; C. E. Duncan, president of the Commercial Credit company, and Ernest Cauzler, president of the Universal Credit company.

Among the subjects on the agenda of this conference is the practice of high pressure salesmanship of automobiles, the purchase of which on the instalment plan is financed by credit companies, many of which are affiliated with big automobile manufacturing concerns.

The President contends that high pressure salesmanship and instalment buying of consumers' goods generally are important factors in the economic processes that produce alternate booms and depressions. Exhibit A of these practices, according to Mr. Roosevelt, is supplied by the automobile industry.

Subject of Grand Jury Inquiry.

High pressure salesmanship, which generally entails instalment buying, was included by the President in his enumeration in his recent message to congress of business practices that ought to be outlawed.

Ford, Chrysler, and General Motors and their financing affiliates have been charged by the department of justice with violation of the anti-trust laws. While a federal grand jury in Milwaukee was indicting them, the department of justice was negotiating a settlement out of court with members of their counsel, who enjoy a conspicuous degree of influence with the administration. When United States Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger learned what was going on, he discharged the grand jury and rebuked the department of justice. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings retaliated by lodging a complaint against Judge Geiger with the judiciary committee of the house, in which impeachments originate.

Awaits Light on Utility Issue.

The entire business community is anxiously awaiting the White House press conference tomorrow for further light on the President's intentions with respect to his warfare on privately owned public utilities and on holding companies in private enterprise generally.

In particular the President will be asked whether he will accept the offer of Wendell Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, to sell that concern to the TVA because it cannot compete profitably with the government financed municipally owned public utilities receiving TVA power.

At his press conference last Friday the President said that municipally owned utilities should offer to buy out privately owned utilities with which they would compete and indicated there would be no letup in his campaign to promote public ownership. At the same time he declared

FRENCH TURN TO EX-PREMIER AS CABINET MAKER

Franc Rises on New Call to Chautemps.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Jan. 18 (Tuesday).—(AP)—The French Socialist party reversed itself early today on a vote to participate in a new government headed by Camille Chautemps, substituting a resolution directing Socialist deputies to "act in accord with other members of the Popular Front." Party officials said the new motion "would permit eventually, not participation, but Socialist support of a cabinet formed by Chautemps."

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 18 [Tuesday].—France still was without a government early today after the failure of former Premier Leon Blum to form a National Union cabinet, but the political skies were cleared by the fact that he tried to do so.

The idea of calling a truce in the partisan battle, and trying to fortify French democracy in the present critical moment of world history, struck the more enlightened Frenchman as a startling possibility.

Former Premier Camille Chautemps, whose Popular Front government fell last Friday, yesterday had agreed to try to form a new government after Blum abandoned the attempt. The franc rallied after Chautemps began his task. The ex-premier declared he was inspired by Blum's principle and would try to realize the kind of union suggested in a modest and less complete form.

Will Leave Out Communists.

This was taken to mean that he would leave out the communists, but that he hoped to get the collaboration which Paul Reynaud, conservative former finance minister, refused to give Blum. Naturally Chautemps asked the Socialists to reënter the cabinet from which they resigned.

The Socialists' national council met until early this morning and voted to participate in a new Chautemps cabinet on the condition that the ministry continues the Popular Front program. The council by its vote approved a four party coalition.

The parties are the Socialists, with 156 votes in the chamber of deputies; the Radical Socialists, with 111; Joseph Paul-Boncour's Socialist Republican union, with 26, and the independent left group, with 24. That would give Chautemps 317 of the chamber's 618 votes.

The communists, who supported the Popular Front program but had no places in the cabinet, have 72 seats in the chamber.

Achieves Important Results.

French politics apparently is not ready for the kind of national reconciliation Blum proposed, but it is believed he has sown seed from which great things will grow. Several important results already have been accomplished.

FIRST—By mere surprise Blum's idea produced a momentary lull in partisan strife and caused party leaders to reflect on possibilities.

SECOND—The Radical Socialists [moderates] appear to have abandoned any idea which Georges Bonnet or Chautemps may have entertained of switching majorities—a maneuver which would have created the risk of civil war.

THIRD—Blum, hitherto a purely partisan figure, raised himself to the stature of one of those elder statesmen upon whom the country can count in a crisis.

See Chance to Regain Jobs.

Also, a number of prominent right wing politicians now realize, as a result of the Cagoulard [hooded ones] investigation, that by continuing to flirt with Fascists they cannot get anywhere—except, maybe, in jail. On the other hand, by playing the card of democratic reconciliation, they can work themselves into jobs—and a ministerial job is tempting to a French politician after two years in the opposition wilderness.

The news of Chautemps' selection to form a cabinet and his decision to pass up the communists immediately strengthened the franc. The official closing quotation was 29.90 to the dollar. Early yesterday in the limited foreign exchange dealings permitted on the bourse after being suspended since Thursday, it had been quoted at 30.30. Before the cabinet resigned Thursday's official closing was 29.93 to the dollar.

A Chapter on High Cost of Panhandling

Richard Kammler and Clarence Walker, who make a living fainting on doorsteps of the north and northwest sides of Chicago, walked forward yesterday to answer a charge of disorderly conduct before Municipal Judge Michael Tremko in Shakespeare avenue court.

They were arrested Sunday for begging. Up to the time of their hearing before Judge Tremko they had cost the city $6.78, tabulated as follows:

Time of four policemen	$4.00
Time of one sergeant	.58
Time of one lieutenant	.64
Time of one lockup keeper	.50
Meals	.72
Transportation	.34
Total	$6.78

Then Come Court Costs.

As soon as they walked into court they cost the city an additional $3.66, tabulated thus:

Time of one assistant city attorney	$0.50
Time of one judge	1.66
Time of two clerks	1.00
Time of one bailiff	.50
Total	$3.66

But it didn't stop there. When they were called, Kammler and Walker arose, walked together to the bench, and in unison said:

"We want a jury trial."

"O," said the judge, "old-timers."

He set bonds of $200 each and granted the demand. It cost the city another $2.24 to take the pair over to the Bridewell at 26th and California avenue to await trial:

Time of two policemen	$2.00
Transportation	.24
Total	$2.24

Free Meals for Eight Days.

In the Jury court the case will be heard on Jan. 25. That means eight days' keep for Kammler and Walker. It figures $24, without anything for general overhead, thus:

Eight days' meals for two [which includes food, service staf, and administration]	$16.00
Medical examination, delousing, bathing, uniform, and laundry	8.00
Total	$24.00

But when the pair go to trial the costs really go up. Sometimes there is a jury of six and sometimes a jury of twelve. That means eight men or sixteen will be called for service. The cost will total from $64.50 to $104.50, thus:

Time of one judge	$12.50
Time of one bailiff	4.00
Time of two clerks	8.00
Time of eight to sixteen jurors $40.00 to	80.00
Total	$64.50 to $104.50

It all totals to $101.18 to $141.18. The limit fine for disorderly conduct is $200. But Kammler and Walker wanted a jury trial. Kammler is a taxpayer on a five acre chicken farm near Demotte, Ind., bought with the proceeds of his begging. He hopes to retire to it soon. He'll get a jury trial.

GRANDMOTHER, 36, AND GREAT GRANDMOTHER, 56, TO WELCOME BOY

Huntington Park, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Wilma Page, a grandmother 36 years old and Mrs. Grace Belfield, a great-grandmother 56 years old, were making preparations today to welcome a new born grandson when he is brought home from a hospital this week.

The baby and his girl mother, Ann Page Crotto, 14 years old, are at the General hospital where the infant was born last Tuesday. The father of the six pound boy is Willard Crotto, 16 years old, a Junior High school pupil.

The young parents are extremely proud of their baby, but their happiness is somewhat tempered by concern over whether they will have to leave the child in the care of others while they return to school.

BULLETIN! 30 WPA MEN WORK! RIOT SQUADS CALLED

No. 2—"They're spading—like they meant it."

No. 3—"They're digging up clods to throw at each other."

No. 4—"They're throwing them."

Riot squads were on the way seconds after the first bulletin electrified the police station. But everything was normal when the police arrived. The fighting had ceased, and the spading.

Foreman Fred Schlesser, 9720 Irving Park road, Schiller Park, explained. He said he gave orders that half the men wouldn't obey. The other half upheld him, so the clod throwing battle was arranged. But when the first supply of clods was exhausted, the battle ended, for fun though the fighting was, it wasn't worth the work of digging more clods.

Father Refuses to Clear Son; Both Executed

Boston, Mass., Jan. 18.—[Tuesday.]—[Special.]—A father and son were put to death in the electric chair at the state prison here early today, the first such double execution in Massachusetts history. Before the two went to the death chamber, the father had a last dramatic opportunity to save his son, but he refused.

Anthony Di Stasio, 24 years old, the son, was the first to be electrocuted. A few minutes later the father, Frank Di Stasio, 53 years old, went to the chair. The two were convicted of the murder of Daniel Crowley, whose charred body was found in the elder Di Stasio's auto in Hudson, Mass., in June, 1936.

An Insurance Plot.

At the trial the prosecution presented evidence that the Di Stasios planned the murder, making it appear that the slain victim's body was that of Frank Di Stasio, so the son might collect $20,000 insurance on his father's life. The father had picked up Crowley on a Boston street and took him on a ride to Hudson.

At the trial the father was convicted of first degree murder and the son as an accessory.

The father insisted that his son was innocent and William Scharton, the defense attorney, urged him to sign an affidavit absolving the son of participation in the crime.

Loves Son Too Much.

"The father refuses to sign such an affidavit," Scharton said late yesterday. "He still says his son is innocent, but he says he loves him so much that he wanted to take Anthony with him in death."

Gov. Charles F. Hurley stayed up until the execution, and a last minute effort was made to prevail on the father to sign the affidavit, but this failed as the prison guards came for both men. The Di Stasios chanted prayers and then Anthony said: "Good-by, father," and walked to the electric chair.

The father's last words to his son were: "It's tough. But I'll see you again." Then he, too, walked to the chair.

Execute Two in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—William M. Gardner, 35 years old, and Charles [Teddy] Hines, 25 years old, died in Ohio penitentiary's electric chair tonight. Gardner, convicted of slaying Arch B. Coyner, a Columbus hotel clerk, during a holdup attempt Jan. 25, 1935, preceded Hines to the chair. Hines was convicted of slaying Mrs. Edith Caudill Hirl in Cincinnati March 2, 1937.

Chinese Attack Perils Jap Grip on Hangchow

SHANGHAI, Jan. 18 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Japanese today rushed reinforcements to Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, in an effort to halt a strong Chinese counter-attack.

Japanese army spokesmen, who previously had denied reports of fighting in the Hangchow area, admitted 7,000 Chinese troops had advanced to "within a few miles" of the city and that gunfire was audible in Hangchow, which is 120 miles southwest of Shanghai.

The statement referring to "heavy reinforcements" was considered to be confirmation of Chinese reports that the Japanese had not been able to penetrate the area beyond Hangchow, but had been hard pressed to maintain their position. Hangchow was captured on Dec. 24.

Raid Japanese Airdromes.

At the same time it was disclosed that at least one hundred Russian made planes and one hundred Russian pilots were operating from Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, raiding Japanese airfields and military concentrations.

[Chinese army spokesmen at Hankow said Chinese land and air forces made a counterattack on Wuhu, a Yangtze river city 60 miles upstream from Nanking, on Sunday, inflicting heavy damage on Jap forces. They said the battle lasted three hours.]

Russian flyers at Nanchang have guarded their activities carefully. It was known, however, they were operating under the direct command of their own officers, although Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese dictator, still was in general command of the air force.

Fight Again Near Shanghai.

The presence of other foreign pilots was disclosed as the result of aerial battles. An unidentified French pilot was killed and a British pilot named Whitehead was wounded.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that fighting had broken out on the Pootung peninsula, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai.

Japanese stated that 3,000 Chinese irregulars in that area, who failed to withdraw when Shanghai was occupied, "were being mopped up." The major portion of Shanghai's food had been coming from that area in recent weeks and the supply was interrupted by the new fighting.

Chinese reported they had captured Chwansha, about thirty miles east of Shanghai. Japanese said that they had no information on the capture but that "it is possible."

Chinese Claim Tsining.

Chinese continued to report successes in Shantung province, asserting that Tsining, 120 miles south of Tsinan, "is entirely in our hands" and that Chinese forces were moving northward. Reinforcements are going up the Peiping-Hankow railway.

"A decisive battle is imminent," they said.

Hongkong dispatches quoted Chinese newspapers as saying 600 Japanese troops landed at Chungshan, 45 miles west of Hongkong, Sunday under cover of a naval and aerial bombardment, but were unable to make any headway against Chinese forces.

Charles S. Ross, 72 years old, who was kidnaped in Chicago last Sept. 25, was murdered by one of his kidnapers in Illinois on Oct. 10 or 11, a few days after his wife had paid $50,000 ransom for his release.

The murderer, who has confessed, is Peter Anders, 30 years old, a former logger in the northwest lumber camps. He also confessed that he slew his confederate in the crime. The two bodies have not yet been recovered. This startling solution of the crime—one of the most mysterious in police history—was announced last night at Los Angeles, Cal., by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the federal department of justice.

Arrested at Race Track.

Anders was arrested Friday at the Santa Anita race track, near Los Angeles, where he was passing some of the ransom money through the pari mutuel machines.

Anders' confederate in the kidnaping was Atwood Gray. According to Anders' confession, he shot Ross and Gray to death on Oct. 10 or 11. The $50,000 ransom had been paid on Oct. 8.

Anders' confession was twenty-seven pages in length. After he was seized Friday, Hoover went to Los Angeles the next day and took charge of the investigation, which resulted in Anders' confessing last night.

Bodies Not Recovered.

"The bodies of Ross and Gray have not yet been recovered," Hoover said. "All we can say is that we are certain the bodies are not in Illinois, where the actual murders took place. This fact gave the federal government jurisdiction in the case."

Just how and where the killings occurred was not learned. But by taking the bodies across a state line, as Anders presumably did, he faces federal prosecution, and the death sentence can be imposed in the federal courts. Hoover said that $14,402 of the $50,000 ransom has been recovered.

Full details of how Anders hoaxed Mrs. Ross into transmitting the $50,000 ransom to him have not been disclosed. Nor is it known how the logger successfully eluded a nation-wide hunt for so long.

Many Details Lacking.

Also to be learned is how he planned the crime, how he picked his victim, the route he and Gray traveled with their victim before the double murder, and how Anders went his way alone.

It is known that since the kidnaping and murders Anders traveled extensively, visiting Spokane, Wash., where he formerly worked as a logger; Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., Chicago, New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Miami, Fla., New Orleans, and finally Los Angeles. All this time federal investigators were close behind him.

Following Horse Races

Anders, Hoover said, came to Los Angeles last week by automobile from New Orleans. He registered at a Los Angeles hotel, the name of which was not divulged. He had followed the horse races in Miami and New Orleans and then visited the Santa Anita track near Los Angeles. When arrested, he was wagering $5, $10, and $20 ransom bills at the betting windows.

Anders is described as being sturdily built, 5 feet 8 inches in height, and weighing about 135 pounds. He has brown hair and is light complexioned. He has a long police record, Hoover said, having robbed about twenty banks in various parts of the country. He operated under various aliases, among them Elbert March, Marshall Eaton, and Roy Crantz.

The ransom money recovered was taken from Anders' pockets and from compartments of the automobile he used in traveling about the country.

Traced Through Bills.

Hoover said that the federal reserve bank, the Bank of Los Angeles, and the Santa Anita race track had cooperated in tracing the ransom bills which led to Anders' capture.

D. M. Ladd, head of the federal bureau of investigation in the Chicago area, said last night that he had no further information about the solving of the crime, but had been informed that Hoover is seeking to charter a plane in Los Angeles in which to bring the prisoner to Chicago.

Ross' widow, Mrs. May Ross, was reported to be grief stricken in her apartment at 2912 Commonwealth avenue.

HISTORY OF KIDNAPING

The kidnaping of Ross was one of the most mysterious in the history of crime. Ross was one of the few victims of a major kidnaping where past life suggested no hint of a possible clew. Moreover, months of investigation failed to indicate that any known kidnapers of gangsters had taken part in it.

Ross, an affable, gray haired man of 72, had retired two years ago from the presidency of the George S. Carrington company, 2732 Fullerton avenue, greeting card manufacturers. Because he had not yet received full payment for his interest, he had kept in touch with the company's affairs through his former secretary, Miss Florence Freihage, 44 years old, of 1335 Nelson street. She was secretary of the company at the time of the kidnaping.

Drive to Sycamore.

Seeking information regarding the company, Ross took her to dinner the night of the kidnaping—last Sept. 25 at the Fargo hotel in Sycamore, Ill. He was driving her back to Chicago about 8 p. m. in his new $5,000 motor when he noticed a car following him. He pulled over to the side of the road to let it pass in Wolf road, near the entrance to the Westward Ho golf course, southwest of Franklin Park.

The pursuers moved ahead and cut in front of Ross' car, forcing it to a halt.

"One man got out and walked over to us," Miss Freihage later told police. "He was young and had light, curly hair, as well as I could make it out in the dark. He showed Mr. Ross a pistol and said he would shoot unless the door of the car was unlocked.

Obeys Order to Open Door.

"Mr. Ross obeyed. When he was told to, he stepped out. I think there were two men in the car then, but I could see only one plainly. He was at the wheel. The man with the pistol said:

"'This is a kidnaping. My boss said to bring you along.'

"Mr. Ross went without resistance. The man came back to me after leading him to the other car. I asked him not to harm Mr. Ross, but to take his money and the $85 I was carrying and let him go. He said:

"'You're his secretary. Is he good for half a million or a quarter of a million?'

"I replied that Mr. Ross had no such wealth. The man paid no attention to that. He ordered me to get down on the floor of the car; said he would shoot me if I didn't."

Secretary Left in Car.

Without taking the keys to Ross' car from Miss Freihage, the kidnapers drove off with Ross. She drove to a filling station at Grand avenue and Wolf road, where she telephoned for police.

Investigation later disclosed that a young man had been seen chatting with Ross in the hotel dining room while Miss Freihage was in the powder room, but this man's identity was never learned.

When a few days passed without a word from Ross, it became known that the department of justice had taken charge of the case. On Oct. 1, a gruff voiced man who identified himself as "Bob of New York," telephoned that he was having difficulty getting in touch with Mrs. Ross because her telephone wires were being tapped.

On Oct. 7, it was reported that a letter postmarked Savanna, Ill., had been delivered to Mrs. Ross. Although the government men kept all their movements secret and divulged no details, it was reported that this letter contained instructions for paying the ransom.

The $50,000 ransom was paid Oct. 8, according to official government announcement. When no word was forthcoming from Ross or his kidnapers Mrs. Ross appealed to them in a public announcement to release her husband, saying that their conditions had been met. Two days later the government released the serial numbers of the ransom bills and asked the public to be on the watch for them.

Fear Death of Ross.

Fear was then expressed that Ross either had been murdered or died while in the hands of the kidnapers. He was known to be in delicate health from a weak heart, which needed constant medical attention.

The first of the ransom bills, of $10 denomination, fell into the hands of Mrs. Clara Ludwig, 2206 Des Plaines street, Blue Island, on Oct. 22. She turned it over to government agents and helped them trace it back to a bank, where its trail was lost. Four others were found in the Chicago district within a few days, but if any others were discovered the government kept the fact secret.

In the months that followed, the search for Ross and his kidnapers went on, but until last night it was feared the mystery would never be solved.

Blows to Stock Market.

Under the impact of these blows the stock market declined today, led by utility stocks.

Because of the vast power he commands to promote or retard prosperity, because of the presumption that he can still work his will in a congress overwhelmingly Democratic, business men heard these pronouncements of the President with increased pessimism regarding the future of private enterprise under the Roosevelt régime.

To abolish all holding companies would be to tear down nearly one half the capitalistic structure of the country, according to financial authorities. All the big corporations are holding companies. United States Steel, with $1,864,000,000 of assets; Standard Oil of New Jersey, with $1,842,000,000 of assets and 275 separate subsidiaries throughout the world; Bethlehem Steel, with $676,000,000 of assets; Texas Corporation, with $540,000,000; Allied Chemical, with $409,000,000, and Union Carbide and Carbon, with $364,000,000 assets, may be classified as virtually straight holding companies.

Other Vast Concerns Included.

Holding companies which also conduct substantial operations directly, through departments or divisions, include the $1,518,000,000 General Motors Corporation; Socony-Vacuum, with $806,000,000 of assets; Du Pont, with $721,000,000; Ford, with $717,000,000; Standard Oil of Indiana, with $710,000,000; Anaconda Copper, with $592,000,000; Standard Oil of California, with $586,000,000; Gulf Oil, with $442,000,000; International Harvester, with $399,000,000; Republic Steel, with $375,000,000; General Electric, with $366,000,000; Kennecott, with $335,000,000, and Armour of Illinois, with $323,000,000.

In the main, the industrial holding company is viewed by business men not as a device to exert the will of a minority on a large organization or to escape state control, or to avoid taxation—under tax conditions of prior years.

On the contrary, the holding company, in its most frequently utilized form, ordinarily owns outright its principal subsidiaries, secures to the structure the benefits of cheap financing, group purchasing and selling, and insurance, and provides the millions of dollars required annually for many kinds of research.

CITY COUNCIL AGREES, AND BOARD OF HEALTH CALLS A SPADE A SPADE

The campaign against venereal diseases which recently has included calling them by their proper names in order to make the public conscious of their extent, found its place in the city budget yesterday. At the request of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, the aldermen changed the name of the Social Hygiene section of the board of health to the Syphilis and Gonorrhea section. Explaining his request, Dr. Bundesen said, "Social hygiene is an old fashioned name for attacking the two dreaded diseases. Our campaign is in the open and we want it to be known by its proper name."

MAYOR SIGNS 1938 BUDGET; BOOSTS IN PAY INCLUDED

Mayor Kelly yesterday signed the 1938 appropriation ordinance which becomes effective Jan. 27. After final amendments, the new budget totals $149,932,218, including $57,831,477 for operating expenses. Last year the comparative figures were $134,101,810 and $53,681,494. At the next meeting of the city council of Jan. 31 a real estate pegged tax levy of $37,000,000 will be adopted.

The budget includes a pay increase of 2 cents an hour for street laborers employed in the water pipe extension department and from 60 to 80 cents a day for tunnel workers.

It also includes salary boosts for the following department heads: Walter Wright, superintendent of parks, recreation, and aviation, $6,000 to $6,750; James Versiluis, engineer in charge of tunnel work, $575 to $625 a month; his assistant, $445 to $516 monthly, and Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, $5,000 to $6,000.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 17.—(AP)—State Policeman C. V. Maine said today G. Hall Roosevelt, brother of the President's wife, paid a $100 fine levied against the driver of Mrs. Roosevelt's car for exceeding the Maryland forty-five mile an hour speed limit. Maine said he and Patrolman J. R. Buckworth stopped the car on the Baltimore-Philadelphia road Saturday night after a three mile chase. He said the car, driven by Mrs. Roosevelt's chauffeur, Alfred Pinto, was going eighty miles an hour.

FARMER KILLS 4 CHILDREN, WIFE AND ENDS LIFE

Two of Dead Are Son and Daughter of Brother.

Durand, Wis., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lawrence Leslay, farmer near here, tonight shot and killed four children, his wife, wounded two others, and then committed suicide, Sherif Victor Seline of Pepin county said.

Two of the children, Virgie, 8, and Beulah, 7, were his own daughters. The other two, Phyllis, 8, and Virgil, 5, were those of his brother, Marvin Leslay, who was shot below the heart.

Seeks to Intervene.

Mrs. Marvin Leslay was struck on the head with a revolver by Lawrence Leslay as she sought to intervene in a quarrel between the two brothers. Both Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Leslay were removed to a hospital in a critical condition.

Both families live on the same farm in nearby homes. The brothers had quarreled ever since a barn on the farm burned several months ago.

Lawrence Leslay after wounding Marvin and his wife, took the injured brother's children to his own home and killed them there, along with his own children and his wife. One son of Marvin, Roger, 4, escaped. He was at the home of a neighbor.

Crawls to Neighbor's Home.

Authorities received word of the tragedy from Mrs. Marvin Leslay. Sherif Seline explained that the woman had crawled to a neighbor's home after being felled. He said she told him that she remained quiet so that Lawrence would believe her dead.

LAKE DIVERSION FIGHT BOBS UP IN HOUSE AS OLD FACTIONS LINE UP

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Foes of the Chicago water diversion plan decided tonight to ask the house rivers and harbors committee to wait sixty days or more to hear their arguments.

Attorney generals of their representatives from five states said they would need at least that much time to prepare their case against a bill by Representative Claude V. Parsons [D., Ill.] authorizing the Chicago sanitary district to divert an annual average of 5,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan. Advocates of the bill will be heard by the committee tomorrow.

States represented at tonight's conference were Minnesota, by Attorney General William S. Erwin; Wisconsin, Attorney General O. S. Loomis; Michigan, Attorney General R. W. Starr; New York, T. F. Cohan, assistant attorney general, and Pennsylvania, F. J. Myers, assistant deputy attorney general.

FORD'S ST. LOUIS MEN TO VOTE ON BARGAIN AGENT

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company's proposal for an election at the St. Louis assembly plant to determine an employés' bargaining agent was described tonight as the first time the company had expressed willingness to permit its employés to participate in a national labor relations board vote.

Attorneys for the company said, to the best of their knowledge, the suggestion, included in the firm's first peace offer to the United Automobile Workers of America, never before had been authorized. The union called a strike at the assembly plant here last Nov. 24, but production has continued. The company's statement said "voting rights would be extended to present employés and to those employed up to the September closing."

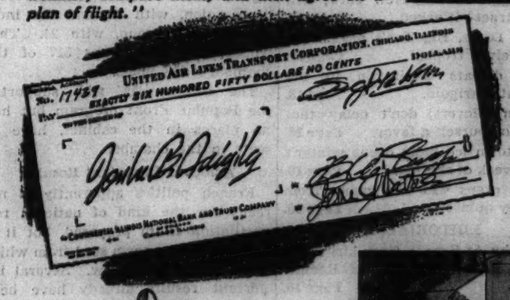
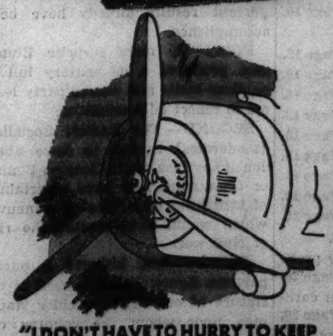
"I'M THE CAPTAIN OF A UNITED MAINLINER . . . a job which rates as a profession. Many years and hundreds of thousands of miles of flying experience are only a small part of the requirements. Actually, I've been in training for this job for years. I own my home, have a family, live quietly and normally, and maintain excellent physical condition. And I'm constantly studying all phases of airline operation—especially meteorology, the science of forecasting the weather."

"I STUDY THE WEATHER REPORTS FOR AT LEAST AN HOUR BEFORE EVERY TAKE-OFF—with the dispatcher, who is an expert meteorologist. Weather data comes to us by radio and teletype from four different sources, giving us a complete picture of conditions all along the route, both on the ground and at every flying level. The dispatcher and I make separate analyses of the weather, compare them, and then agree on a plan of flight."



"MY ORDERS ARE TO NOT FLY IF WEATHER IS QUESTIONABLE. Moreover, United Air Lines guarantees me a minimum salary of $650 a month, regardless of how many hours I fly. That way, you see, they pay me for using my judgment in not starting a trip under doubtful conditions — or for terminating a trip if weather turns unfavorable."



"I DON'T HAVE TO HURRY TO KEEP UP WITH MY FLYING SCHEDULES. All United flights are timed to use only 50% to 60% of the horsepower available in our twin-row 1100 h. p. Wasp engines. That gives us a valuable reserve margin of power and slack in schedules. Actually, a United Mainliner can climb two miles high with only one engine in use."

"OUR NEW MAINLINER SKYLOUNGES AND SLEEPERS are certainly tops in transportation between New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Denver, and all Pacific Coast cities from Los Angeles to Seattle. The Skylounges have big swivel lounge chairs . . . the Sleepers have berths as comfortable as your own bed. The cabins are soundproofed and steam-heated. Next time you plan a trip, you owe it to yourself to fly . . . in a United Mainliner."

APPROVE NAVAL EXPANSION BILL OF 553 MILLIONS

President Is Expected to Ask for More.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—While President Roosevelt today worked on a message to congress calling for a huge new naval building program, the house appropriations committee approved a 1939 navy appropriation bill totaling 553 million dollars.

As part of his campaign to convince other nations that the United States wants a navy second to none and perhaps surpassing all others, the President is expected to defer sending his message to congress until the house has indorsed the committee recommendations for the fiscal year 1939, which begins next July 1.

Two Rapid Developments.

The White House strategy, it was reported, is to follow up the passage of the huge appropriation bill late this week with immediate recommendations for even greater expenditures. These two rapid developments will impress the world and guard against untoward incidents which might involve us in war, according to the theory of Mr. Roosevelt.

Approximately 182 millions will be available in the twelve months beginning next July 1 for construction of new ships according to the committee reports. The bill provides for the building of the following vessels:

Type.	Cost each.
2 Battleships	$70,850,000
2 Cruisers	22,288,000
8 Destroyers	8,534,000
6 Submarines	6,412,000
1 Mine sweeper	2,654,000
1 Submarine tender	2,720,000
1 Oiler	9,168,000

Another 120 millions is provided to carry on the work on vessels now under construction or contracted for. These include the two battleships, North Carolina and Washington; 3 aircraft carriers, 8 cruisers, 43 destroyers, 16 submarines, a seaplane tender and destroyer tender.

Big Navy Sentiment in House.

Since 1933, the report pointed out, appropriations have been provided for or toward the construction of 1[illegible] warships, estimated to cost in all approximately one and one-half billions.

The practically unanimous big navy sentiment in the house was emphasized today when the house passed, without a single objection being raised, a bill authorizing the spending of 15 million dollars for modernizing the navy's two airplane carriers, the Lexington and Saratoga. The two carriers are converted cruisers and approximately $7,500,000 must now be spent on each to make them comparable with present day carriers, the navy declares.

In approving an appropriation of forty-four millions for the navy's air force, the committee pointed out that the navy was ahead of schedule in its air program.

Aims at 1,900 Planes by 1941.

The object of the navy has been to have on hand by 1941 a total of 1,910 useful airplanes. By July 1, 1939, however, there will be on hand a total of 1,870 planes, just forty planes short of the 1941 goal.

Speaking of the material condition of the United States floating forces, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, told the committee that it was satisfactory. Some of the battleships are approaching the age limit of 26 years, he remarked.

ALL IS FORGIVEN, COME HOME, BAR SAYS TO JUDGES

Peace was declared yesterday between the Chicago Bar association and the forty-three judges of the Circuit and Superior courts who resigned from the bar association in May, 1936, in a protest against the association's investigation of their political activities. A resolution adopted by the board of managers invited the judges to return to the fold on the basis of all is forgiven.

Judge Francis S. Wilson of the Illinois Supreme court presided over a series of meetings intended to restore harmony between bench and bar. The judges indicated a willingness to forget the feud and resume their former status as members of the association.

The invitation was understood to include the judges expelled weeks after they had resigned. These were Judges James J. Kelly [since deceased], Oscar F. Nelson, and John J. Sullivan of the Superior court, and Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court. Judge Sullivan is now on the Appellate court.

DR. A. E. MORGAN, TVA CHAIRMAN, ILL IN CHICAGO

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, was under the care of a physician yesterday in his suite at the Palmer House. His wife, who was helping care for him, said an infection of the throat and chest had led to a fear pneumonia might develop, but he had responded to treatment. Dr. Morgan came to Chicago last week to testify before federal trade commission hearings on the cenemt industry.

Waukegan Boy, 14, Is Shot as He Walks Through Wood

William Jensen, 14 years old, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday while walking with a companion in a wood near Martin avenue and Washington street in Waukegan. The shot was believed to have been fired by some one at target practice nearby. The wounded boy, son of Albert Jensen, 2220 Jenkinson court, Waukegan, was taken to St. Therese hospital.

Public Accountant Shoots Self to Death in Apartment

Louis Edward Mass, 50 years old, a certified public accountant, shot himself to death last night in his apartment at 5006 Blackstone avenue. He left several letters which disclosed he had been despondent. One of the letters was addressed to his sister, Mrs. Emma Smith of Kankakee, Ill., who died a week ago and whose funeral Mass attended.

One Woman on Jury to Try Minister.

Paw Paw, Mich., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—A girl 14 years old testified today before a jury of one married woman and eleven farmers and business men that she was raped three times by the Rev. Harold Meland, pastor of the Baptist church at Bloomingdale, near here. The girl, Reta Ehlerts, a member of Meland's congregation and a former domestic in his home, asserted that one attack occurred in an automobile and the other two in the parsonage.

The Rev. Mr. Meland, 38 years old and once a credit manager for a Chicago furniture firm, listened quietly to the testimony, his wife beside him. He is expected to take the stand in his own defense tomorrow.

Blame Church Dispute.

The pastor and his wife and some members of his church have declared that the rape accusations were trumped up by an opposing church faction.

Taking the stand before Judge Glenn E. Warner, the Ehlert girl said that the first assault took place in the parsonage study last spring—she was uncertain of the exact date—in the absence of Mrs. Meland.

She said that the pastor returned from an evangelistic meeting, sent his three children outside to play, and then called her into the study.

Tells of Other Attacks.

The second attack, the girl testified, was last fall after she and the Rev. Mr. Meland had gone to a nearby farm to pick grapes. On their return the pastor stopped the car in the dusk on a lonely road beside a marsh and raped her again, she said.

"Afterward he offered a prayer that everything would be all right," the girl declared, "and then we went on home."

The third and last attack was fixed by the girl as Oct. 12 in the parsonage while Mrs. Meland was ill in a room downstairs.

"He came into my room on the second floor," Reta testified, "and tried to persuade me to come to his room. When I refused he came in with me. As he returned to his own room afterward he stumbled over a chair and Mrs. Meland called up to ask what was the matter and he said: 'It is only I'."

Denies Having Boy Friend.

On cross-examination by Defense Attorney Harry Howard the girl denied that she had been out with Clair Rawlinson, a high school boy. Her father, Frank Ehlerts, and his wife, the girl's stepmother, testified as to her age and to her service as a domestic in the pastor's home.

After Judge Warner denied a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal, Attorney Howard called as his first witness Frances Reed, 17 years old. She said she was employed by the Meland family last October and November and that it was she, and not Reta, who was working there at the time of the alleged attack in the upstairs bedroom on Oct. 12.

Two of the pastor's children, Harold Jr., 12 years old, and Douglas, 10, then took the stand and denied that they had been sent out of the house by their father on the occasion told by Reta.

GIRL ABANDONS BOY BABY IN LOOP BEAUTY PARLOR

Leaves Him with Owner and Disappears.

When a comely young woman who often went to Mrs. Scott Pocahontas beauty shop at 23 East Harrison street came in Saturday and deposited Freddie, 18 months old, Mrs. Pocahontas thought nothing of it. Her customers often made strange requests, and a customer is a customer.

When, however, Sunday came and passed and Monday grew long, Mrs. Pocahontas became slightly worried. Too, Freddie became fretful. He cried and tried to get out of his week-end playpen. Mrs. Pocahontas then notified the police.

A Nice Looking Girl.

"She was a very nice looking girl, an intelligent one," Mrs. Pocahontas explained. "She said she wanted to look for work, and would I look after Freddie? She said she'd be back Sunday to take him out for air. I said sure I would. I made him a lovely little soft bed in a crate, gave him a bath and he slept until noon the next day. I woke him to feed him."

Mrs. Pocahontas said she asked her customer one question, albeit a little hesitantly. She asked her name. The customer, who seemed to be about 23 years old, a beautiful girl, Mrs. Pocahontas said, with gray-green eyes and dark brown hair that was shot with gold, smiled sadly, and said she couldn't tell. But the baby's name, she said, was Freddie.

An Adorable Baby.

"And he was such a darling, the most adorable baby I ever saw," Mrs. Pocahontas said.

The customer, she said, was about 5 feet 4 inches tall, and probably weighed 120 pounds. She wore an inexpensive black coat, fur trimmed, and a four cornered black hat with a tassel. Freddie wore a snow suit and blue bonnet.

FASTING PASTOR PLANS A 500 MILE CONVENTION TRIP

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 17.—(AP)—With 16 days of absolute fast behind him, the gaunt dean of St. Mary's cathedral made plans tonight to attend the diocesan convention of his church at Knoxville, Tenn., 500 miles across the state.

The Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe, who says he is entering into a new higher plane of spiritual life taking his food from the Father's life within, will journey by train, leaving here tomorrow night. He will arrive in Knoxville Wednesday morning.

Declaring there would be no turning back, the cleric who is 46 years old said nobody could say he was taking food on the sly in his search for spiritual perfection and immortality.

It was revealed today that the dean places ice cubes in his mouth at frequent intervals to relieve the dryness of his throat and lips. His only material food is the sip of wine and communion wafer he takes three times weekly.

MAN, 76, SHOOTS SELF.

Thomas Hagn, 76 years old, 3921 North Washtenaw avenue, was in a serious condition at the Alexaion Brothers' hospital yesterday after shooting himself. His wife, Irma, said he has been in ill health.

DRIVER PRACTICES FOR A CRASH THAT FINALLY OCCURS

Gives Advice, Directs Trafic—Then Zowie!

Ralph Rapp and Bernard Heeran were two of the policemen who helped extricate William F. Townley, 4534 North Wolcott avenue, when his automobile struck a lamp post on the Outer drive at 47th street early yesterday and overturned.

Townley was cut and bruised, and his wife, Hazel, 33 years old, was critically injured. She was taken to the Chicago hospital. The accident happened at 1:57 a. m.

At 4:20 a. m. Rapp and Heeran answered another accident call on the Outer drive, at 49th street. They found that an automobile, out of control, had overturned and caught fire. The driver, who had been helped out uninjured by other motorists, was standing on the parkway.

The Same Man They Say.

"It's the same officious guy," said Rapp as he smelled the driver's breath. "Remember at the other accident he gave us a lot of unwanted advice about pulling Townley out, and then directed trafic? I wonder here he's been?"

The motorist said he was Allan Rosenbaum, 23, 5217 Kenwood avenue, credit manager of a box manufacturing concern. Taken to the Safety court on a charge of reckless driving, Judge J. M. Braude continued his case until next Dec. 22.

Others are Sentenced.

Others in Safety court yesterday who were sentenced by Judge Braude were:

EMIL POKORNY, 49 years old, of 2522 South Trumbull avenue, driving while intoxicated; six months' probation, and driving privilege suspended for four months.

NICHOLAS SCHWEDD, 30, of 4625 South Fairfield avenue; reckless driving; $10 fine and twenty days' suspension.

LEO EMERSON, 35, of 3642 West 60th street, reckless driving; $25 fine and four months' suspension.

IKE STOCKTON, 37, colored, of 421 South State street; reckless driving; $10 fine and 90 days' suspension.

JOHN STYCZYNSKI, 25, of 520 Grenshaw avenue; reckless driving; five days in jail.

Stanley Stowick, an electrician, was fined $80 by Magistrate Frank Pavek in Berwyn yesterday for driving 80 miles an hour on Jan. 13. When he insisted on making a speech in court, the magistrate ordered a mental examination. The report said Stowick is incompetent, and he was taken to the Psychopathic hospital.

GARDENER, 72, HIT RIDING HIS BICYCLE, DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

William de Laine, 72 years old, a Wilmette gardener who was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle on Green Bay road Oct. 29, died in his home at 1524 Forest avenue, Wilmette, yesterday.

The driver of the car was William Victor, 15 years old, 1046 Michigan avenue, Wilmette, a son of the head of the Victor Manufacturing and Gasket company, 5750 Roosevelt road. The boy was not held.

Mrs. Edith Rogers, 45 years old, 156 West Huron street, died yesterday in the County hospital of injuries incurred Saturday when she was struck by the car of Miss Alice Logan, 3843 Jackson boulevard, at La Salle and Huron streets.

James Manes, 55 years old, 6316 Lowe avenue, a WPA worker, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by the car of E. J. Egan, 6761 South Elizabeth street, at 63d and State streets.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 58 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these 44 were killed in Chicago, where 749 were injured in the same period.

Police Receive First Full Pay Since October, 1931

For 6,300 members of the police department, yesterday was the first full semi-monthly pay day since October, 1931. On that date the city council slashed seventy-eight days' pay from basic salaries. Since then pay restoration has been gradual until this year. The 1938 budget provides for pre-depression salaries for all city employés.

Life Begins At 40

One Spring Morning in 1927, CHEERIO Went on the Air

The Cheerio Bird Quartet and Their Microphone

Then 50—This Man Was Destined to Become a Profound Influence on Thousands of Lives

A SAN FRANCISCO business man stopped every day to say a cheery Good Morning to an ill friend. This gave so much happiness to them both they agreed it should be spread to all shut-ins—and they thought of radio.

"Cheerio" has no other name to his audience. From the beginning, he insisted that the work was everything, the man nothing. He has never received any pay—unless you count a soul satisfaction such as few people can feel.

Some of the biggest men in the country applauded his work. And the Inner Circle of shut-ins and the great Outer Circle of average people got together in the extraordinary Cheerio Exchange.

No Young Man COULD Be Cheerio

Cheerio is not on in the mornings now. But you can hear him every Sunday night at 10:30 E. S. T. on the Blue Network of the N. B. C. No man under 40 could give you such wealth of understanding.

It takes stamina to carry on a program like this. Cheerio has it. All people over 40 need good health to do the most important work of their lives—now that they are mature and experienced.

They Found Needed Energy—So Can YOU!

Carrying His Plans Through

Dear Life Begins:

At 40, five years of depression struggle had replaced my old-time pep with the listless feeling that means a start toward the scrap heap. I had no appetite and suffered from indigestion and sluggishness.

Then a real friend told me Fleischmann's Yeast was the thing for that "gone" feeling. As I began to eat my 3 cakes a day, I gradually worked up a man-size appetite. Soon, no more nervous indigestion.

Now, with the help of Fleischmann's Yeast I've built up physical well-being again. I'm heading for a job that pays three times my current pay check and I feel sure I'll get it.—PHILIP MOND CONWAY

Digestive Decline May Mean An Early Old Age

Digestive action is likely to be slower after 40, because of a slackening and weakening of the gastric flow. Often this one thing is at the bottom of a worn-out, dispirited feeling. But, in many cases, it is easy to check digestive decline.

Fleischmann's Yeast quickens digestion by inducing a stronger, fuller gastric flow. This stimulating action is due to the millions of tiny, live yeast plants in fresh yeast.

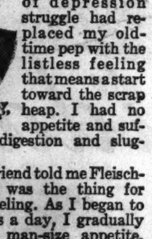
In addition, Fleischmann's Yeast gives you the tonic benefit of 4 health-building vitamins—the Nerve Vitamin, the Cold-Resistance Vitamin, the Bone Vitamin and the Vitality Vitamin.

You'll soon learn to like the fresh, malty taste of Fleischmann's Yeast. Eat it regularly—3 cakes every day. Eat one cake ½ hour before each meal—plain or dissolved in a little water. The gastric juices will flow more freely and be ready to digest the meal more thoroughly.

New Job Means Better Home for Children



Mrs. W. E. R. Brent
Gained new health

Dear Life Begins:

When I was approaching 40, it became necessary for me to take over the support of my 3 children, but I couldn't muster the strength. I had indigestion, everything tired me, and I was so cranky I'm afraid the children had a hard time.

But two weeks after I'd begun eating Fleischmann's Yeast, I found my indigestion on the mend. In 2 months all the nervous feeling seemed to have simply vanished.

Now our own private depression is over. I've gotten a job as a bookkeeper, taken an apartment and these days I'm really a companion to my youngsters.—MARY J. BRENT reticent it is expected in foreign military circles here that an intensive military campaign will be launched on several fronts, notably from Nanking and Wuhu in the general direction of Hankow and from Hangchow toward Nanchang.

CHINESE ATTACK PERILS JAP GRIP ON HANGCHOW

Foreign Built Planes Aid in New Drives.

New Troops Defend Nanchang.

NANCHANG, China, Jan. 18 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Thousands of troops from Yunnan province in China's southern interior massed in Nanchang and its environs today for a stanch defense against any Japanese attempt to launch an overland attack against Hankow, one of China's temporary capitals.

The new troops manned the Poyang lake defenses above Nanchang, which lies 150 miles southeast of Hankow. A complete trench system and barbed wire entanglements stretch between the lake and a range of mountains to the Yangtze river, affording excellent protection for the extensive air force quartered here.

Chinese reported nearly 800 concrete pillboxes had been completed along the 100 miles of twisting Yangtze between Kiukiang and Hankow. Each is manned by nearly 80 men equipped with machine guns, anti-aircraft weapons and six months' rations for the defense of Hankow.

Meanwhile approximately 6,000 wounded Chinese troops were being treated in Nanchang, completely filling the Methodist hospital, the Baldwin Girls' school, and Nanchang academy. Only three Americans remained in Nanchang in addition to four British missionaries. Two-thirds of the city's population had evacuated because of frequent Japanese air raids.

NEW MUNITIONS CONTROL

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—Partial control of the munitions factories by the army and navy was put into effect today in conjunction with the announcement of the new Chinese policy, in which Japan pledged herself to dominate China completely and smash the Nationalist government of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

This was the first time since the promulgation of the wartime munitions industry mobilization law of 1918, that the defense services had taken such control and indicated that the government expects the fighting will be prolonged.

Expect to Improve Efficiency.

The government expects its new action will improve greatly the efficiency of industries in general. In a joint army and navy statement, it was declared that "the intention is to release state industrial mobilization in earnest for the thoroughgoing chastisement of China.

"The object of such control is to reap the fruits of coöperation between the government and the people in a manner most adequate to conform to the needs of military affairs," the statement explained.

"Although it is believed that a few entertain groundless fears about the effects of control, it should be mentioned that both the army and the navy have done everything to minimize undesirable effects that may arise through enforcement."

Explains Japan's Policy.

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe today was reported to have told Japanese political leaders frankly that the undeclared war against China was becoming increasingly grave.

Domei [the Japanese news agency] said Konoe informed leading members of both houses of parliament that failures to bring China to terms had "compelled the government to resort to another course of serious nature." What this might mean was not disclosed.

The official statement said the Japanese cabinet, military, and naval authorities were in complete accord on pursuing the war until complete pacification of eastern Asia was achieved. Japan withdrew recognition from the national government of China, declaring her "responsibilities for peace in east Asia now are even heavier than before."

May Revise Cabinet.

The newspaper Yomiuri said the opinion was growing among those close to Konoe that the premier shortly would reform his cabinet to meet the situation created by China's protracted resistance.

The Tokio press was unanimous in taking for granted that the recognition withdrawn from the Chinese nationalist government would be extended to the provisional government set up at conquered Peking.

The newspaper Hochi said "Germany and Italy informally have already notified Japan of their readiness to recognize the provisional government at Peking. It is expected that when Japan extends formal recognition they will follow suit." [Japan, Germany, and Italy are linked in a pact against international communism.]

Urges New Shanghai Régime.

Domei quoted Shigeru Kawagoe, the ambassador to China, as proposing establishment of a new central China régime at Shanghai. "In that event it would not be so difficult to adjust relations between the North China and central China régimes," he said.

[At Hankow, Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese premier and finance minister, declared that "All current talk of Chinese-Japanese peace, which apparently is inspired by Tokio and Berlin, is utterly baseless." Dr. Kung said Japan's terms were "wholly unacceptable."]

CURB JAPS ONCE AND FOR ALL, CRY OF STALIN'S AID

Demands Drastic Action in Manchukuo.

MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Andre Alexandrovitch Zhdanoff, one of Joseph Stalin's right hand men, called on the commissariat of foreign affairs today to take "drastic measures" to end Japanese "hooliganism."

[The foreign office in Tokio yesterday issued a statement setting forth a number of new instances of alleged soviet persecution of Japanese subjects. "Despite representations to soviet officials," the statement said, "there has been no improvement in the situation."]

Addressing the supreme soviet, Russia's new Red parliament, Zhdanoff said Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov deserved credit for carrying out "the soviet policy of peace" but that he was too lenient toward "the hooligan agents of Japan in her puppet state, Manchukuo."

Speech Cheered by Deputies.

"I believe it is our common opinion," he declared, "that drastic measures should be taken which would put an end once and for all to the hooliganism of the agents of Japanese imperialism."

Zhdanoff spoke as chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the soviet of the union and a member of the new presidium of the supreme soviet. His speech was cheered lustily by the deputies.

Today's joint session of the two houses—the soviet of the union and the soviet of nationalities—was devoted to reorganization of the highest administrative organs of the state under the new constitution.

Michael Kalinin and Vyacheslaff Molotov, president and premier of the soviet state, were chosen for similar posts in the new setup—Kalinin as chairman of the new presidium of the Red parliament and Molotov as chairman of the council of people's commissars, the soviet cabinet.

Stalin Retains High Status.

Stalin, dominant figure of the soviet state as secretary general of the communist party, was elected a member of the presidium, a post equivalent to that he held on the former central executive committee. Stalin was cheered for 12 minutes as his name came up for vote. Informed persons unquestionably agreed he could have been named chairman had he not chosen to be merely a member.

The commissars of justice and water transport, N. V. Krylenko and N. I. Pakomov, were criticized sharply, with exclusion of Krylenko from the new cabinet virtually certain. Krylenko was assailed on the ground he gives more time to encouraging chess and mountain climbing than to his job as commissar of justice.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Helen Sullivan, 26 year old hotel telephone operator, who remained at her switchboard arousing guests until her dress caught fire, died today of burns suffered in the Hotel Plaza fire which took three other lives nearly three weeks ago. She was forced to run through a wall of flame to escape from the building.

SENATORS QUIZ FORMER CHIEF OF ICKES 'OGPU'

Glavis Tells of Tapping Employes' Phone Lines.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Louis R. Glavis, former director of the espionage system under Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, reluctantly told the senate committee on public lands today that his superiors sometimes interferred with his investigations and did not always discharge employés whom he accused of unfaithfulness.

Under questioning by Senator Frederick Steiwer [R., Ore.], Glavis recalled making a recommendation that Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard university, a federal institution for Negroes, be removed because of a money shortage. He also said he recommended that two employés of the petroleum administration be fired for taking bribes from oil operators, and that the men, instead of being discharged, were transferred.

Put Blame on Glavis.

Glavis was called in connection with the nomination of Ebert K. Burlew, administrative assistant and right hand man to Secretary Ickes, to be first assistant secretary of the interior. Both Burlew and Secretary Ickes had placed the responsibility for wire tapping and other prying practices upon Glavis.

The committee also heard further details of the case of Reno E. Stitely, former voucher clerk in the national park service, who embezzled $85,000 over a period of 3 years and 8 months by maintaining an imaginary CCC camp.

A. E. Demaray, assistant director of the park service, told of Stitely's kindly solicitude for the welfare of his dummy CCC boys. He said the clerk occasionally promoted his boys according to the provisions of the federal classification act and gave them raises in pay; that he put them on sick leave from time to time.

All Dummy but Checks.

These details produced merriment, for it had been explained at a previous hearing that Stitely's CCC camp was a dummy and all his boys were phoneys. He exchanged vouchers bearing the fictitious names for government pay checks at the war department, the disbursing agency for the CCC camps, and then cashed the checks.

Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], who implied by his questions that the interior department officials were exceedingly careless, surprised his colleagues at one point by declaring that the CCC camp was not a dummy.

"You're absolutely certain that these vouchers were for an imaginary CCC camp?" Pittman asked Demaray.

"Yes, sir," Demaray replied.

Pittman Hints at Others.

Pittman's statement indicated that others might have been involved in the embezzlement case, but he did not elaborate on it. Presumably he will call additional witnesses.

Senator Steiwer asked Demaray whether the park service made regular inspections of the CCC camps.

"Yes we did," he answered, producing an uproar of laughter.

Demaray said he believed the park service was entitled to some credit for uncovering the defalcations.

"I think you are, even though it took you three and one half years," Senator Pittman remarked.

Glavis, who now is practicing law in New York, obviously was reluctant to testify concerning his knowledge of affairs in the interior department. He denied that any telephone wires were tapped during investigations of persons outside the department, but said that by agreement with Secretary Ickes extensions were made to the phones they suspected were being improperly used in the department building.

Burlew Is Exonerated.

Glavis defended this practice, saying it resulted in the dismissal of eight or ten employes and the exoneration of others under suspicion.

Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] said that blasphemous rumors concerning certain government officials were going around town and that they should be exploded. He said a man whom he regarded as responsible called him last night and told him that Glavis had ordered his office files searched.

"So far as Mr. Burlew is concerned, he never had anything to do with directing any of my investigations," Glavis said. "So far as the secretary is concerned, he never directed me to investigate any members of congress. And I certainly never investigated you, Senator, for I know you too well."

Senator Steiwer then asked Glavis whether he recalled recommending that two employés of the oil administration, named Behrens and Buthod, be dismissed for taking money from Texas oil operators. The senator also asked whether they were discharged. Glavis said he believed they were suspended and then transferred to another agency.

"Don't misunderstand me," he said. "I think they ought to have been dismissed. They were given a so-called hearing and retained."

Senator Steiwer then asked whether Thomas Kelliher, the agent who reported on Behrens and Buthod, was demoted for his action. Glavis said he understood that the agent was transferred, but he didn't know whether it amounted to a demotion.

"Did he ever tell you that the secretary and Mr. Burlew made it unpleasant for him?" Senator Steiwer asked.

"No, he just told about the hearing," Glavis said.

Refuses Senate Seat

(Story in Adjoining Column.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

HAGUE DECLINES SENATE SEAT TO PUSH RED FIGHT

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, sworn foe of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, today turned down a chance to go to the United States senate with the statement that it is his duty to stay at home to fight the Red group which is menacing America and the people of his city, county, and state.

The appointment to the senate was offered by Senator A. Harry Moore, who recently was elected governor and who will take office tomorrow in the state house at Trenton. The senator made the offer of his vacant seat to the mayor on the occasion of the latter's 62d birthday in the midst of a throng of friends at the city hall.

Foe of C. I. O. Invaders.

Mayor Hague, who is vice chairman of the Democratic National committee, has blocked what he termed a communist invasion of Jersey City by causing the arrest of numerous C. I. O. organizers and the expulsion of others in recent months. A massmeeting of 20,000 citizens roared its approval of the mayor's methods at a big rally on the night of Jan. 6. Since then the C. I. O. and the left wing press in New York have redoubled their fight against Hague.

Called a Fitting Reward.

In offering his senatorial toga to Mayor Hague, Moore said it was a fitting reward which the Democratic party owed him. It was recalled Hague's Jersey City machine piled up the votes to elect Moore at the last election, while the rest of the state plumped for his Republican opponent, Lester Clee.

In declining to take the senate seat, Hague said it would look too much as though he were running away from a fight.

18 U. S. NAVY PLANES PREPARED FOR MASS FLIGHT TO HONOLULU

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Eighteen navy patrol planes will take off at 8 a. m. [10 a. m. Chicago time] tomorrow, if weather permits, on a massed flight to Honolulu, Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of aircraft, scouting force, announced today.

Admiral King said he expected the planes to fly the 2,570 mile great circle route in about 18 hours. Twelve of the same type planes made the hop last April in 21 hours 21 minutes. Seventeen of the planes will carry seven men each, with eight aboard the other.

WAUKEGAN CITY COUNCIL ACTS TO OUST ALL ALIENS

The Waukegan city council last night adopted a resolution requesting industries in that town to discharge 800 workers who are aliens and nonresidents and to replace them with unemployed Waukegan citizens. The resolution also contained a recommendation to State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county that he enforce an act of 1897 for the confiscation of property of aliens who have made no effort to become naturalized. The resolution was introduced by Ald. William Schaufel of the 2d ward in Waukegan.

70 MILLION MADE ILLEGALLY BY OIL FIRMS, JURY TOLD

Closing Pleas Started in Long Conspiracy Trial.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The sixteen major oil companies on trial here with 36 of their executives for conspiring to raise the price of gasoline in ten central states during 1935-'36 were accused today of making 70 million dollars illicitly by their operations, in the closing address to the jury by John Henry Lewin, special assistant to the attorney general.

The trial entered its sixteenth week and final stage today, with the prospect for the oil men that if they are acquitted the government will proceed in April to prosecute them on a second indictment charging the same conspiracy in another form, that of rigging contracts with the jobbers. The final outcome of this prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law will have an important bearing on whether the federal government will continue this method of regulating big industry or will try a new way.

Courtroom Crowded.

Judge Patrick T. Stone's courtroom was crowded today as on the opening day Oct. 4, space being filled with wives and friends of the thirty-six defendants and one hundred defense lawyers and their friends. Motions for a directed verdict of not guilty were taken under advisement. Eleven individuals and three trade publications have been dismissed as defendants during the trial.

Defense counsel will open tomorrow with T. W. Brazeau, counsel for Cities Service company, addressing the jury. He will be followed by Herbert T. Thomas of Madison, associate chief counsel, and the last plea for the defense will be made by Col. William J. Donovan, chief counsel. William P. Crawford and Hammond E. Chaffetz will close for the government. The case is expected to go to the jury by Thursday or Friday.

Points to U. S. Tradition.

"The tradition that has made this country what it is," said Lewin in his appeal for a guilty verdict, "is that there shall be a free chance in business for everybody; for the small man, the jobber, the dealer, as well as the large man, the $80,000 a year man, the oil baron. This tradition has set its face sternly for years against monopoly and organized power.

"Place the small jobber in a small town like Madison against the great corporation of the Standard Oil company, and you'll know what competition is. But there has not only been a great corporation like the Standard Oil company in this case but a combination of corporations.

"The odds have been heavy in this case. There have been 100 lawyers, the cream of the American bar, every one of them working night and day with a suggestion as to how the red herring could be drawn against the clear cut issues in the case."

Assails Defense Argument.

Lewin referred sarcastically to the defense contention that the companies' buying program was justified because it was begun under NRA and carried out the objectives of that defunct law.

"The government has power to declare war," said Lewin. "Then I suppose it follows that these oil barons can declare war in Asia if some of their boats are sunk."

"If you find that the corporations had power," he said, "and I think the record is packed with evidence of this, if they had a dominant position in the industry, and if you find a combination to exercise that power on the price level, I believe you should find the defendants guilty."

PHONE COMPANY PERSONALTY TAX VALUE IS HIGHEST

Heads Assessment List in County for 1937.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company will pay the largest 1937 personal property tax in Cook county, as it has in other recent years, it was shown yesterday by the list of multiple return assessments made public by Assessor John S. Clark.

The assessments of the telephone company and other public utilities were not affected by the use in the 1937 appraisals of federal income tax information, since the utility assessments have been based for years on information which the companies are required to file with the Illinois commerce commission.

Represents New Equipment.

The increase in the Bell company's assessment, from $47,151,317 for 1936 to $48,125,842 for 1937, reflected principally installations of new equipment to care for added business. Other utilities showed similar small increases.

Multiple returns are usually filed by companies doing business at a number of locations within the county, including utilities, chain stores, some manufacturing companies, and loop department stores, all but one of which are assessed on merchandise or other personal property held in warehouses or branch stores.

Larger Assessments Listed.

Some of the larger of these assessments, all on sworn returns, were:

A MANITOWOC GIRL MAKES GOOD; PROVES IT FOR HOME FOLKS

Manitowoc, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Guila Bustabo, born in Manitowoc 18 years ago, who is noted as a violinist, came here to play tonight for the people of her home town.

Guila Bustabo.

Miss Bustabo began playing when she was 4 years old. She has been playing concerts for 14 years, but this was her first public appearance in Manitowoc. The largest crowd ever to hear a civic concert here attended.

To many at tonight's performance it made little difference that Guila was playing the difficult Concerto in E Minor by Mendelssohn. What mattered was that they were hearing a Manitowoc girl who has become famous.

The violinist, accompanied by her mother, the former Blanche Kaderabek, arrived here Saturday. All yesterday and today relatives and old friends called on them at their hotel.

DRUNKEN DRIVER JAILED.

Allegan, Mich., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Herman Steffes, 37 years old, of Kent county, pleaded guilty to drunken driving when arraigned before Justice H. H. Cook. Sentenced to pay a fine and costs of $57.55 or serve 65 days in jail, he went to jail.

JURY HEARS HOW NOVOTNY BUILDS UP LABOR UNION

The confession of Gus Novotny, business agent and organizer for local 18 of the Upholsterers' union, that he hired two men to break windows and throw stench bombs in his unionization drive was read yesterday to a jury in Judge Joseph Sabath's Criminal court, where Novotny has been on trial for a week on malicious mischief charges. The judge had ruled the confession was voluntary and admissible.

Novotny admitted in the confession hiring Steve Straza and John Jendrach and said he was to pay Straza $10 for each broken window. Straza had testified earlier in the trial that Novotny had hired him and that he had farmed out part of the work to Jendrach.

Later when Defense Attorney Harold Levy questioned Novotny the union organizer denied hiring Straza to break windows and said Straza's story was "preposterous." He said his confession was made under coercion by the state's attorney's police.

W. P. GOMPH, 71, RETIRED FREIGHT MAN, KILLS SELF

William P. Gomph, 71 years old, a retired freight company official, ended his life yesterday by shooting himself with a .32 caliber rifle in a garage at 417 Home avenue, Oak Park, where he kept his automobile. Gomph, who has been living at 1308 Washington boulevard in the suburb, was formerly assistant chairman of the Transcontinental Freight Bureau, 516 West Jackson boulevard.

Dr. G. A. MacDowell, Gomph's physician, who kept his automobile in the same garage, told police he had just backed out his car and was waiting for Gomph when he heard the shot. He ran back to the garage and found Gomph dead on the floor with a ...le beside him.

ANOTHER CHICAGO HOUSEWIFE PRAISES ELECTRIC COOKING—

Says Mrs. Morton of Prairie Avenue

Read this actual interview with Mrs. Morton

Q. Mrs. Morton, how much does it cost you to cook with electricity?

A. Well, it's certainly not expensive. Electricity for cooking costs us less than $2 a month for our family of 4.

Q. And just how much do you use your electric range?

A. All the time, not only for cooking three meals a day, but I do quite a bit of baking besides. My husband is a field engineer, and has a hearty appetite—so I make my own cookies, pies and cakes. He likes to make muffins and cook, too.

Q. Now that you cook electrically, Mrs. Morton, do you find that your kitchen and your cooking utensils are cleaner?

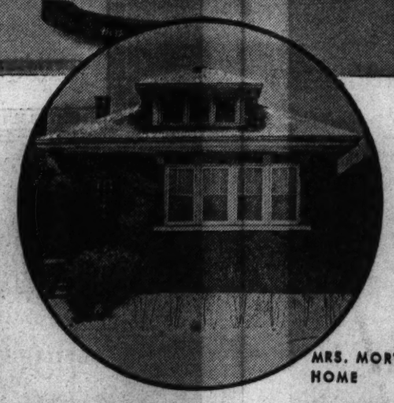
A. I certainly do! There's no soot and grime on my pans any longer, so I don't have to scrub and scour them now. In fact, I can wash them right along with the rest of my dishes. The walls and ceiling of my kitchen are cleaner, too. They look as bright as they did when they were newly painted.

Q. Do you use the Thrift Cooker much on your electric range?

A. Oh my, yes! One of our favorite dishes is baked beans cooked in the Thrift Cooker. We think they're grand. So easy to prepare, too!

Q. And do you actually save time?

A. Yes . . . in more ways than one. My electric range cooks very fast, for one thing. Then, too, with the automatic timer I can place my meat in the oven—set the automatic controls and go downtown. I know the heat will turn on at just the right time and dinner will be all cooked when I return home. That's real convenience!



MRS. MORTON'S HOME

"Even my husband likes to cook on my electric range. And it's cheap to use, too! It costs less than $2 a month for our family of 4."

—MRS. HARRY E. MORTON
9324 S. Prairie Ave.
CHICAGO

● "A few cents a day," says Mrs. Morton, "is all I pay for the operation of my electric range." . . . A few cents a day . . . but just think what that little sum does for the Morton family!

Mrs. Morton's kitchen time is reduced because of the accuracy and ease of electric cooking. Her results are always perfect, because the temperature she wants in her electric range oven is automatically maintained at the degree she sets. Her oven is heat-sealed top and bottom, as well as all four sides, with extra-thick insulation to keep the heat inside, where it belongs . . . making oven cooking fast, even, uniform and economical.

Throughout Chicago, many hundreds of women have had the same excellent results that Mrs. Morton has enjoyed. In every neighborhood, they tell the same story of the cleanliness, the speed, the ease, the low cost of cooking with electricity. Like Mrs. Morton, they have proved to themselves that electric cooking is actually CHEAP! Many families pay even less than the generous estimate of $2 to $2.50 a month.

USE OF INCOME RETURNS UPHELD IN TAX APPEALS

Board Members Support Assessor's Increases.

Stout denials by Emmet Whealan and Paul Drymalski, members of the board of tax appeals, yesterday sent flying the rumors that they intend to strike off the assessment rolls personal property valuations made by Assessor John S. Clark with the aid of federal income tax information.

The reports apparently arose from statements that the income tax returns themselves, of which Mr. Clark has copies, obtained through the state tax commission, will not be introduced as evidence in the board's hearings. However, the same end will be attained by placing on complaining taxpayers the burden of proving that the assessor's appraisal is erroneous.

"Undoubtedly," said Mr. Whealen, "Mr. Clark discovered through the income tax returns many stocks and bonds not listed previously. While he may be unable to use his source of information, which is of confidential nature, this board is placing the burden of proof to refute the assessor's figures on the complainant."

Proof Is Demanded.

In much the same vein Mr. Drymalski said:

"Persons who appear here must prove to us that they did not have, in 1937, the things the assessor found they had in 1935 through income tax returns."

It was the 1935 returns which Assessor Clark used.

"I am a taxpayer," continued Mr. Drymalski, "and it would be foolish for me or any one else to attempt to strike off valid assessments which this year offer the principal hope of lowering tax rates in Chicago."

By their action in one of the first cases heard yesterday the board indicated that it will require more than the simple denial contained in sworn complaints to overthrow the assessor's valuations.

Instructed to Prove Denial.

David Drukker, 6418 West 26th street, Berwyn, who complained of a $5,708 assessment based largely on stocks and bonds which he allegedly owned, was instructed to return with his 1936 income tax return as proof of his denial of ownership.

Edward J. McCabe, chief deputy assessor, and John Battle, head of the personal property division of the assessor's office, said at the end of the day's hearings that they had no complaint of the actions of the appeals board.

They agreed that their office had made a mistake in the original assessment which resulted in the largest reduction granted, to Massey Concrete Products company, Stickney township, from $359,507 to $30,942. The Massey company does business at ten plants, most of them outside Cook county, and its principal assets are machinery and equipment on which taxes are paid in other localities.

94 Complaints Heard.

In its first day's hearings the appeals board heard 94 complaints from Stickney and other country townships. In addition to reductions made by the board, there were reductions of $345,195 made on the recommendation of the assessor's staf, to correct errors in original appraisals. These corrections were partly balanced by increases in eleven cases, totaling $146,027.

In all but one of the cases involving increases, the property had been assessed in the wrong district, and the correction was made by striking out the assessment in one district and adding one of the same amount in the proper district.

HE GOES WRONG TWICE AFTER HIS POCKET IS PICKED

As Frank Prosser, 6320 South California avenue was boarding a car on 63d street, yesterday he felt his wallet with $15 in it being pulled from his hip pocket. He plunged toward a man moving away, seized him and yelled for police.

Then Prosser saw in the gathering crowd another man who looked just like his prisoner. He let go and grabbed the second man. Neither of his captives tried to flee.

Prosser looked in confusion from one to the other as the police arrived. At the station he discovered that neither was the pickpocket, that both are honest, law-abiding citizens. One was John Hargrave, 3323 West 61st street, and the other Russell Durham, 3310 West 62d street. Prosser apologized to them, but they didn't mind, they said; they were very pleased to meet their double for the first time.

WARNS TAXATION PERILS COLLEGES RUN BY CHURCHES

Educator Urges Revenue Law Amendment.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Taxation policies of federal and state governments are threatening the existence of independent and church controled colleges. This warning was issued yesterday at a meeting of more than 100 Lutheran and Presbyterian college executives, who said it is becoming increasingly difficult for independent colleges to compete with schools maintained by taxation.

The two denominational groups, convened as the Presbyterian College union and the National Lutheran Educational conference, are meeting in the Stevens hotel prior to the opening tomorrow of the National Conference of Church Related Colleges and Thursday's sessions of the American Association of Colleges.

Cites Examples in States.

The taxation question was raised by Dr. H. J. Arnold of Wittenberg college, Springfield, O., and was answered by Dr. Gould Wickey of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National conference of Church Related Colleges. Dr. Wickey said that crucial is the only word to describe a situation growing out of tendencies to levy taxes on gifts, property, and income of churches and church institutions.

"Yale unversity is fighting a gallant battle against efforts to tax her property and income," said Dr. Wickey. "In Nebraska three efforts were made to levy taxes of this sort against church and voluntary colleges and at the same time general taxes for politically controled education were increased. In Indiana church and voluntary colleges were called on to fight similar tax bills, which would have crushed them.

"American churches alone, to say nothing of independent colleges and universities, are saving taxpayers far in excess of $50,000,000 annually by their maintenance of higher educational institutions."

Favors Pending Tax Amendment.

Dr. Wickey outlined an amendment now in the hands of the senate finance committee which, he said, would increase college income through income tax deductions on revocable trusts.

"The effect of this amendment, if passed by congress," he said, "would be so far reaching that not only many church and independent colleges and voluntary welfare interprises would be saved, but taxes would be held down for all educational and welfare necessities."

The Presbyterian College union yesterday developed plans to raise $10,000,000 for its fifty-four member colleges.

236 APPLICATIONS FOR 1938 TAVERN LICENSES RECEIVED IN ONE DAY

Louis Rixmann, city collector, yesterday received 236 more applications for tavern licenses, making the year's total 9,056. Police Commissioner James P. Allman said his men will continue to close taverns not having this year's license. Three tavern keepers were arraigned before Judge Lambert K. Hayes yesterday for operating without licenses.

William White, owner of a tavern at 1761 Lawrence avenue, was fined $100 and costs for not having a license and a motion to vacate the fine was set for Jan. 24 when he must produce a license. Edward Forrest, owner of a liquor store at 2624 West 59th street, was granted a continuance until Jan. 20 when he showed the court a receipt to prove he had mailed his license fee to the city collector on Jan. 14. Christopher Dagis, operating a tavern at 2957 West 63d street, was escorted to Rixmann's office to buy the license.

OVER-EXPANSION

By CALEB

SOMEDAY someone, for the benefit of young men and women in business, should compile a simple list of fatal human weaknesses which bring about failure. Business history is rife with object lessons. We need only someone to place an accusing finger on basic traits or weaknesses which have led to the distresses.

One of the first warnings, for instance, to the young business person should be against over-expansion.

A free society which allows individual initiative to go as far as it can develops distresses as a result of successes—and excesses.

To illustrate, in 1920 there were no radio companies in the United States. In 1928 there were nearly 700. Then came the storm! In 1932 there were approximately 50. Two of them were equipped to make all the radios being bought in the United States at that time!

One radio company, during the heyday, increased its volume from three to sixty million dollars in one year.

One company, determining to make a companion product, arranged for additional capital. When it sold its stock to bankers, it had no plant and no product perfected. The stock was listed and went to four times its price to the bankers—and still there was no plant and no product. That was in 1929. What happened to the stock is too tragic to tell.

Another radio company sold stock to the banks. It was listed at a price 50 per cent higher. The next day it doubled. In sixty days it was almost three times more than double. Then it shrank —88 per cent—suddenly!

These are phases of the results of over-expansion. Over-expansion is a curse in terms of big companies or little companies, big jobs or little jobs.

A man has a prosperous small restaurant in a twenty-foot store building. He saves money and opens a white and shiny palace for food purveyance on the next corner. One year later he may be broke, and it doesn't take a depression to do it.

Lawyers, merchants, bakers, bankers—none are immune. Great corporations over-expand and so do small private enterprises.

Many an individual who should do his present job better, far better, wants more job to do when he is not ready for it. Some individuals spread themselves over too many interests, ambitions, and aspirations. It is better to do a smaller job well—really well.

FORGOTTEN MAN OF JAIL TELLS STORY OF $35,282

Ex-Broker Prochnow Fights Return to Cell.

Raymond E. Prochnow, former La Salle street broker, disclosed yesterday for the first time in a court petition what happened to the $35,282 he withheld from an estate entrusted to his care. The money, he said, was liquidated by a bank to satisfy a loan.

Raymond Prochnow.

Prochnow gave this explanation in a petition filed in the Circuit court which seeks to prevent his return to the county jail where he became known as a forgotten prisoner because of a three year incarceration.

In November, 1936, Judge Harry M. Fisher freed Prochnow on a writ of habeas corpus, holding that he had served enough time to satisfy the requirements of the law. The Illinois Appellate court last Nov. 10 reversed this ruling, termed Prochnow a confessed embezzler and ordered him back to jail, but instructed the Circuit court to open a new inquiry and call witnesses to confirm or deny his statements.

Admitted Taking Money.

Prochnow, during his many attempts to get out of jail, admitted taking the money from the estate of Attorney William Garnett, who died in 1930. The broker, also, always contended he was unable to repay the sum.

Yesterday Prochnow said he placed Garnett's securities with those of his own with the Central Trust company to obtain a $100,000 credit. In 1928, he said, the company disposed of the securities in liquidating the loan. Since then the business of the Central Trust has been taken over by the City National Bank and Trust company.

Prochnow also asserted that he had always answered all questions concerning disposal of this property asked by Mrs. Marian G. Wilson, daughter of Attorney Garnett. The case, Prochnow contended, is purely one for the entry of a monetary decree.

Seeks Monetary Decree.

In his petition the erstwhile broker said he is willing to have a decree for the full amount entered against him. Otherwise, his bill declared, Prochnow faces the prospect of spending his declining years in jail.

"This is not a case of a debtor-creditor relationship," said Thomas G. Vent, attorney for Mrs. Wilson, "for which a six months' sentence on a malice count is the maximum. Prochnow was prosecuted under the citation act which requires that a person who fraudulently appropriated funds shall remain in jail until he pays."

The case has been assigned to Judge Fisher.

PRODIGAL SON SEIZED ON CHRISTMAS DAY GETS LIFE IN PRISON

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Hubbard and William L. Landon, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

Ben Savdy, Harry Carlson, and George Johnson, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Mario Vinci, the prodigal son who was arrested at a Christmas dinner in his father's home at 1909 Grand avenue, was found guilty yesterday at a bench trial by Judge Frances Allegretti and was sentenced to life imprisonment as a habitual criminal. He is 23 years old.

Vinci was the last of the gang of four that held up the Pow Wow café at Belmont avenue and River road, Franklin Park, in November of 1936. There were 150 patrons in the place at the time, including a policeman, Wilfred Woodmaster.

Seeing an opportunity, Woodmaster drew his gun. Patsy di Chiari, 20 years old, one of the bandit gang, was shot and killed. Two patrons were wounded.

In a few days Michael LaRocco and Charles Cantanazzo were arrested for the robbery. They named Vinci. Both came up for trial and were sentenced to one year to life in prison.

DETAILS OF NEW STRATOSPHERE FLEET DISCLOSED

Big TWA Airliners Will Be Ready in July.

Details of a fleet of large new stratosphere airliners that are to be delivered next July to Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., were made public here yesterday by Jack Frye, president of the air line. The new ships are four motored, all-metal monoplanes similar in outline to the army air corps' four engined "flying fortress" bombers.

Accommodating 33 passengers as day planes and 16 in berths as sleeper ships, Frye said the new ships are expected to cruise at 200 miles an hour and have a top speed of 242 miles an hour. Unusually luxurious chairs and berths are being provided, he said. Beds will be 6 feet 8 inches long and will be placed crosswise in the cabin instead of lengthwise, as in smaller sleepers now in service.

Ready for High Level Flying.

A feature of the new planes, which are being completed at the Boeing Aircraft plant, Seattle, Wash., will be their facilities for high level flying, Frye asserted. The engines will be doubly supercharged to deliver their power at levels up to 30,000 feet. Both the pilots and passengers' cabins will be sealed so they can be heated and supplied with oxygen to keep all aboard comfortable up to levels between 15,000 and 20,000 feet.

"We will, however, operate these ships at normal levels—around 10,000 feet—until research attendant upon plans for carrying passengers at high levels has been completed," the air line president said.

Awaits Pan-American Data.

"Two supercharged four motored Boeings, identical in construction to TWA's fleet, are now being built for Pan-American Airways," he explained. "In these ships Pan-American is to carry out 500 hours of experimental high level flight without passengers. Engineering data from these tests will be available to us and if it is found to be feasible we will immediately install altitude conditioning on our ships."

The engines of the new planes are 1,220 horse power Wright cyclones, providing 4,880 horse power for take-off. The planes will weigh 42,000 pounds each.

A Plain Talk about WINTER VACATION COSTS and Why the Best Costs Less!

Going to treat yourself and family to a Florida vacation this winter? Made your plans yet?

Before you do, we would like the privilege of talking or writing to you personally, answering your questions and giving you the valuable information we have accumulated—facts and figures on vacation costs—and a new idea in resort hotel service that will provide the best of living for you, expand your opportunities to embrace all the fun and STILL SAVE YOU A BIG SLICE OF VACATION EXPENSES!

Staying at a "low-priced" hotel isn't always a wise economy. What you get for your money, not only in living accommodations but in other services and privileges, is the modern standard for judging a resort hotel. If you "save" money on your hotel rate, how much more do you have to put out for your vacation enjoyments?

The revolutionary new concept of what a resort hotel can be was given to the public by two of America's greatest resort hotels —the Miami Biltmore, center of the wintertime world, in Coral Gables (Miami) and the Roney Plaza, America's finest oceanfront hotel, in Miami Beach. It is this unique policy of guest entertainment, courtesies and economies we would like you to know about.

Let us give you just one example of how THE BEST COSTS LESS, when you select the Roney Plaza or the Miami Biltmore as your holiday host. That expensive item of transportation—taxi fares, sightseeing and other costs just to go places—isn't generally considered by vacationists in computing their budgets in advance, but they are obliged to reckon with the actual fact when they have to dig down for fares. Indeed, local transportation, our research shows, amounts to about one-third of a vacation's costs! This expense is entirely eliminated for you at these hotels! Wherever you want to go—to the races, theaters, nightclubs, shopping centers, even down to the Florida keys for fishing—there will be a big comfortable aerocar (auto lounge car) at the door of the Miami Biltmore or the Roney Plaza to take you there and bring you back without charge. This is a private transportation system, operated on regular schedules, day and night, for the convenience, comfort and economical saving of our guests.

And there are numerous other courtesies—such as membership privileges, after approval by the membership committees, in three of America's finest sports clubs, which would cost you thousands in initiation fees elsewhere. These clubs provide exceptional facilities for golf, fishing and surf bathing.

We have extended our guest service almost to your door. In our New York and Chicago offices are staffs of trained vacation specialists to answer all your questions about Florida, vacation costs, and THE MOST AMAZING VACATION EVER CONCEIVED. They have the figures and data, compiled in exhaustive research and surveys, which you will be interested in knowing.

If you live in these cities or in the metropolitan areas of Boston, Philadelphia or Washington, one of our experts will be glad to have a personal chat with you, advise you and answer your questions, without obligating you in any way. If you are not in these sections, send your inquiries to these offices and they will answer your individual questions, give your vacation plans the benefit of their thorough information, by personal correspondence.

WOMAN PLEADS HER OWN CASE BEFORE A JURY

Plaintif Asks $50,000 from Surface Lines.

Yesterday was the first day Judge W. A. Damron of Harrisburg sat here in the Superior court to aid the local judges who are short handed due to the death of three colleagues. But his courtroom was packed.

For the first time in recent years a plaintif was pleading his own case before a jury. Many of the spectators were lawyers interested in seeing how a nonlegal mind met legal technicalities.

Miss Margaret Marie Fischer was the object of their attention. Miss Fischer, who is 49 years old and lives at 2821 West Cermak road, is suing the Chicago Surface Lines for $50,000 damages.

Damaged by Misdirection, She Says.

A self-styled music, fine arts, and dancing teacher, Miss Fischer alleged she boarded a north bound Wells street surface car on June 29, 1932. The conductor, Miss Fischer said, informed her the car would carry her to her destination in the 1800 block north, so she did not take a transfer.

When the car turned at the 400 block, Miss Fischer related, she asked for and was refused a transfer. Unable to take another car for lack of funds, Miss Fischer said she started walking. Her left foot gave way, she said, and she fell, incurring bruises and wounds to her physical, nervous, and mental systems.

Picks Jury in Record Time.

Unlearned in the subtleties lawyers use to determine if a juror will be satisfactory, Miss Fischer selected the jury in record time. Occasionally she took a few leaves from the questioning of Erwin W. Roemer, attorney for the transit company.

Judge Damron and Attorney Roemer gallantly brushed aside technicalities. Instead of insisting that Miss Fischer ask herself a question and then answer it in direct testimony they permitted her to tell a straight narrative.

Miss Fischer, however, perturbed both of the men when she attempted to tell the jurors that the company gave her too little in 1928 when it made a $50 settlement after a motorman's stool fell on her foot.

Refuses to Identify Signature.

She confused them even further in refusing to say if a signature on one of the several affidavits drawn up in unlegal language was her own.

The jury was excused. Judge Damron tried again for half an hour. Miss Fischer still refused. In a resigned manner Judge Damron said, "O, well," called in the jury, and testimony was resumed. Today Miss Fischer must present the doctors who treated her, Judge Damron ruled.

Two youths and a girl, 17 years old, who disappeared from their homes six days ago, were held yesterday by police in connection with the theft of an automobile and a series of robberies. Those held are Marjorie Stark, 2110 Milwaukee avenue; Jack Giesler, 1841 North Washtenaw avenue, and Wesley Hare, 2573 Lyndale avenue. The boys were arrested in a stolen car Sunday and they named Marjorie, who admitted she had been along when they committed a "few robberies."

La Salle Council Puzzled by $49,904 WPA Gift

La Salle, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—City councilmen were perplexed tonight by a telegram from Senator William H. Dieterich [D. Ill.] stating $49,904 in WPA funds had been allocated the city for streets and alleys improvements. Mayor H. M. Orr said no application for such funds on such a project had been made.

SEN. DIETERICH ANNOUNCES HE WILL RUN AGAIN

Tells Plans Before Mayor Sees President.

BY PARKE BROWN.

United States Senator William H. Dieterich issued a formal announcement yesterday of his candidacy for renomination in the Illinois Democratic primary on April 12.

His statement was written in Washington last Saturday and was mailed from there for publication in the morning papers today. In this way its appearance in the newspapers will come just a few hours before National Committeeman P. A. Nash and Mayor Kelly of Chicago are duc to call at the White House to see President Roosevelt, planning among other things to discuss with him the Illinois political situation.

Horner to See Roosevelt.

The Dieterich publicity also will precede by approximately two days Gov. Horner's attendance at a White House dinner on Thursday night, an occasion thought to have been created to provide an opportunity for the President again to make known his wishes concerning the Illinois senatorship.

Thus the timing of the announcement served to throw both the Cook county and the downstate Democratic organizations into a state of uncertainty. This probably will exist until the two White House visits have disclosed definitly the strength of the President's desire to see Dieterich reelected and the extent to which the Illinoisans will comply with that wish.

Senator Dieterich's announcement follows:

"Having given the matter serious consideration, I deem it my duty to the people of my state and to the national administration to present myself as a candidate at the coming primary.

"In making this announcement I want to reassert my faith in the leadership of President Roosevelt and to assure my people that, if nominated and elected, I will remain loyal in my support of the policies of the administration.

"I am willing that the people of the state should judge me by the record I have made in this important office. I ask to be judged by my record of loyalty to my friends, to my party, to the principles of democracy, and to the interests of my state."

The senator's pledge of continued loyalty was construed in Chicago to refer to his support of the Supreme court packing bill—his noncommittal attitude on the bill was terminated by the appointment of two Illinoisans to federal bench honors at his request—and to his vote for the confirmation of the appointment of Hugo Black as a justice of the United States Supreme court. He also was active in the fight which blocked an investigation of the Ku Klux Klan.

In the minds of experienced political observers there was little doubt that if President Roosevelt tomorrow and again on Thursday demands unqualifiedly that the Illinois leaders support Dieterich they will think twice before even arguing.

Illinois, like other states, is dependent on the will of the President for vast amounts of relief money, including WPA funds as well as for routine assistance in road building and other projects. The leaders themselves are dependent on his pleasure in matters of patronage, which now, with the pay rolls swollen to several times their normal size, is more important than ever.

Horner Opposed to Dieterich.

Politically the situation in which Nash and Mayor Kelly find themselves as a result of Dieterich's announcement is more fortunate than Gov. Horner's. They have not committed themselves on the Dieterich question, but the governor has publicly declared his hostility toward the senator and has said repeatedly that his downstate organization will have its own candidate for senator.

Before taking the Capitol Limited for Washington yesterday afternoon, Mayor Kelly showed his surprise that Dieterich announced himself prior to the White House conferences.

"I was not in the senator's confidence," he said. "Some time ago he consulted Mr. Nash and me on whether he should announce himself and we advised him against it at that time. Since then he has not consulted us and we had not expected him to do anything until he had talked with us again."

"Do you think the White House has promised him its support?" the mayor was asked.

"We have no way of telling that," he said, and then added: "We may know more about that if we see the President."

The mayor said he will meet Nash in Washington today and that they then will ask for an appointment to see the President. He said he had planned to go to Washington on city matters and that Nash agreed to return from Florida by way of the capital and meet him there.

Gov. Horner refused to talk about the Dieterich announcement until after the White House dinner.

OIL WELL IN TEXAS TOWN BURNS FOR 12 HOURS; LOSS $50,000

Kilgore, Tex., Jan. 18 [Tuesday].—[Special.]—Firemen early today stopped a fire which had blazed for 12 hours in a wild oil well opposite the city hall. After firemen had smothered the flames with chemicals professional wild well fighters crawled into the casing top and shut off the valve, stopping the flow of oil. More than $50,000 damage was caused by the fire.

Full of gas, the well blew in yesterday in the course of drilling operations. The gas caught fire from a laundry boiler and was fed by an oil flow of 200 gallons an hour. Five patients in a hospital were removed before the building burned. Furniture valued at $25,000 was destroyed in a warehouse, and a café and a paint store were burned.

More than 500 oil wells are within the limits of Kilgore, which has had two major oil fires before. In 1931 a well burned for 22 days and seven men were killed. Two men died in a fire the following year.

THURSDAY IS LAST DAY TO REGISTER SUBURB VOTERS

Thursday is the last day residents of Chicago's Cook county suburbs, not under the jurisdiction of the board of election commissioners, have to register for the April primary, county officials warned yesterday. Registration has been in progress at village halls since Dec. 6. Although precinct polling places were open for two days last fall, they said, that registration is still far below the vote in the last election. Voters may register in all suburbs, except the following, which are under jurisdiction of the election board. Chicago Heights, Berwyn, Harvey, Cicero, Summit, Evergreen Park, Stickney, Morton Grove, Elmwood Park, and Niles Center.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

"Shall we get MARRIED? . . . or shall we DANCE?"

Mike and Lora started off as casually as that. An "adventure in utter marriage," someone called it. Very gay, very adult, very sophisticated. Then one day the novelty wore off. Mike went off to Mexico with someone else. And Lora suddenly knew it was too late to tell him about his son-to-be. A short story.

When is a man TOO OLD TO KEEP A JOB?

Are employers prejudiced against middle-aged men? What makes a man old, anyway—his years, or is it something in the man himself? What are the signs of approaching old-fogyism? Here's an article for every man who has a job, and wants to keep it. (You'll even want to file this away and read it again years from now, for it tells how old-timers can be real assets to their companies.)

ANARCHY AT SEA.

Conditions in the American merchant marine now being exposed through a senatorial inquiry are the most amazing and outrageous in our history. Nothing like them exists in any other shipping in the world. No shipping could tolerate them and survive.

They have been summarized in the evidence of an American shipmaster whose name is not published because he fears that if it were made known his life would be endangered. There is too much reason in his and other testimony to believe his fear is justified. He asserts that the American merchant marine is infested with thugs, thieves, dope runners, gamblers, drunkards, and racketeers. The discipline essential to the safety of lives and property upon the sea is obviously impossible in such a situation and has broken down. An alarming glimpse of it was given when the S. S. President Hoover went aground near Formosa. Its passengers, landed from the ship on a remote island, had to look to Japanese police for protection from disorderly American sailors.

A month before this the then chairman of the maritime commission, now ambassador designate to Great Britain, Mr. Joseph Kennedy, publicly declared that "order and discipline have largely disappeared. Passengers are all too frequently subjected to insolent and impertinent treatment; vessels have been delayed by the frequent use of the 'sitdown' and 'quickie' at the last minute before sailing time. Shippers and travelers realize that disorderly vessels are unsafe vessels. Safety at sea is based upon discipline and competency of personnel more than quality of equipment. A ship is no place for divided authority."

The American people have been taxed for hundreds of millions to build up and maintain a merchant marine. They have made these sacrifices on behalf of the economic welfare of the nation and on behalf of the national security. But their huge investment is being destroyed.

What is responsible for this destruction? American seamen have the highest wages of any sailors in the world and conditions of labor unsurpassed in any shipping. The American people are taxed to pay heavy subsidies to maintain these wage scales in spite of the handicap it imposes on American commerce in competition with that of other nations. Is their reward more efficient service? Their reward is insubordination, arrogance, and violence.

Who is responsible for this chaos? Chairman Kennedy declares the radical unions are responsible. He means, in plain English, the C. I. O. and its allies, agitators who pretend to represent labor but who have fomented disorder on the west coast and the east which has cost millions of dollars not merely to the public but to the misguided wage earners who follow their leadership. Bridges, the chief mischief maker, is an alien communist whose object is to subvert American institutions and a protégé of Secretary Perkins. The dominance of the C. I. O. by men of the same kidney is notorious.

Lawless violence in American shipping has reached a climax. It is destroying the American merchant marine and the livelihood of tens of thousands of American workers on land and sea. Either order and discipline must be restored or every dollar spent upon our shipping and for the maintenance of American standards on the sea is worse than thrown away. It is a subsidy of destruction.

THE COST OF REGULATION.

The survey of the tax structure that confronts any Illinois truck owner who wishes to drive his vehicle over a state boundary, as published in THE TRIBUNE last week, furnishes splendid material for a study of the effect of government regulation and regimentation on both transportation and industry. Logical thought will run somewhat as follows:

Fifty years ago congress decided that there was sufficient irregularity in the assessment of railway freight rates to warant governmental interference. The carriers' arrogance had made them extremely unpopular, so the country took its first step in Fascism—the passage of the interstate commerce act.

The effect was beneficial for a matter of twenty years because the newly created interstate commerce commission was not clothed with the prerogatives of management, but this did not suit the more radical elements. The Hepburn act was passed to place railway rate making in the hands of the commission. Rate construction in the railway world, of course, corresponds with price fixing in industry.

The effect of this tightened regulation has been disastrous. Under private management the science of railroading had made active progress, just as the automotive, aeronautical, and radio industries are doing today. Under government management it became static—just as a government department the immigration, customs, or postoffice services. Its managers became automatons, their actions subject to the theories of politically appointed commissioners. Did we say theories? Guesswork is the proper word. The government was in the saddle and all initiative was stifled.

With this background the railroads were in no condition to withstand the onslaught of the next development in transportation, the virile, privately managed automotive industry. They lost heavily in trafic and have been slowly folding ever since. Thousands of branch lines and many small railways have been scrapped. The abandoned mileage is increasing annually.

For aid against this new aggressor, railways naturally turned to legislation. Why not? Politics had been their stepfather. The effect of this policy is most evident in the taxes and regulations applied by the various states to the passage of trucks over their boundaries. Where railway influence is strongest, taxes are the highest. On top of this state regulation the last congress passed the motor carrier act, which is slowly but surely sapping the energy of highway transportation and depriving it of initiative and flexibility.

The public has regularity of rates—if it can cash that at a bank! The commission-made rates run across level prairies, over mountain tops and across rivers with a fine disregard for geographical advantages that affect the cost of service. Business men know just what freights their competitors are paying, even if that privilege is doubling the transportation bill of the nation. A few more vigorous managers may reflect, however, on how far America has wandered from that virile stage when each community sold its wares far and wide, confident in the superiority of the merchandise and its ability to arrange distribution as cheaply as the other fellow.

A HARA-KIRI KNIFE FOR MR. EDEN.

Makato Watanabe, a Japanese patriot, gave Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British ambassador in Tokio, an ancient samurai dagger designed for the ceremony of hara-kiri. Watanabe asked Sir Robert to send the gift to Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary. Some misapprehension arose and both Sir Robert and Watanabe hastened to remove it by agreeing that the knife had not been offered and, of course, had not been received for the uses traditionally attached to it. Mr. Eden was to hang it up as a relic or keep it on his desk for opening his official mail, much of which is now of Japanese origin.

It is improbable that Mr. Eden has even faintly considered that he has come to any such pass as might require the ceremonial use of the samurai dagger. It is not the British habit to terminate a job of governmental work in that fashion. One rather retires to a country place and writes his memoirs, enjoying life and a dish of tea in the afternoon with the countess of Wrex and the highest neighborhood Church of England dignitary.

Mr. Eden would concede no doubt that the spirit of the times is distressing and that the empire must yet do quite a staggering amount of muddling through, but that as muddling goes his own management of foreign affairs, under both Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Chamberlain, has been within the best traditions. He has been outmaneuvered by Mussolini in Africa and by Japan in Asia. The Italians have planted what they call an empire at the headwaters of the Nile and on Britain's Mediterranean trade route they are making all the trouble they can. That is distressing and it is worse for coming from the Italians, for whom, as a people, the English have always had the most romantic sympathy.

Mr. Eden has been the most devoted friend of collective security and its guardian, the league of nations. He has seen the Geneva organization retire with its Angora cat and its Peke to the easy chair of its private room, with the curtains drawn so that the distracted old lady will not be tempted even to peek out of the window at what is making all the noise in the street. If Mr. Eden had been either one of the Pitts he probably would have bribed Hitler magnificently to break with Italy and come to terms with the soviets, and would have persuaded Stalin to save Britain's stake in China by mobbing Japan on three fronts. Possibly he has tried to do this. It may have been beyond his pitch.

It is not sound British policy to organize all the strongest and most mischievous fellows against Britain, but to get the matter arranged the contrary way about. Mr. Eden's maneuverings in Ethiopia as their net result have made him the host to the fugitive Haile Selassie, who, sojourning in England, still hopes that something can be done for him. Chiang Kai-shek has not yet been reduced to residence in Kent or Cornwall, but that is not completely out of the future. However, Mr. Eden, although he is unable to drive between Italy and Germany, although he doesn't get much consolation out of the condition of his ally France, and has not been able to throw the Russian Red army at Japan, has procured the attendance of three American cruisers for the unexpectedly pretentious dedication, next month, of some docks at Singapore. They are very light cruisers, but he may think they are birds returning to the ark.

Here in the United States we do not know what Mr. Eden and his chief, Mr. Chamberlain, have been led to expect and would like to have some pertinent inquiries set afoot to find out. If an American alliance is to be Mr. Eden's triumphant fulfilment of his career the American people would like to have information as early as possible in order that they might give as much thought as they can to their own interests and discover what is supposed to be their own stake in the matter. There might be more easiness here if a few British cruisers were unexpectedly to appear to help out at the dedication of a dock in the Philippines.

Mr. Watanabe may be anticipating a historical verdict, but Mr. Eden's course is not fully run. He may have something up his sleeve. We hope it isn't the United States.

A DANGEROUS GIFT.

[Detroit Free Press.]

American democracy, according to a noted American educator, will be aided more by scientific thought than by emotional oratory.

As one looks back over the contributions which scientific thought has made to this country, and compares them with the contributions made by oratory, there is little ground for disagreement with this prediction.

Science deals with facts, which provide the only sure foundation for a national structure.

The man who has the "dangerous gift of oratory" doesn't have to bother with facts—and seldom does bother with them.

As the magician fools the public through the eye so does the orator fool it through the ear and the emotions.

A glib tongue is frequently more to be feared than a strong arm.

Without having to convince by force of demonstrable truth, when he can sway audiences by the music of his voice, your silver-tongued orator is as apt to lead his listeners away from soundness and sanity in action as he is to lead them to it.

The soap-boxers prove it.

REMEMBERED METAPHOR.

Napier Wilt, lecturing on the decades of American literature in the University of Chicago downtown series, recalled when he, at that time an undergraduate, got hold of a copy of Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" and gave it to one of his professors to read. The professor gave it back with the comment that it was "prose cut up into stove wood language."

The period 1911-1920, as summarized by Mr. Wilt, a period close to all of us except the very young, gives rise to a kind of nostalgic pleasure. Isadora Duncan, head lifted, scarlet tunic flying, dancing to the "Marseillaise" . . . The Russian ballet. . . . People quoting Edna St. Vincent Millay and Carl Sandburg and Robert Frost, and reading D. H. Lawrence and Van Wyck Brook's "America's Coming of Age." . . . Sherwood Anderson wrote his first novel in this period, and Willa Cather. Hergesheimer wrote "Three Black Pennies," and people began to read James Branch Cabell—"although up to that time no one had read him except Theodore Roosevelt and Mark Twain." . . . New art galleries were opened; the Cubist exhibit in New York and Duchamps' "Nude Descending a Staircase" were widely discussed. Freudian psychology was new. New magazines were started—The New Masses, The Liberator, The Seven Arts, The Little Review, Poetry Magazine—and Mencken and Nathan were editing Smart Set.

"But the revolt was of a few," Mr. Wilt said. "The Saturday Evening Post and the Atlantic Monthly were widely read by the majority, not The New Masses or The Liberator, and the best sellers were Harold Bell Wright, Gene Stratton Porter and Mary Roberts Rinehart. The universities felt little of this revolt. . . . Browning was still considered definitly new and Whitman was not yet respectable."

DISCREET AS THE FLOWER.

With delicate ease the hyacinth
Opens upon the April air,
Giving no hint of how the roots
Strained in the dark to lift it there.

So should a poem blossom forth,
Discreet as the flower in its art
Concerning the nether travailing

ANOTHER SHAW SARCASM.

Another—and hitherto unprinted, we hope, Shaw story comes from James Finan, who was in town for the Braggiotti-Clow wedding. Mr. Finan shared a studio in Woodstock with Lawrence Tompkins, the sculptor, last summer. Tompkins told of a visit Shaw made to his studio in England just after he had written "St. Joan." He had the manuscript with him and read parts of it aloud.

"Why did you write about Joan of Arc?" Tompkins asked Shaw.

THE YOUNGER SISTER of Kate Meehan, upon seeing a picture of Mahatma Gandhi, inquired, "Will Charlie McCarthy look like that when he gets old?"

Which brings to mind that a young woman sitting beside Author and Playwright Charles MacArthur at a party the other evening thought all along he was the Charlie McCarthy she had heard so much about.

Relayed by the same Kate Meehan:

SERUM AIDS THE FIGHT AGAINST PNEUMONIA.

DESPITE all that has been done to control pneumonia, that malady still wields a wicked scythe. The disease has been called the friend of the aged, because blissful unconsciousness generally beclouds suffering. But when it cuts down those in the prime of life we look upon the infection as prefacing tragedy.

Within late years, however, much progress has been made in the development of a serum which will save the body from the poisonous products of the causative germs. As we know, the ailment is brought on by pneumococci, but strangely enough these organisms are not all alike; in fact, bacteriologists now recognize 32 varieties which behave as though they were separate and distinct microbes.

One difficulty in treating the disease, therefore, is that a serum which will neutralize the poison of type I. pneumococcus will be useless, for example, against type VII., and the search has been proceeding rapidly toward the manufacture of a special and individual neutralizing compound for every known form. A way has been devised in which this material can be purified and concentrated and we now possess a fluid obtained from the blood of horses which is valuable in the five types—namely, I., II., V., VII., and VIII.

More recently still it was discovered that the blood of rabbits is particularly potent in producing antitoxin. In fact, the plasma [fluid part of the blood] of this animal—even though unconcentrated—is twice as strong as the most powerful horse serum. Another advantage accrues from the size of the chemical particles, which in rabbits' blood are much smaller and hence more able to penetrate the tissues.

The first job of the physician in a case of pneumonia is to determine what classification of the disease germ is causing the disturbance. By means of the Neufeld reaction a rapid method is available. The sputum is checked against rabbit anti-serum and the group can thus be determined in less than an hour.

Of the several forms of the microbes numbers I. and II. are responsible for about 60 per cent of all cases. They are acquired readily by contact and no one should linger unnecessarily in the vicinity of an afflicted person. Nurses caring for these patients frequently become carriers and if the victim is at home those in the family are likely to be infected. At least 20 per cent of all contacts—if examined carefully—will be found to harbor the bacteria within the throat and nasal passages, even though they are not ill. Fortunately, however, many of us possess a positive immunity to both I. and II. and we retain that as long as we keep resistance at a normal level. Most cases develop following the common cold with an accompanying infection of the respiratory passages and this is the reason that we must be careful to protect our noses and throats against inflammation. Every one knows what to do if a cold comes on. The trouble lies in the fact that we fail to heed the warning.

But horse antitoxin treatment is not without some danger and only a skilled physician should resort to it. In the first place, any one who has a history of asthma, hay fever, rose colds, or who develops allergic symptoms when in the vicinity of this animal cannot take the serum. Furthermore, one who has had an injection of horse antitoxin from seven days to three months previously must not even be tested. It is wise first to try out its effects before giving the full dose by injecting a small quantity beneath the skin and observing the reaction.

But this is not all there is to the story of pneumonia. It means a fight to conserve the patient's strength, to support and relieve the heart of all the labor possible, with good nursing, plenty of rest, and a moderate amount of nourishment.

Oxygen is life saving and is administered via a nasal catheter, a tent, or in the ideal oxygen room where the percentage of the gas, humidity, temperature, etc., are under accurate and constant control.

But why not avoid pneumonia—rather than be obliged to combat it?

X-RAY IS SUGGESTED.

L. S. writes: I am 19 years old and have been troubled with intercostal neuralgia for several years. The pain starts in the left shoulder around the heart and travels to the right shoulder, up into the neck and sometimes down the left arm. Sometimes I feel suddenly ill at work and I seem to feel a pressure in my head besides the above symptoms. Isn't there anything I can do to get relief? Would you advise hot applications or rubbing with liniment? I have a heart murmur and often faint in hot weather when I have to stand for any length of time.

REPLY.

Are you sure that the pain is neuralgia? With your other symptoms, a circulatory disturbance is suggested, possibly some type of heart abnormality that developed with birth. I would suggest an X-ray of the chest—with a special study of the circulation. Check also for the presence of a cervical rib. Chloroform liniment may give temporary relief.

X-RAY CAN TELL.

R. D. writes: Is infection in one of the antrums of the nose curable? I have had three washings and the pus has diminished, but the condition is not cured. Should I have an X-ray? Is operation advisable?

REPLY.

A long standing sinus infection is exceedingly difficult to cure, but if the condition is of fairly recent occurrence, operation offers a chance of relief. Your nose specialist can judge of the extent and importance of the focus of infection by means of an X-ray picture.

ABOUT BLADDER STONES.

C. A. P. writes: What is the cause of stones forming in the bladder? Is this serious? How can they be removed or dissolved?

REPLY.

We will have an article on this subject soon.

These concretions are likely to form if there is an interference with the free outflow of urine or if it contains a high percentage of mineral matter or bacteria. Diet and vitamins play an important rôle.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa.—Tremendous interest has been focused here upon Lord Lloyd's recent speech in London when he referred to the "perplexing and important problems" of Africa as a whole, which, he said, were closely related to "the enormous importance of South Africa to the British empire" and to the fact that "there had never been a moment when South Africa realized more than it did today the value of British naval defense."

In other words, the Cape route between Britain and India is seen, in certain hypothetical circumstances, to retain all the importance it enjoyed before the opening of the Suez canal. In those days the Cape of Good Hope was the halfway house to India, flanked on the one side by St. Helena and on the other by Mauritius.

The change began in 1935 when Mussolini ordered the invasion and subjection of Abyssinia. By 1936 Abyssinia was one scissor blade, Libya [taken by Italy from Turkey in 1911] was the other. Between the blades lay Egypt and the Sudan. One successful "cut" across, and Britain and France would have to give up, at least for a time, the use of the Suez canal.

Britain has moved quickly. Even while the Italians were still fighting in Abyssinia Britain was making plans for the defenses of Mombasa and Kilindini, on Africa's east coast. If, added to an Italian Abyssinia, Germany were to recover Tanganyika, the position of the British colony of Kenya would be difficult indeed.

Similarly on the west coast, Freetown, in Sierra Leone, is being put into a state of defense. At the head, in front of the triangle thus formed, lies Simonstown, the naval base near Cape Town. And on the flanks—still British possessions—are St. Helena and Mauritius, which may come into their own again as supply bases and perhaps even as garrisons and depots for troops.

It is recalled that in 1806 the secretary to the then governor of the cape wrote of the "vast importance" of the cape to England "in a military point of view." He also reported on its great value as a naval station, "first as a port for refreshing and refitting ships," secondly "as a station for ships of war commanding the entrance to the Indian seas," and finally "as affording by its geographical position a ready communication with every part of the globe."

The technique of war may have changed, but geography has not.

So it happens that Cape Town's docks are being enlarged and the defenses of the peninsula put in order.

UNPAID BILLS.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About six and a half years ago we closed our restaurant owing several people. Among these was a meat market, who kept sending duns. My wife wrote and told them that we were broke, but that if we ever had the money we would pay it. Now they are demanding payment on the grounds that this letter is the same as a note.

1. Is this correct?
2. Would the fact that my wife wrote the letter invalidate their claims? We are running a small restaurant now.
3. Can they do anything to it, as we own the fixtures? A. P.

1. It is not clear what they mean by saying the letter is the same as a note. Apparently the important question is whether the letter is sufficient to keep the statute of limitations from operating. This would depend on whether the debts arose on written contracts, on whether the husband and wife were both originally liable, and on whether the wife was authorized to act as her husband's agent in writing the letter. If the debts arose on oral contracts it seems probable that the letter is enough to bar the statute in so far as the wife was authorized to act.

HE CAN'T HAVE IT BOTH WAYS.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—President Roosevelt has discovered high pressure salesmanship, and now says it helped bring about the Roosevelt recession.

Mr. Roosevelt claims that too many automobiles and other things were sold to too many people during 1936 and the early part of 1937 by this high pressure salesmanship. According to his judgment some of these sales could and should have been held back for the latter half of 1937 and for 1938.

Yet we seem to remember that he pointed with pride to the pseudo-prosperity caused by these same high pressure sales of automobiles and other commodities during 1936, and he even said he "planned it that way." S. S. D.

TRANSPORTATION PLAN.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The only laudable object in attempting to improve Chicago transportation is to make it safer, more convenient and more comfortable. The proposed superhighways may for a time lead toward that goal, but it is likely that they will eventually defeat their own purpose by congestion of the loop area with more and more individually operated vehicles.

It is time now to start improvements that will tend to keep automobiles out of the loop. This can be done by creating a rapid transit system so good that few will be tempted to use any other methods of travel within four miles of the downtown section.

In the first place track and station facilities should be constructed [either above or below the surface] for twenty car trains or longer. These trains could be split up at Belmont or Indiana avenues for the smaller stations farther out.

Secondly, low priced parking lots for rapid transit customers should be provided at strategic points near the outlying stations.

Finally, underground sidewalks connecting with the subway in the loop area so that workers and shoppers may reach their destinations unhampered by weather conditions. With air conditioning underground, brilliantly lighted show windows, basement entrances to buildings, and eventually moving sidewalks beneath State street, vehicular congestion downtown could be postponed many decades.

THE MORE ABUNDANT LIFE.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—When I read of the chiselers asking for relief, and getting it, I wonder if the different companies, which are always asking for experienced help, wouldn't give the inexperienced a chance. My husband is an experienced welder, with twenty-three years of welding behind him, yet he can't seem to get a job. My boy, 19 years old, graduated from high school last June. He can't get a job because he is inexperienced. I have a boy 17 years old. He quit school to help out and he can't get a job because he has no clothes and not any experience. Yet the United States keeps on letting aliens into this country when there isn't enough work for those who are here and relief chiselers keep asking for relief and getting it, and we are trying to stay off of the relief. MRS. C. HAVIS.

KAMEHAMEHA'S HAT AND COAT.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—An editorial in your paper of Wednesday, Dec. 8, regarding the new U. S. stamp honoring the territory of Hawaii, has come to my attention.

You state that even under close inspection the figure of the chief "seems to wear the Roman toga, tunic, breastplate and helmet," also that "he carries the Roman spear and he is giving the Roman, now Fascist, salute."

Your impression is an interesting one, but may I say that the figure is that of Kamehameha I., the first king of Hawaii, who united all the islands under one rule a century before they were voluntarily annexed to the United States? The stamp design is a faithful reproduction in miniature of the heroic statue of Kamehameha which stands before the judiciary building in Honolulu.

Kamehameha wears the feather cloak made from throat feathers of the yellow oo and the red iiwi birds, and the helmet, likewise, made of feathers, on a wicker framework. He carries the spear such as that used in battle by the Hawaiian warriors. The cloak and helmet are not for protection, as was the armor of the Romans, but for decoration and to stamp the wearer as the chief.

The similarity of attire and pose to that of the Romans is striking, producing further evidence that the Hawaiians had the same homeland as the Greeks and Romans, and arrived at the territory after journeying through India, Java, and Malaysia into Polynesia. S. W. KING, Delegate from Hawaii in Congress.

SPEAKING OF MONOPOLIES.

Mason City, Ill., Jan. 13.—In your editorial, "Obstruction in Washington," in yesterday's TRIBUNE, you stated the coal commission is an infant governmental agency, having only just about cut its teeth. It has sure sunk its teeth in our city finances.

We had a contract with a little mine about ten miles south of here to furnish us coal for our water and light plant at 75 cents per ton, f. o. b. the mine. On Dec. 27 we received a letter from the mining company that the national bituminous coal commission set the price on all grades of coal effective as of Jan. 3, 1938. "It will therefore be compulsory," the letter said, "for us to change the price on the grade of screening you are now using to $1.40 per ton f. o. b. the mine." I am just wondering if this is the monopoly that is on a sitdown strike to discredit the present administration.

LIFE IN ROLLING TRAILER HAS ITS UPS AND DOWNS

Housework Can't Be Done When on the Run.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cordele, Ga., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—If a popular misconception of trailer travel routine were true, we'd be making much better time in returning to Chicago with the Tribune automobile towing our residence of the last month. As it is, we're pretty slow, notwithstanding a technique perfected in more than 4,000 miles of rolling our own home.

Newspaper cartoonists have given readers the impression that a housewife can cook meals, make beds, and wash dishes while the husband is driving through the countryside. Several books on trailers which gained a fair circulation last year were about as factual.

Venetian Blinds Rattle.

There are dealers and factory representatives about as well informed on trailer routine as the newspaper cartoonists. In renting this trailer in which I am writing, the dealer in South Michigan avenue advised me against taking the model with the Venetian blinds because, he said, they would be noisy flapping while under way.

I had visions of getting up in the morning and driving 50 or 100 miles while my wife was making the beds and cooking breakfast. After eating, I'd drive some more while she washed the dishes. Then I'd give her the wheel while I rode the trailer a couple of hours, reading the morning newspapers and maybe taking a nap or writing a story.

But 999 trailers out of every 1,000 are not built for riding. This is a 1938 model listing at a little more than $1,000. It's better than the average, yet its pitch and roll at forty miles an hour makes it impossible to stand in it without holding on to something.

Lopsided Sandwiches.

My wife tried to prepare one meal while we were under way. It was a simple snack of sandwiches and pop. Sitting down at a table in the rear of the trailer with sliced bread and a jar of peanut butter, she wasn't able to get the top slice of bread to jibe with the bottom slice. In thirty or forty minutes, she came out of the trailer with lopsided sandwiches, a little seasick, and an unexplained smear of peanut butter near her right eye. It would have amused the Midland Authors or the Evanston Drama club.

So in driving back to Chicago, about two hours are spent each morning and evening in household duties. The trip is taking longer than it would without a trailer and sleeping at hotels.

Justice Retires

(Story in Adjoining Column.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

SUTHERLAND AND REED IN COURT AS JUSTICE RETIRES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Justice George Sutherland bade good-by to his associates on the United States Supreme court today and left the bench for the last time after a brief court session in which Solicitor General Stanley Reed, President Roosevelt's choice to succeed him, participated.

The retirement of Justice Sutherland, who is 75 years old, became effective at midnight. Friends say he intends to reside in Washington.

The conservative jurist's valedictory was an opinion on a tax dispute. Shortly after Justice Sutherland finished his opinion the court adjourned for two weeks.

CHARGE KINSMAN WITH MURDER OF INDIANA JUDGE

Franklin T. Fetterer Jr. of Valparaiso, Ind., was charged with murder yesterday in connection with the death of his brother-in-law, Robert E. Parks, 51 years old, justice of the peace of Hobart, Ind. Parks died Sunday in a Gary hospital of injuries received in a fist fight with Fetterer, an engineer. The charge was placed by Chief Frank Traeger of the Hobart police.

Chief Traeger said Fetterer will be held in the county jail at Crown Point until the grand jury acts. Fetterer, 39 years old, said the fight occurred when he went to the home of Parks Saturday to protest against the treatment Parks gave the engineer's sister, Thelma, who married the justice eight months ago. They recently separated and Parks sued for divorce.

SUBPENA MAYOR IN FRAUD TRIAL OF EX-SENATOR

A subpena was issued in Felony court yesterday for Mayor Kelly at the request of Richard B. Austin, assistant state's attorney. Austin wishes the mayor's testimony to refute that of William Gillmeister, former state senator, who is being tried on charges of operating a confidence game.

Fred Parker, a former policeman who brought the charges, testified that Gillmeister told him he had been commissioned by the mayor to collect from those who wished reinstatement to the police force. Parker said he gave Gillmeister $50 in marked money.

Two more ex-policemen appeared yesterday with complaints against Gillmeister. John Herdegan, 6206 Grace street, said he gave Gillmeister $150 to obtain reinstatement and Albert Rosenquist, 2477 Cullom avenue, said he gave him $175.

TRAILERITES CAN STAY IN DECATUR FOR SEVEN DAYS

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—A seven day limit on residence in auto trailers, with a privilege of a 20 day extension at the discretion of the city health department, was established today by the city council.

Faced with opposition from many persons now living in trailers and manufacturers of trailers, the council passed the ordinance unanimously. The ordinance prohibits removing wheels from the trailers and also provides for a $10 annual fee for the operation of trailer camps.

A $200 fine is provided in the penalty clause of the new law. Persons now making trailers their permanent homes will be given until "warm weather" to find new quarters, councilmen said.

HOLLYWOOD GOES TO RADIO TO FIND HIGH C CRICKETS

Best California Has Sing in B Flat.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The menagerie department of NBC, answering a call for help from a Hollywood movie concern unable to locate a cricket that chirps in the key of G, will put on a coast to coast cricket contest at 10:30 next Thursday night with the hope of finding one. Since most of the big radio shows have moved to Hollywood, network offices elsewhere have had plenty of time to concentrate on frog jumping, mouse caroling, and parrot talking contests. But it is a bit ironic that Hollywood, which has borrowed or stolen so many top radio performers, should now begin calling on radio to pitch up its insects, too.

Disputing claims of Hollywood that California crickets chirp only in B flat, the NBC cricket collectors say they have two crickets that can hit high C, if it is cool enough. While the cricket department has asked no assistance, in the spirit of helpfulness we would like to remind them that Dr. Edwin B. Frost, the late director of Yerkes observatory, discovered that the temperature could be determined correctly by adding the number of cricket chirps per minute to 42. That would seem to suggest that at the temperatures we have hereabouts in January, crickets' chirps would be so low that they would be practically inaudible—even over a potent network!

Only other "wild life" note in the news of the day is Gabriel Heatter's announcement that he proposes to broadcast a conversation on the We, the People show at 6:30 next Thursday between a gorilla and Gertrude Lintz, an expert trainer of apes. Another potential threat to Charlie McCarthy!

Dr. Otto Struve, present director of Yerkes observatory, will discuss the significance of the discovery there recently of the great new double star Epsilon Aurigae, on the Science in the News program at 5 p. m. today over WCFL-NBC.

[ADVERTISMENT]
HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Helen Hughes Dulany to Wed in California

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEWS that will interest Chicagoans came from California last night, where Mrs. Helen Hughes Dulany and Atherton Richards applied yesterday for a marriage license. They plan to be married Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Presbyterian church in Pasadena. It will be a small wedding and an equally small reception will follow in the bungalow at the Hotel Huntington that Mrs. Dulany has been occupying since she left Chicago about the middle of December.

Mrs. Dulany used to live here but for the last year she has spent most of the time traveling. She visited here early in December, however, and was extensively entertained in town and on the north shore. Last summer she had a house in Honolulu. Mr. Richards, who lives in Honolulu, is a member of one of the best known families in the Hawaiian Islands, an early missionary family, and he is the president of the Hawaiian Pineapple company.

Mr. Richards arrived in Los Angeles yesterday on the Clipper from Honolulu. He knows some of the Chicago friends of his bride-to-be for he has visited here several times. He will renew acquaintance with them, and probably meet more, when he and his bride arrive on the 27th. They will be at the Drake hotel for several days on their way to New York. They will live in Honolulu.

Mr. Richards' sister, Mrs. Frank Midkiff, came from Honolulu a week ago to visit Mrs. Dulany.

Dearborn Seminary Alumnae Meet.

The number is fewer each year at the annual meeting and luncheon of the Dearborn Seminary Alumnæ association, but the enthusiasm of those who are left does not diminish. This was shown by the manner in which those who met yesterday at the Fortnightly club responded to the call to increase the scholarship fund at the Art institute.

The members really anticipated the call because the only vote yesterday was to have a committee investigate the report that the endowment fund presented to the institute some years ago does not produce enough income to pay today's tuition. The loyal alumnæ, however, did not wait until the meeting next year to start subscribing to the fund. A good start toward whatever is necessary was made yesterday.

The alumnae also have given a scholarship to the University of Chicago in the name of the founder and former principal of the school, Zuinglius Grover. They further keep his memory alive by holding their meeting each year on his birthday, Jan. 17. Yesterday's reunion was an unusually gay and youthful one, for many of the members had brougnt guests to hear the speaker, Miss Frances E. Wnedon, tell of her exciting experiences in China. Miss Whedon never went to the seminary herself, but her mother was a pupil there, so the alumnae hardly considered her a "guest speaker," as she was announced on the invitations.

Mrs. Charles A. Ford Is Elected President.

Mrs. Charles A. Ford [Jennie Bacon] was elected president to take the place of Mrs. John G. McDonald [Camille Henry], who has served for two years. The other officers are: First vice president, Mrs. William S. Elliott [Ethel Buckingham]; second vice president, Mrs. Robert E. Peacock [Josephine McClain]; third vice president, Mrs. Frederic C. Woodward [Harriet Walton]; treasurer, Miss Carrie Blair Neely; recording secretary, Miss Edith Helen Moss; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Leonora Temple Hoyne; chairman Dearborn seminary scholarship, Miss Helen Gunsaulus; chairman Zuinglius Grover scholarship, Miss Neely; executive committee, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Asa J. Caldwell [Bertha Ryan], and Mrs. Walter E. Faithorn [Elsie Dixon].

Every one at the meeting was interested in seeing an old French grammar that had been sent to Mrs. Woodward by some one who had purchased it with a collection of old books. It had belonged to Annie Griswold in 1880 and if the owner did in her French class the dozens of pencil sketches and bits of amusing verse and prose that adorned every bit of space not occupied by French words, we imagine that her marks in French were not very good. The former Annie Griswold was not at the meeting, but some of her schoolmates remembered her and it finally developed that she is Mrs. Charles E. Murison of Highland Park. She only went to the seminary one year, when she was quite a little girl. She never has been a member of the association.

Pianists Are Guests of English Union.

After hearing Miss Whedon's interesting talk many went from the Fortnightly to the Casino for the tea the English-Speaking union was giving for Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, who are giving a concert tonight in Orchestra hall under the auspices of the Adult Educational council.

Miss Bartlett and Mr. Robertson are piano duettists and also life duettists, for they were married when they were studying in London several years ago. They became joint concert pianists because they found that separate achievements were not compatible with a happy marriage.

During their stay in Chicago they are the guests of Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, who is giving a supper party for them tonight. They gave a musical program before tea was served yesterday.

About 225 attended the tea, which was one of the largest and most successful parties the union has given. There was such a large crowd that the young women invited to pour

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

That scarlet coat known as lipstick, which gives a needed accent to every feminine face, must be carefully chosen in winter. Choose a lip rouge that's creamy, in a shade that suits, and apply it deftly but generously.

The lipstick situation looks awfully good to us this week. Since we fussed around with some samples last fall we've been anxious for a certain new lipstick to land in town. It has arrived, and if you're interested in a lipstick that's smooth, creamy, true in color, and fairly lasting you'd better dash down to inspect this new one. You'll know it by its white case, smartly set off with bands of silvery metal.

There are six shades, all of them perfectly swell. Your choice will be determined by your own coloring; we might tell you that we hope you can wear the "glamor red." It's gorgeous, brilliant but not bizarre, and with a richness and warmth that give it unusual beauty.

Nature ordained that we choose a shade called "suave." It's just that and we love it. It's a natural shade, but it has character. All the shades have fashion value. They've been carefully worked out. And there are rouges to match them exactly, to say nothing of face powders perfectly keyed to them.

These, we think, are excellent winter lipsticks. Their texture is of balanced creaminess. The lip rouge doesn't break down into particles, as the dry sticks do, but neither is it too greasy. It's been reported ideal by every one we had test it—and most of the guinea pigs, we might add, have been women who have trouble finding a lipstick smooth enough to suit.

It seems soothing to dry, cracked lips and certainly its creaminess ought to be a protection against that irritating condition.

In the shade range you'll find true reds and blue reds, all of them beautiful and none of them prone to change after they've been on a while. The stick is a fat one and the price is right. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Jean Fardulli Is Heard at Civic Theater

BY CECIL SMITH.

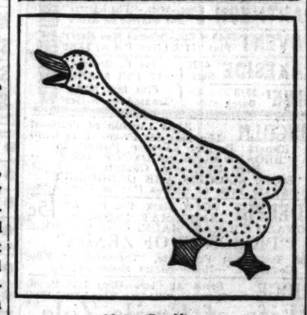
A song recital by Jean Fardulli, Greek baritone of the Chicago City Opera company, drew a goodly number of Greek-American friends and supporters to the Civic theater last evening. He was warmly applauded and made to feel at home in a program that leaned heavily upon French and modern Greek compositions. Margaret Dee Hammond accompanied him, and played solos by Schumann and Chopin.

The recital took on something of the air of a class in music appreciation. Mr. Fardulli translated the texts of most of his songs before singing them, and added laudatory remarks about each of the composers. In the case of the unfamiliar Greek songs this was helpful. It was a little patronizing, however, to explain that Massenet's "Vision Fugitive" is a popular aria in France—as though it were altogether unknown here!

In the cold competition of the world of opera and recital, it cannot be said that Mr. Fardulli makes an imposing impression. His full voice is somewhat cold and unyielding. He makes great use of a cabaret style of falsetto crooning in place of a legitimate pianissimo. Altogether his voice is neither legitimately produced nor aptly used. In Figaro's aria from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," sung as an encore, he revealed the full profundity of his lack of vocal discipline and traditional operatic schooling.

The illness of the double bassoon player has forced Dr. Frederick Stock to change the Chicago Symphony orchestra program for Thursday and Friday. The late Maurice Ravel will now be memorialized by Richard Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration," a piece he undoubtedly disliked, instead of by his own "Daphnis and Chloé."

TODAY'S QUILT



Noisy Duckling.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Noisy Duckling" is a companion piece to an old applique pattern published in this column some time ago, called "Chattering Geese." It is as simple to applique as it is clever and amusing. Because this is a streamlined duckling, the beginning quiltmaker may suffer no qualms in attempting to apply him to a coverlet. With the lovely soft materials and unusual prints available, the body may be light and fuzzy, with the bill and feet of bright yellow. Brown or black stitching is used for the eye and the bill may be outlined in the same color if desired. The background is a matter of choice in this day of "vivid colors for the nursery."

Miss Skinner Tells a Novel in Monologs

"EDNA HIS WIFE."

A dramatic sequence of monologs based upon Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel, with Cornelia Otis Skinner acting the title rôle and seven other characters; given in the Harris theater Jan. 17, 1938.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Cornelia Otis Skinner's notable gift as a dramatic monologist is subjected to severe pressure in "Edna His Wife," the program which she brought to the Harris theater last night for a two weeks' engagement. This is an adaptation of a full length novel in which the actress carries a story through thirty-seven years and eleven scenes. She appears as the heroine in five phases of her development and also acts seven other characters, including Edna's mother and daughter.

Miss Skinner again demonstrates her versatility in characterization and scores her expected personal success. Her medium, however, fails to sustain the burden that has been placed upon it. It breaks down under the weight of narrative and hobbles slowly from scene to scene. Seeking to compete with the drama of normal equipment, the monolog form is here forced to confess its fundamental weakness, which is monotony.

"Edna, His Wife" depicts its central character from her girlhood as the simple-hearted daughter of a railway station master at Blue Island, on the edge of Chicago, to her late middle age as the dejected wife of a rich corporation lawyer in a New York penthouse. At a brakemen's party she meets a young ambulance-chasing lawyer with the instinct for success, by any means, in his blood; and so she progresses to the Lake Shore drive and Park avenue, but remains a Blue Island girl at heart.

She is the kind of woman, to quote from the text, "who needs a back yard and a fence to talk over." Therefore, she becomes an unhappy Edna, although lapped in New York luxury, and a somesick Edna, for removal from Chicago means something like death to her.

Chicagoans should like this tale if they belong to the old breed. It has many flashes of the spirit that formerly brooded over and inspired this city. The local color that Miss Skinner has carried over from Mrs. Barnes' novel is persuasively handled. A historic tragedy—the Eastland disaster—serves as climax for the first act; and although it is suggested by stagecraft as simple as that of the Chinese drama, it conveys a profound dramatic emotion.

Miss Skinner's best incidental character studies are of a society matron, seeking to add Edna's brilliant young husband to her menagerie, and of Edna's daughter, a post-war flibbertigibbet with a Park avenue veneer.

Helen Hayes and the "Victoria Regina" company will repeat their performance of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice" next Sunday night in the Erlanger theater.

STYLISH AUDIENCE

It is seldom that Chicago social circles have a chance to see a Chicago play in a Chicago theater, but last night this happened. As a result the audience was an even more fashionable one than most "first nights" are and the author, Margaret Ayer Barnes [Mrs. Cecil], was deluged with congratulations during the intermission.

Her sister, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mr. Fairbank were there and so were Mr. Fairbank's sister, Mrs. Laird Bell, and Mr. Bell. Also two of their daughters, the Misses Helen and Frances Bell, the junior "Kelly" Fairbanks, the Charles H. Swifts, the Talcott Griswolds, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, David Adler, Mrs. E Harris Brewer, the James H. Mitchells, the John Paul Wellings, the Misses Barbara and Nancy Bastien, the Hermon D. Smiths, the Joseph L. Valentines, and the Donald McPhersons.

Salcia Bahnc Among Best of Today's Artists

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition of paintings by Salcia Bahnc opened yesterday in the Quest Art galleries to continue through January. Salcia Bahnc always did have a knack of throwing off figure paintings which would "knock 'em in the eye," and her brush has lost none of its cunning during her eight year sojourn in Paris.

If anything, she does her knocking now with a more devilish flavor than before, and hers is, today, an Adamless paradise, her figures being entirely of the female gender.

There are some twenty canvases in the exhibition. A first impression is of sheer wallowing in fantastic flesh. A little later the pictures swing into a definite pattern and you realize that many of these compositions are immensely maternal in feeling and coolly delicate in their phrasing.

The luminosity of Miss Bahnc's paint is a never-ending delight. So, too, is the clarity of her palette and her intriguing choice of colors. The feeling of rhythm in the various paintings is fascinating.

Although by far the majority of the canvases deal with figures, lithe, picturesque nudes with a frequent Rabelasian sister to set them off, the painter has given us two magnificent still lifes and several portraits. Her portraits are swift, impressionistic, daring, and nervously accurate.

The personality comes through the paint—witness the portrait of Miss Katharine Dudley, a striking piece of work. There are two tender little portraits of the artist's son and one legitimate portrait of her husband—we use the word legitimate advisedly to signify a portrait as reasonable and true as a photograph.

Salcia Bahnc has progressed enormously while remaining essentially herself during these years she has been away. She has grown a little softer, a little more thoughtful, and infinitly more romantic. Her experience of motherhood has carried over into her painting. The mother and child studies in the exhibit are proof of this.

Her palette is richer and cleaner, her technique more polished. Her work will stand comparison with the best being done today in studios here and abroad.

Although one may not like all of these paintings, their merits are so obvious it would be petty not to deal justly by them. Here is good stuff!

There's Many a Chuckle in Latest Buttons

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The best new buttons are just as amusing as any of the prints used for dresses. Carved wooden buttons from Hawaii boast such typical tropical ideas as pineapples, sun fish, and swaying palm trees in both dark and light beige tones. Nautical designs of anchors in red or blue are stuck on the flat tops of other dull white discs and buckles, while buttons, clips and buckles made of cork outlined with bright green and red still take the spotlight as the newest gadgetry for knits and thin wools.

More decorative and more expensive are the stunning bronze buttons, set with simulated topazes for the proper accent on all the chartreuse green and honey beige costumes. New shades of blue and raspberry also are featured in huge buttons made of crystal, and more white buttons have painted sailboats in dark brown with large belt buttons to complete the idea.

If you like unusual gold metal buttons you'll buy the very realistic blossoms copied from the pastel and white summer cosmos. These come in three sizes and make especially handsome chest decorations as well as practical finds for extra large buttonholes. Such metal flower buttons are delightful surprises, since they come in both gold or silver metal and usually have stunning belt buckles to match.

Other flowered buttons are those painted on a disc and then submerged in thick transparent crystal. They're bright, gay and different. The gypsy striped buttons are the only other competition as far as blazing color effects are concerned.

What you can use these days as button distraction on any dress or suit makes your reputation as a button collector.

SYNOPSIS.

Poco St. Vrain arrives in the western town of Christian City, escaping a pursuing troop of cavalry. There Two-Way Hornbeck approaches him with a scheme.

INSTALMENT II.

DESPERATION.

Poco said nothing, only studied the man in the mirror. Two-Way Hornbeck, at present dressed in the tradition of only one of his dozen callings, was probably the royalty of riffraff. Most towns in the southwest knew him, usually to their sorrow and his advantage. Suave, dark of face, hard of eye, ready of smile, he had the agreeable and expansive presence of the generous rich. Poco had never tried to guess his age, but had merely accepted him as permanent, predictable as an epidemic of smallpox, and just about as welcome.

Two-Way accepted Poco's scrutiny with a smile. "I've got a room upstairs. Ten's the number. Go on up."

"Go way," Poco said, without even looking at him.

Two-Way backed off and returned to his table. Poco saw him writing something on a slip of paper, then he called the bartender for drinks. In another moment, the bartender laid a note on the bar in front of Poco. Poco drew a match out of his pocket, struck it, touched it to the unread note and dropped it into a spittoon. He finished his beer and went out.

Stopping in front of the batwing doors, he looked up and down the street, surveying the town. He was wondering if his sorrel had had time enough to circle back to the feed stable.

A voice from behind him said, "A quarter of a million dollars."

Poco St. Vrain turned slowly. Two-Way Hornbeck was standing beside him, smiling.

Poco said gently, flatly, "Have I got to cuff you?"

"Now listen, Poco. Hear it out, anyway," he pleaded softly. "Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars."

He was about to cross the street when he saw three men come down off the hotel porch and turn his way. He paused, hands on hips, watching them.

They were engaged in conversation, two of the men listening to the rumbling speech of the man in the middle. He was a vast man, a head taller than the two tall punchers at his side, clothed in a baggy and shapeless black suit that fitted him like the skin of a bear. Under his black Stetson, his white hair tufted out, a soft crown for his craggy seamed face tanned to saddle color. Everything about him bespoke dominance, power, even to the polite attentiveness of the men listening to him.

In the midst of his speech, the big man looked up, talking still, and when he saw Poco he stopped, and his talk trailed off. The two punchers looked up now, and when they too saw Poco their faces were utterly readable. They stepped away from their companion.

"Get off the walk, McCandless," Poco drawled gently. "Can't you see I'm on it?"

McCandless said, "Is this it, St. Vrain?" and he could not fight out the torment in his voice.

"Not yet, Abe. Get off the walk."

McCandless, with that utter docility of an obedient child, left the walk, his two companions following him.

Poco swung under the hitchrack and headed down and across the street for the livery stable.

The man nodded.

"What do I owe you?" Poco said.

The old man told him. Poco gave him a note and he went in to change it. Poco stepped out into the sun.

Then he heard someone say, "Just listen to me, Poco. Just listen. A quarter million dollars. Think of it!"

Poco started to turn when the voice, Two-Way's voice, said, "Stand still, you damn fool! I've got a gun on you."

Still Poco turned. Two-Way was just inside the door, his back to a stall partition, a look of harried desperation on his face and a gun in his unsteady hand.

Poco walked slowly over to him and reached out and took the gun and dropped it on the floor, and there was no surprise or anger in his face, only curiosity and impatience.

"When you do that to me, Two-Way, it's time to ride."

"I know it," Two-Way said huskily. "But can't you see I'm desperate? I'm serious. Do you think I'd of done that if I wasn't?"

Poco said nothing for a minute, and then he said, "No."

Two-Way's face immediately relaxed. "Will you come up to my room, then?"

"Lead off," Poco said.

"No. Not together," Two-Way said hurriedly. "I'll go up. You follow in a minute. Ten's the number. Up those back stairs in the Sunflower." Then he changed his mind. "No. You go in the hotel next door and get a room. Jacob Finger is your name. I'll be up soon."

"Say it here."

"I can't! You know that. I can't, I tell you! I'll go get a room. It'll be on the second floor. You come up the stairs and I'll be there."

Before Poco could say anything, Two-Way had gone. The stableman came out with Poco's change and Poco told him he'd be after his horse in a little while. He gave Two-Way a couple of minutes, then walked down the street and entered the hotel.

Two-Way was waiting at the head of the stair well and he led the way down the corridor to a room. In spite of his apparent haste, he had taken time out to get a bottle of whisky, a pitcher of water, and two glasses. He poured two drinks, gave Poco one, and sat down on the iron-framed bed.

"Didn't you get my letter?" Two-Way began.

Poco nodded.

"Then what's the trouble. Did you come all this way to tell me you wouldn't talk to me?"

"An accident," Poco said. "I happened to come this way."

"Because the army was chasing you. What happened?"

Poco said gently, "You ask a lot of questions."

"I've got to know," Two-Way said seriously. "If you're in a jam, it may spoil our plans. We can't have the army chasing you every time they get word you've been seen."

Poco thought a minute. "All right," he said. "I rode into Fort Benjamin last night and asked for feed for my horse. They gave it to me and put me up too. This morning when I was leaving, I asked what it would cost. They wouldn't take any money. I made them take me to the commandant. He wouldn't take any money either. I don't take charity. I told him so. He said the army didn't either, and that he wouldn't take my money. I rammed it down his throat."

"You——" Two-Way began and then his voice trailed off. He said, "You say you rammed it down his throat? The commandant's?"

"Yes."

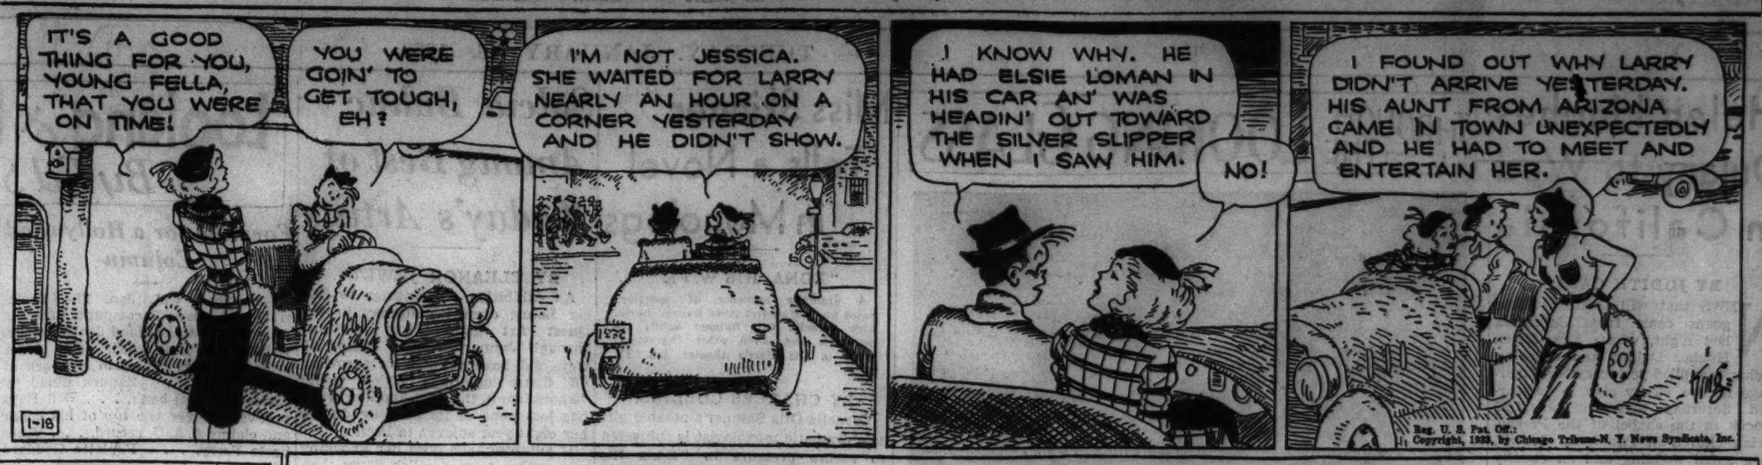
GASOLINE ALLEY—ANYWAY, THAT'S HIS STORY



WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Why Rub It In?

'Be Yourself' Is Main Rule in Popularity

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"A few days ago a young man wrote to you asking your advice on how to make himself popular with girls. Well, it seems that I have the same problem.

"I'm not hard to look at, but I never won a beauty contest nor expect to win one. I am 18, tall and dark. My clothes are not expensive, but I have a good figure, so they look all right. I have been told that I have a pleasing personality. So I can't figure out what's wrong. I love to go out, have good clean fun, like seeing a good show, eating hamburgers at outrageous hours, or, if a man hasn't any money, just going for an auto ride. I love to dance and skate. Now what is wrong? I know I have my faults, as everybody has. Naturally, I try to keep them hidden from company's eyes, at least.

"You told the young man to watch the popular young friends and try to copy them. But I can't do that. One of my friends talks 'baby talk.' She gets away with it because she is little and cute. But I couldn't. For one thing, I simply despise it and, being tall and dark, wouldn't I be the silly symphony trying baby talk? But I suppose I could force myself to give it to them, if that's what the boys like. Another friend is very sophisticated. I can't be sophisticated because, if I am, then I feel so stiff I can't have any fun. Another friend loves to 'neck' and, while I don't like doing it, I suppose I could drive myself. I'm not a prude but, ye gods, necking with a person one has just met—that's out for me as too cheap and common."

You needn't worry. One who can write a straightforward letter such as the above, showing sense of fun and anxiety to be in on the fun with others, will come through with flying colors one of these days. But don't make the mistake of trying to ape any one.

As we read you, your trouble is merely that you aren't sure enough of your own powers. That comes from comparing yourself disadvantageously with other girls. When we advise young folk to study more popular persons we merely mean to study them for certain arts and graces.

Home Shampoo Acceptable if It's Thorough

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We wonder what statistics would disclose on the number of women who do their own shampooing at home. We were under the impression that a great many women perform this duty for themselves.

The number of those who do the home job doesn't matter as much, however, as does the number of those who do the home job well. We learned from hairdressers that the great majority of those patrons who do wash their own hair at home and appear at salons for wave, cut and so on, does not come with the type of washed hair on which the hairdressers like to work. They tell me that they often are presented with a head to wave and beautify that has been left, after the home shampoo, dull and sticky and not really clean. It isn't because they are prejudiced against the home shampoo when it is well done. True, in the salons they have to wet it again, or plaster it wet with lotion. But they dislike heartily performing this duty for hair that is not thoroughly shampooed.

It seems so simple a job to us to give one's own head a good shampoo, we always wonder about the fuss about it. What's more, we feel that once in a while, at least, it is well to give your own head the scrubbing and rubbing that you alone can give it when you can give it well. We like the idea, too, of rinsing the head well under the shower, letting oodles of water hit scalp and hair, and rubbing the hair dry with a coarse towel. In this way you do get the circulation stirring. Not that you can't get this effect in beauty salons of the better type.

We feel that the home amateur does not rub deeply enough into the scalp when the job comes out badly. This is the important item of a shampoo, along with the rinsing and drying by hand.

Trash, That's Critic's View of 'Marihuana'

"MARIHUANA."

Distributed by Roy Reid.
Presented at the Garrick theater.

Good Morning!

Perhaps the rumor that marihuana cigarets are being sold in increasing quantities to adolescents was started by ads announcing the picture "Marihuana." Perhaps the film was made because the rumor is founded on fact, and with crusading intent. All I know is that the movie is a flop.

We're all for timely, constructive cinemas; but, call it what you will, trash under any name is trash.

"Marihuana" wallows in cheap melodrama, poor acting, stupid dialog. You laugh where you're supposed to cry. . . . And there is nothing so devastating as ridicule to any cause.

Conservative Man Is Forgotten Man of Clothing Trade

The conservative man will have to make his old suit do for another season, according to Jerome Giuseffi, a designer attending the 24th annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers at the La Salle hotel. The association's style show will be held today.

"There is no longer any designing of clothes for the conservative man," Giuseffi said cheerfully.

You can expect dusty pastel shades in summer wear, according to Giuseffi and a fellow designer, David Frankel, and the trend is toward the lounge type of suit. The white dinner jacket is expected to be popular.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Have you seen the new, man-made sponges? They are of cellulose and although they look much like real sponges of the deep sea variety it's claimed they will last longer and are sturdier.

These sponges are in brick-like shapes, available in four sizes at a fraction of the cost of sea sponges. They are intended for kitchen use, as well as for the bath. They're excellent at any washing job, especially windows, for when they are squeezed out of clean water and rubbed across the glass it's not necessary to follow up with a dry cloth or with polishing. Hence, they are time savers.

They are sanitary, too, and so inexpensive you can get a fresh supply often without harming the budget.

Cookies alone often aren't satisfying as a dessert. They need the moistness of fresh or canned fruit to offset their dryness. But when fruits and cookie dough are combined in filled cookies, often the accompanying sauce may be dispensed with.

These new recipes differ from the ordinary filled cookie recipe, as may be seen by scanning the ingredient lists and the instructions for putting the cookies together. They're worth trying.

Fruit Filled Cookies.

½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
½ cup sweet milk
2 teaspoons soda
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg white

Cream shortening and sugar together. Dissolve soda in milk. Sift flour and cream of tartar. Add milk and soda mixture alternately with flour mixture to shortening and sugar. Beat for a minute, or until ingredients are well blended. Add flavoring and fold in beaten egg white. Chill pastry. Then roll to one-quarter inch in thickness and cut into 3 inch squares. Place filling on half of each square and fold over. Press edges together with the tines of a fork. Bake on greased cookie sheet in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 15 to 20 minutes.

Fruit Filling for Cookies.

1 orange
1 cup figs
2 cups fresh or canned pears
½ cup sugar

Remove only the seeds from the orange. Use the rind. Put all fruit through the food chopper, add sugar, and cook until thick. Cool before spreading on cookies.

Raisin Whirls.

½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 unbeaten egg yolk
3 tablespoons milk
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Drop in the unbeaten egg yolk and beat the mixture well. Add milk and the flour, which has been sifted with baking powder and salt. Roll the dough into a thin, rectangular sheet. This can be done best on a piece of heavy oil paper. Spread the sheet with raisin filling and roll jellyroll fashion. Wrap in waxed paper and store in the refrigerator until firm. When well chilled slice thinly and bake the cookies on a greased cookie sheet in a 400 degree oven. The time will be from 10 to 12 minutes.

Filling for Raisin Whirls.

½ cup chopped raisins
¾ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons water

Mix all ingredients, blending flour with salt and sugar first to avoid producing lumps. Cook together slowly, stirring constantly until thick. When cool, spread on rolled cookie dough. Chopped nuts may be added to this mixture.

Fruity Slices.

1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup butter
1 egg
2½ cups flour
1 cup finely chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg and mix well. Sift flour, measure, and add nuts. Add to butter mixture. Shape the dough into a roll and chill for several hours. Slice into thin cookies and spread each slice with date filling. Top with chopped nuts or whole nutmeats [one to each cookie] and bake until crisp in a 375 degree oven.

To make the filling for these cookies, combine one package [two cups] of chopped dates with the juice of an orange and a tablespoon of maple flavored sirup. Cook over low heat to a smooth paste, add one tablespoon butter, and blend well.

Shirtwaist Frock Is Dressy

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

This inexpensive frock is designed along the popular shirtwaist lines, but it has a dressy air about it, too. The version illustrated at the left adheres to tailored styling, with contrasting collar and belt. Notice that the loop on the collar is slipped through a notch in the yoke and that the belt buttons onto the pockets. The broad yoke is stitched and the bodice under it is shirred for flattering fullness. The skirt fits the hips beautifully and has plenty of width at the hemline by virtue of an inverted plait.

The dressier version of the pattern, shown at the right, omits a collar and winds a sash around the waist. It also lengthens the sleeves and puts a touch of embroidery on the yoke. The pattern for this is No. E-11185 and is available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2045 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

CLOTILDE PATTERNS ARE 10 CENTS EACH

Raw Throat?
Here's Quick Action!
Kill the cold germs that attack your throat and cause miserable colds. At the first sign of "raw" throat, gargle with Zonite.
Zonite is 9.3 times more active, by standard laboratory tests, than any other popular non-poisonous antiseptic. Kills all kinds of cold germs—at contact! And Zonite soothes your throat.
Get Zonite at once. Gargle immediately—1 teaspoon Zonite to half glass water. Kill cold germs before they spread UP into sinuses or DOWN into bronchial tubes. You'll feel relief after the first gargle with Zonite.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

While I do not like psychic bids, feeling that most of them are veritable boomerangs, I cannot deny that the mere fact that a player has the reputation of putting in psychics often brings him thousands of unearned points. Thus, it is indisputable that psychics have a certain amount of advertising value. The opponents are much more apt to bid freely against a sometime psychic bidder than they are against the dependable type. One of the largest penalties I have seen recently occurred because one player thought [quite unwarantedly] that his opponent was psyching.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 heart	Pass	3 diamonds	3 hearts
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

In stating South's bid as three hearts I have done him an injustice, but only a slight one! In actual fact, South bid only two hearts over East's three diamond bid. Promptly called for an insufficient bid, he corrected himself with three hearts and, for the rest of the hand, and half an hour afterward, kept moaning that he had "intended to bid only two." Considering that the final penalty was 1,300 points, no one [including his own partner] felt inclined toward sympathy, because a two heart bid would have been sufficiently atrocious and would have saved only 200 points.

West opened his top diamond. East cashed three rounds, then shifted to his top spade. Declarer ducked and the queen won. The ace and another spade were returned, East ruffing. East now cashed his ace and king of clubs, and then led a fourth round of diamonds. Declarer, having bid absurdly, now proceeded to lose an extra trick in the play. Instead of ruffing with a high honor, he put in the ten spot. West overruffed with the jack and exited with a club. Declarer ruffed and led the heart king. But this he was graciously permitted to hold, and West then had to make his ace and nine of trumps for the last two tricks.

The final reckoning was that declarer, by having been forced to legalize his insufficient bid, lost 1,300 points instead of 1,100. Another 200 of this total could be attributed to his bad play, bringing the total to 900. Considering that East-West could make a slam, this 900 point penalty would not be so bad, but I seriously doubt that South, in making his heart overcall, felt that he was defending against a slam. It was, as he himself explained later, a case of having been carried away by the suspicion that West, who often indulged in psychics, was "pulling something funny" on this occasion.

Child Needs Circular Walker.

A medical case worker in a south side clinic has asked our assistance for a child under treatment there. The youngster is two and one-half years old and because of illness has never walked. Physicians believe that one of the circular walkers will be of help in enabling the baby to take her first steps and to guard against severe falls. The parents are without funds and would appreciate having a discarded walker.

Children Will Outgrow More Subtle Fears

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I know that sounds obvious but I'm not talking about obvious things, like heedlessness, or silliness, or babyish ways. I'm talking about more subtle things.

Children will outgrow a great many things that worry you in their personalities and which may even trouble them.

Having done all you can to clear up their difficulties, having given them all the help you can, there is nothing left for you to do but let time and nature take care of them. With your child's whole general home setting, one of love and understanding, this is almost sure to happen.

Take fears, for instance. One little girl had for years a fear of feathers. This is not as rare as you might think. She couldn't stand their touching her. Her family wondered and argued in vain. She got over it.

Another child wouldn't have any sort of grease, cold cream or medicated vaseline for a cold, on her face. Her mother knew the objection dated from a dreaded experience she had when her face was rubbed with vaseline before the ether cone was put over it preceding an operation. No devices to banish this feeling helped. She outgrew this repugnance.

Fear of the dark, either indoors or out in the unlighted country night, may persist in spite of gentle efforts to dispel it, but in time, and often quite suddenly, it will disappear.

A quick temper, lack of self-control, and other aspects of a child's personality that we are inclined to think of as character traits often seem to persist until we grow quite discouraged. Then one day, as a child develops and that certain good sense that he acquires comes to him, we see a decided change for the better.

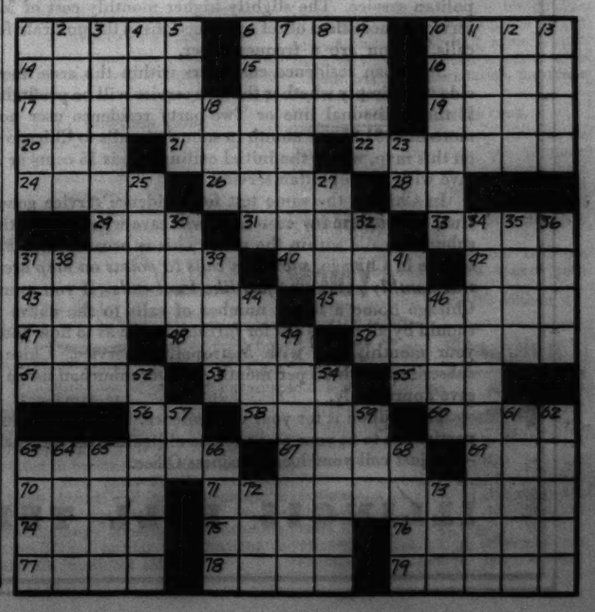
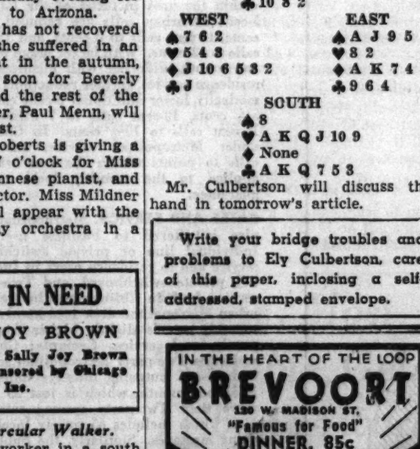
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



...the modern way for adults to take Vitamins A and D



PEOPLE had known for years that there was something about cod liver oil that made it so protective, but until recently, they didn't know what it was. Then it was discovered that the vitamins in cod liver oil make it effective.

Today people are taking these vitamins—A and D—as a protection all winter long. But not with spoonfuls of cod liver oil. In a modern form—with Adex!

Don't be content to get your vitamins in any less convenient way! Begin today with Adex and keep it up all winter. Have a bottle on the breakfast table so that every member of the family will take it routinely. Ask for Adex at any reliable drug store.

DE VALERA GIVES GROUND IN DRIVE TO RULE ULSTER

British "Sympathy" May Save Conference.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The close of today's first Irish and British premiers and their advisers on mutual political, economic, and defense problems brought only a simple statement. Indications, however, were that the Irish demands were less sweeping than had been expected, and that Eamon De Valera's demands for domination of Ulster might be compromised.

Ireland and Ulster, which De Valera hopes to reunite.

Earlier it was feared that Ireland's determination to annex these six northern counties might wreck the conference, as the British conferees had taken the stand that relations between Ireland and Ulster could not be modified without Ulster's consent. The talks will be resumed at noon tomorrow.

British Warm to Plan.

Although the British refused to coerce Ulster, it is understood they gave De Valera sufficient assurance of their sympathy toward a united Ireland to keep the conferences alive. The report in political circles tonight is that the Irish met this assurance with the explanation that they asked recognition of their ambitions only "in principle," setting forth the desirability of a union of all Ireland under a single government whenever Ulster can be persuaded to accept it.

The British belief is that De Valera hopes, by renouncing the idea of putting pressure on Ulster, suspicions can be allayed and northern Ireland eventually can be persuaded to discuss reunion.

Mobbed by Well-Wishers.

When the Irish group arrived at the residence of the chancellor of the exchequer for luncheon before beginning the conference, they again were mobbed by a crowd of enthusiastic admirers, similar to that which met them on their arrival in London.

Irish circles were amused—and Britons a little piqued—that, following up his recent moves for more independence, De Valera neglected the usual custom of dominion premiers, in London for more than 36 hours, of signing the visitors' book in Buckingham palace. Hitherto De Valera had dodged the issue by paying only fleeting visits to London.

PRINCE OF HAPSBURG SEIZED FOR MARRING GERMAN COAT OF ARMS

VIENNA, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Police reported the arrest and subsequent release today of Prince Ernst von Hohenberg, son of Archduke Franz Ferdinand whose assassination at Sarajevo in 1914 touched off the world war. The prince of the Hapsburg line was accused of damaging the German coat-of-arms of an enameled sign on the front door of the Vienna branch of a German railroad office, police said. The prince's brother, Prince Maximilian, is the president of the Austrian monarchist movement backing Archduke Otto.

GETS 1-10 YEARS FOR $8,470 LOAN COMPANY FRAUD

Thomas Lackovic, 29 years old, 3957 Irving Park boulevard, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Rudolph Desort to embezzlement of $8,470 from the Lawndale Agency and Loan corporation and was sentenced to one to ten years in Joliet penitentiary.

Lackovic, who also was secretary of the Croatian Building and Loan association, 1829 South Throop street, tried to clear his muddled affairs for the Lawndale organization by putting through a large check on the Croatian's funds. This resulted in a civil suit between the bonding companies protecting the two loan companies, which eventually was won by the Croatian's bonding concern.

MIDDLE CLASSES BEING RUINED BY HITLER POLICIES

Tradesmen Charge He Has Violated Promises.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[THIRD ARTICLE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler recruited most of his supporters in the ranks of the middle classes when he started to drum up followers before he came into power. "A healthy middle class" and "Smash the department stores" were slogans which lured them. But this 16th point of his program, middle class tradesmen claim, is not being fulfilled. Small enterprises are being drowned out, with the lack of raw material hastening their doom.

Real estate reform, demanded in Point 17 of Hitler's program, calls for the confiscation of land for "national common needs." Many owners of real estate were compelled to turn over their property to provide airfields, playgrounds, barracks and endless office buildings. In most cases they received a small compensation; only in a few cases has regular confiscation occurred. The property of people who left Germany because they opposed the Nazi régime was confiscated automatically.

Education Program Complete.

Death sentences for "persons endangering national welfare," demanded in Point 18 of Hitler's program, are being enforced through the "People's Court."

Educational programs for German children and grown-ups, which was the 20th point of the program, are gradually being carried out. Germany today has the most all-encompassing system to teach its ideology existing in the world.

Experts are unable to agree on Germany's achievement in the health line. Some feel that, despite the 21st point of the Nazi program calling for state measures to improve the nation's health, no progress whatsoever has been achieved. The doctors and nurses who banded together to expel their competing Jewish colleagues have been so busy with politics that their own professional standards have suffered, Americans who have recently visited Germany declare.

Health Laws Praised.

But Germany's health laws, its sterilization laws for the unfit, its systematic care of young mothers, have proven tremendous assets. The interest in sports demanded of all classes in the original Nazi program is spreading, thanks to the cheap or free courses.

Conscription, a new strong army, a press from which all Jews have been eliminated, were demanded by Hitler and have become reality.

Tolerance of all creeds advocated in the name of "positive Christianity" by Hitler and his men has not been achieved, numerous Catholic and Protestant leaders assert. Time and again they have stated that they consider the Christian faith endangered by the Nazi faith.

Nazi Germany's welfare organizations, and its "winter relief" organization claim to have enforced the Nazi principle that the "common welfare ranks private welfare." For the sake of state charity the nation is compelled to make big donations. The Nazis say that their method of doling out help to 11,000,000 people is turning out satisfactorily.

Foreign Capital Frozen.

In the Nazi catechism Theodore Feder cites Hitler's words in "My Struggle":

"The struggle against international capital is the most important point of the program of the German nation in its struggle for independence."

Foreign capital still is frozen in Germany, thanks to the transfer moratorium. The German debt has been greatly reduced by the depreciation of foreign currencies and by the registered mark agreements, through which foreign bankers helped lure the tourists of their own countries to Germany; and Nazis proclaim loudly that they want no loans from foreign countries. But American banks and business men declare they are constantly being asked to help finance German purchases abroad.

Save on Suburban Calls with the NEW METROPOLITAN TELEPHONE SERVICE

REDUCTIONS OF 25% OR MORE FOR TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS WHO CALL FREQUENTLY

Both Chicago and suburban telephone customers, business and residence, within the area pictured above, may now enjoy money-saving reductions on suburban calls by taking the optional new Metropolitan service. The slightly higher monthly cost of Metropolitan service is more than offset by reductions in the unit rate for suburban calls, if you are a frequent user.

Suburban residence customers within the area above may decide very simply whether the new service will be profitable for them. If the Individual line or Two-party residence user now averages more than $1.25 per month in suburban calls to Chicago or to points on this map, where the initial calling rate is 15 cents or less, he will save with Metropolitan service.

In Chicago the same test for residence service generally holds true, although many customers will save who use less than $1.25 in suburban calls within the area. This is because with Metropolitan service in Chicago, suburban calls to points on map are applied on the monthly guarantee just like local calls. If you average at your Chicago home a larger number of calls to the above points, you should by all means ask for further details as to how you can reduce your monthly bill with Metropolitan service. Chicago business subscribers with $5 per month per line suburban usage should also save appreciably.

The coupon is for your convenience. It will bring full particulars to fit your case with no obligation on your part —or just call your local Business Office.

SOME FEATURES OF METROPOLITAN SERVICE

HOW IT SAVES. Metropolitan service is an optional local service which includes reductions on suburban calls to many points. In general, under this service, within the area pictured at the left, all 5-cent suburban calls are reduced to 4 cents, 10-cent calls to 8 cents, and 15-cent calls to 12 cents. With larger usage within any month, differing with business and residence service, further reductions automatically lower additional 5-cent calls to 3½ cents, 10-cent calls to 7 cents, and 15-cent calls to 10½ cents. In Chicago, under Metropolitan service, suburban calls to points within the area will be applied to the monthly local service guarantee.

RATES AND SERVICE. Metropolitan service is offered to business users in Individual line or private switchboard service and to residence users in Individual, private switchboard, and Two-party service, both in Chicago and in the Suburban Metropolitan area (see map). The monthly rate is slightly higher than the purely local service. Example: Chicago residence Two-party Metropolitan service includes 65 outgoing message units and is $3 per month, which is just 25 cents more than Two-party message-rate service, which includes 65 purely local outgoing messages. Similarly, the Suburban Business Individual Metropolitan rate is just 50 cents more per line than the purely local unlimited-calling business service.

AMOUNT OF SAVINGS. Substantial reductions are possible for residence Individual and Two-party users if suburban usage is at all large. As an example, the following table shows how much present suburban Individual or Two-party residence customers can save.

If Calls Within Proper Area Now Average Per Month	Under Metropolitan Service Same Calls Would Cost	NET Saving Per Month
3.00	2.35	.40
4.00	3.05	.70
5.00	3.75	1.00
10.00	7.25	2.50
15.00	10.75	4.00

Above examples apply only to suburban Individual and Two-party residence subscribers within the area, and whose calls are to Chicago and to points listed on map for which the initial rate is not more than 15 cents. With variations, suburban business service savings per line will be about the same.

Chicago subscribers' savings should also be substantial, and, like the examples above, will also vary with individual usage.

USE COUPON OR CALL for further details to fit your case. We will gladly discuss your situation and money-saving possibilities without obligation. You may enclose coupon with your bill payment, or address to Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

N. U., MICHIGAN LOSE; FIRST BIG 10 DEFEATS

HAWKS OPEN 2D HALF OF SEASON AGAINST BOSTON

Meet Detroit Next, Then Come Home.

Games Tonight

Chicago at Boston.
Canadiens at New York Rangers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The slightly disillusioned Blackhawks, who came back from an eastern road trip Sunday and took a 7 to 2 soaking at the hands of the Toronto Maple Leafs, are in Boston today, waiting for more puck whizzing tonight in an engagement with the National Hocky league's leading Bruins.

Although the Hawks at times looked rather silly, or at least stunned, while the Leafs were slamming five goals past Mike Karakas in the third period of Sunday night's ordeal before the largest Chicago hocky crowd in two seasons, they face the opening of the second half of the season 2½ games out of the American division cellar. This is an eminence which had not been predicted for them by their heartiest well wishers.

Bruins Are Tough.

The Bruins, perhaps, are not quite as sparkling and rapid as the team that so brutally bruised the Hawks Sunday night but they rate as the best balanced outfit in the league. While the Leafs include most of the fancy high ranking scorers, the Bruins have rung up 34 points to 32 for the Leafs in the league standings. Tiny Thompson, Bruin goalie, has allowed only 48 opponent goals to get past him while the shooters have beaten Goalie Turk Broda of the Leafs 67 times. The Leafs have scored 69 goals to the Bruins' 60, however.

The Bruins have won 16 games, lost 6 and tied 2; the Leafs have won 13, lost 6, and tied 6. To give you an insight into the travail suffered by Manager Bill Stewart's Hawk innocents these nights it is set down at this juncture that they have won 7, lost 12 and tied 6, half of the ties having been accomplished on their surprising road trip last week.

Ross Knows Answer.

Boston's strength lies more in its defense than offense. Goalie Thompson, aided by the heavy Bruin rear guard, consisting of Eddie Shore, Jack Portland, Bill Hollett and Dit Clapper, has allowed those 48 goals in 24 games. The combined weight of the Boston defense is 805 pounds, an average of 201 pounds and they average 6 feet 1 inch in height. The Hawks' four defense men weigh 724 pounds.

Art Ross, Boston manager, attributes the Bruins' success to four factors. Says he: "I have the best goal tender, the best defense, and three well balanced lines and the inspiration furnished by the comeback of Eddie Shore, who in his twelve years of big league hocky has played fifteen years of hocky if you figure in minutes the actual time the average player is on the ice per game."

Rudy Ahlin, who took one turn on the ice as a Hawk, did not measure up to major league standards according to Manager Stewart and he was sent back to the Kansas City Greyhounds yesterday. Manager Stewart is badly in need of an extra player and thinks he may be able to obtain one on the present jaunt.

After Bruins, Detroit.

For tonight's game Manager Stewart will play Earl Seibert, Doc Romnes, and Paul Thompson on one line, Hush March, Cully Dahlstrom, and Johnny Gottselig on another, and a third will be made up of Roger Jenkins, Louis Trudell, and Carl Voss.

Immediately after the game the Hawks will entrain for Detroit for a game with the Red Wings Thursday night. The Detroit encounter will conclude the present trip. The Hawks meet the Bruins in the Stadium Sunday. Probable lineup:

CHICAGO		BOSTON.
Karakas	G	C. Thompson
Levinsky	R. D.	Shore
Siebe	L. D.	Portland
Romnes	C	Cowley
Seibert	R. W.	Sands
T. Thompson	L. W.	Getliffe

DRILLON WIDENS LEAD

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Gordon Drillon of the Toronto Maple Leafs has widened his scoring lead and is now 6 points ahead of his nearest rivals, statistics issued from national Hocky league headquarters today revealed.

Drillon has scored fourteen goals and eighteen assists for a total of 32 points. His nearest rivals are his teammates, Sylvanus Apps and Cecil Dillon of the New York Rangers, each with 26 points. Drillon has fourteen goals and twelve assists, while Apps has eleven goals and fifteen assists.

Harvey Jackson, also of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is third in the Canadian division, with eleven goals and thirteen assists. Marty Barry of the Detroit Red Wings has retained his second position in the American division, with seven goals and fourteen assists.

Medwick Is Sorry, but He Wants a Raise

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Outfielder Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals said today he reluctantly had joined the early baseball holdouts despite his club's voluntary offer of a raise in pay.

Medwick was voted the most valuable player award for the National league last season, but he said he based his claim for more money on his record as the league's champion batter.

Joe received his contract from the Cardinals Saturday. He said today he had returned it unsigned. It carried a boost in salary, but Joe thought the raise was not enough. He declined to say how much he received last year and how much increase had been offered for 1938.

Wants Substantial Boost.

"While I greatly appreciate the honor accorded to me as the most valuable player in the league," he said, "I want it understood that my salary demands are based upon my actions on the field and I feel that I am entitled to a substantial increase over last year."

At St. Louis General Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals said Medwick never had been hard to sign during his major league career.

Medwick explained he didn't like "this holdout business," but insisted he would return the second contract if the figures did not meet his demands.

He said he would enter the baseball players' golf tournament at Sarasota Thursday.

REDS SIGN ROOKIE.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Willard Hershberger, catcher recently acquired by the Cincinnati Reds from Newark, N. J., returned his signed contract to th Reds' office today. Terms were not disclosed.

Derringer recently said he would reject a proffered $7,000 contract. Giles declined to make public the letter saying, "I'd rather deal with Derringer direct."

LOYOLA IS GOOD, BUT DE PAUL IS HARD TO SCARE

Catholic Rivals to Renew Feud Tomorrow.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Loyola university's basketball players were cautioned against overconfidence yesterday as they began the final stage of preparation for their game with De Paul tomorrow evening in the Chicago Stadium.

A 52 to 38 victory over Xavier last Saturday night brought Loyola up to the De Paul engagement with only one defeat to mar its record. That defeat was at the hands of Purdue, which generally is recognized as one of the country's greatest teams. De Paul, on the other hand, has run into considerable trouble. The Blue Demons wound up a strenuous tour of the east by losing to Long Island, 55 to 29, last Friday night. It was pointed out, however, that the De Paul players were tired from travel and that Long Island has a reputation for exceptional strength.

Loyola Students Confident.

The Loyola student body now is looking upon victory over De Paul as a foregone conclusion. On the De Paul campus, however, there is an entirely different spirit. The students realize that their team is up against a mighty difficult assignment but they know also that other things besides records count in a De Paul-Loyola game. They are sure that their team will go up against Loyola with a greater fighting spirit than could be expected against any other opponent. And they're ready to do some first class gloating in the event of victory.

Aside from the traditionally optimistic student body, Loyola followers look with considerable apprehension upon the game for overconfidence has led to Loyola defeats in other seasons. There is a possibility that there may be a recurrence of this malady tomorrow evening, particularly when it is remembered that Loyola won last year only after letting De Paul take an apparently insurmountable lead.

Plan Action at Start.

Coach Leonard Sachs of Loyola, therefore, is taking no chances of seeing the players loaf through the early stages with the attitude that they can go out and win whenever they get ready. Wibs Kautz, Mike Novak, and the other Loyola marksmen will be shooting for points right from the start.

Coach Tom Haggerty has been busy trying to build up De Paul's reserve strength during the last few days, for three of the regulars are handicapped by illness and injury. Pat Howlett and Bob Neu have wrist and ankle ailments, respectively, and Ed Norris has been taking it easy because of a cold. All are expected to start despite their handicaps. Two of the reserves, Clem Naughten and Ted Skrodzki, are definitly out, both having suffered wrist fractures.

Trophy at Stake.

The team winning tomorrow's game, which is sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization, will receive the Bishop Shell trophy to hold for a season. This is now in possession of Loyola, which won last season's encounter, 46 to 43. If either team should win three years in succession, it would gain permanent possession.

Tomorrow's program will include a game between two of the outstanding Catholic high school teams of the Chicago area—Fenwick and Mount Carmel. Fenwick won the Chicago and national Catholic championships last year and Mount Carmel came out on top in the recent St. George holiday tournament.

Di Maggio Is Ready to Talk $$$—if Asked

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Looking remarkably fit and actually weighing four pounds less than when he drove out his final hit against the Giants last October, Joe Di Maggio, young star of the Yankees, came to New York this afternoon after attending a luncheon in his honor in Philadelphia earlier in the day.

Luncheons and dinners ostensibly have brought the American league's home run champion east from his home in San Francisco, but he made it clear that he would be ready to mix business with pleasure if the Yankees care to invite him to attend a conference concerning next year's contract.

Says He's Unsigned.

Taken immediately in tow by Joe Gould, Jim Braddock's fight manager and Di Maggio's bosom pal, Di Maggio reiterated his denial of a week ago on the coast that he already had signed a Yankee contract, a transaction variously reported to have taken place secretly last summer with Business Manager Ed Barrow.

"To tell you the truth," said Joe, "and strange as it may sound, I never saw Barrow once to talk to all last season until just before the world series. I have signed no contract up to now, haven't even seen one, and have no idea what the Yankees intend to offer me."

As in his coast interview, Di Maggio declined to name any specific salary he would ask, beyond saying he thought he was "entitled to a substantial increase." As a second year man with Yanks last season he is understood to have received $15,000.

"None of My Business."

"While I naturally have an idea what I'm worth," he explained, "I don't think it's up to me to say anything about that now. I'd rather wait until the club has made its offer."

Asked whether he expected to get as much as Lou Gehrig is receiving or "somewhere near" Lou's reported salary of $36,000, Joe replied:

"No, Lou's figure doesn't enter into this thing at all and frankly I don't even know what Gehrig is getting. That's really none of my business and my negotiations with the Yankees will be carried on entirely apart from what they pay Lou."

Di Maggio, who recently was voted the "player of the year" by the New York writers and will receive their honor plaque at the annual dinner in the Hotel Commodore on Jan. 30, also will attend numerous other functions in the interim.

Davis, Most Valuable, Gets Tribune Award

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Corby Davis, Indiana's great full back, was presented the Chicago Tribune award for being the most valuable player to his team in the Big Ten conference, in a ceremony between halves of the Indiana-Iowa basketball game tonight.

Corby Davis.

That Makes Three Hoosiers.

Smith was presented to the crowd by Coach Bo McMillin, who expressed pride that the award had gone to two other Hoosier players, Chuck Bennett in 1928 and Vern Huffman in 1936. Huffman, now playing with the Detroit Lions of the National Professional league, came out on the floor to congratulate Davis.

In making the award, Smith said he hoped that Davis will be a member of the all-star collegiate team which will play the Washington Redskins in the annual charity game sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field Aug. 31.

Smith's expressed hope that "Davis may have a coach under whom he has played to direct him" brought renewed cheers from the Hoosier throng.

Davis Says "Thank You."

As he received the trophy, Davis thanked his teammates for voting him the honor from Indiana, and also expressed gratitude to Smith, Arch Ward, sports editor, and other members of THE TRIBUNE staf, and to the coaches who voted him the Big Ten's most valuable. "I shall remember them and cherish this trophy forever," Davis concluded.

PURDUE SCORES 37-26 VICTORY OVER WILDCATS

Wisconsin Checks Wolverines, 39-30.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The Purdue basketball team tonight dealt Northwestern its first defeat of the Western conference campaign, 37 to 26. It was the first beating for the Wildcats in five Big Ten games.

Northwestern kept within reach of the Boilermakers until the last four minutes, when Jewell Young connected for two successive sleeper shots.

After a hard fought first half, which ended with the Boilermakers on top, 21 to 16, the early part of the second period was featured by the close defensivo play of both quintets.

Purdue Breaks Away.

With Purdue on top, 25 to 21, Johnny Sines and Jewell Young started scoring from close in and ran Purdue's advantage to 34 to 23.

Young, although guarded closely, made five field goals and six free throws for a total of 16 points to take the high scoring honors of the evening.

The Wildcats offered one of the stoutest defenses encountered by the Boilermakers so far this season until the pace finally took its toll late in the game. Nagode and Smith were the outstanding offensive performers for the visitors.

WISCONSIN WINS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Wisconsin handed Michigan its first defeat in the Big Ten basketball race tonight, 39 to 30. The Badgers took an early lead and never lost it, holding a 21 to 14 advantage at the half.

Capt. John Townsend of Michigan, who tied for second in individual scoring in the conference last year was held to a single basket and a pair of free throws, his field goal being a tipin shot near the end of the game. He was guarded by Charley Jones and Byron Bell, Wisconsin centers.

Score on Long Shots.

Unable to puncture Michigan's tight defense at the outset of the game, the Badgers began blazing away from farther out with surprising success. Their first two attempts found their mark, Hod Powell dropping one from the side of the floor and George Rooney the other from near center.

Only one of Wisconsin's ten field goals during the first half was the result of a short shot as Powell, Rooney, and Manny Frey continued to score from well down the floor.

The Gophers forged ahead in the last half after a first half in which the lead changed nine times. At the intermission the score was tied, 16 to 16.

Gophers Regain Lead.

Addington's basket and free throw and Maki's goal gave the Gophers a five point lead as the second half began. Illinois staged a rally with baskets by Dehner and Hapac and Boudreau's two free throws and took the lead at 22 to 21.

GOLDEN GLOVERS, FILE YOUR ENTRY NOW AND PROFIT

Condition Is Everything in Tournament.

Candidates for Golden Gloves championships in the four metropolitan sectionals conducted by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., can serve two purposes by filing their entries immediately instead of waiting until the deadline, midnight of Jan. 30.

By entering now you will assist the officials in completing the physical examinations and in balancing the list of competitors in the four sections. But, more important, when you have passed your physical examination you not only may choose the sectional tournament in which you wish to compete but you will have more time in which to prepare for your first bouts.

Condition Is Important.

Whether you are eligible to compete in the novice tournament, which is limited to those amateur boxers who have not had more than two or three bouts in either C. Y. O. or Golden Gloves competition, or whether you are seeking a qualifying position to represent Chicago in the Tournament of Champions, condition more than knowledge of how to hook with your left or punch with your right will determine your success.

All bouts in the sectional trials will consist of three rounds of two minutes each. Six minutes doesn't sound like a long time, but the experience soon will teach you that six minutes in the ring will seem like six hours if you have not conditioned yourself.

It is not necessary to box daily to acquire this condition. But daily exercise, bag punching, rope skipping, and a short run to strengthen your legs are important.

Boxers Allowed One Second.

All contestants will use eight ounce boxing gloves. These will be furnished by the Tribune Charities, Inc. All other equipment except trunks, shoes, sox, and supporter also will be furnished. THE TRIBUNE also will provide an experienced professional second in your corner to take care of you between rounds. You may bring one second of your own choosing if you wish.

When you report for your physical examination a ticket for the night on which you will make your first appearance will be given you. This ticket will admit your second. You will not need a ticket.

Letters to all Golden Gloves entrants who have filed their applications so far will be mailed this morning. This first group must report in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street, Friday night between 6 and 8 o'clock for examination. Each letter contains a parental consent card which your parent or guardian must sign if you are under 21 years of age. No entrant will be examined without this card.

C. Y. O. Examinations Monday.

The examination for C. Y. O. boxers will be held next Monday evening in the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, between 6 and 8 o'clock.

There is no entry fee in the Chicago sectionals. All boxers, however, must be registered with the Central association of the A. A. U. This registration can be made on the night you report for your physical examination. The A. A. U. registration fee for novice boxers will be paid by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. This permits you to compete only in the Golden Gloves tournament.

Open division boxers must obtain A. A. U. cards, which permit competition in any amateur tournament for one year. This registration, which costs $1, must be paid by the contestant.

A. A. U. DENIES 'THEFT' OF BIKE JURISDICTION

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Amateur Athletic union was accused today of "stealing amateur cycling away from the National Cycling association," and promptly retorted that it had assumed jurisdiction over the sport at the specific request of the Amateur Bicycle league.

"The National Cycling association," said a statement issued over the signature of Patrick A. Mulvey, chairman of the board of control of the N. C. A., "contends that the movement of the Amateur Athletic union to take over control of amateur cycling in the United States is an outlaw movement' and that any bicycle rider competing under their jurisdiction will be suspended from cycling all over the world.

Dan Ferris, national secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., said the A. A. U. had consented to assume jurisdiction over the sport at its recent convention in Boston only after it had been asked to do so by the Amateur Bicycle league, which for years had held a working agreement with the National Cycling association.

IOWA BEATS INDIANA

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Paced by Nile Kinnick, sophomore forward, and Jack Drees, veteran center, Iowa tonight defeated Indiana for the second time this season, 36 to 32, before 6,000 spectators.

Indiana's fast breaking attack clicked effectively in the first half which ended with the Hoosiers ahead, 20 to 19, but the Hawkeyes turned on more power after the intermission. After Van Ysseldyk's scoring dash under the basket put Iowa ahead, 33 to 32, Stephens' free throw and field goal clinched the victory for Iowa in the closing minute of play.

Drees Leads Scoring.

Drees took scoring honors with four field goals and a free throw, while Kinnick of Iowa and Birr, Indiana center, were runnersup with four baskets each.

Baskets by Birr, Andres, Huffman and Johnson gave Indiana a 9 to 2 lead in the first five minutes but the Hawkeyes slowly pulled up. Kinnick, Drees, and Van Ysseldyk shared honors in the first half comeback of the Hawkeyes. The score was tied three times in the last period at 20-20, 26-26, and 31-31.

Southtown Ice Meet First of Four in Week

Earl W. Solem, president of the Illinois Skating association, whose ice skaters, because of the abundance of ice, have not missed a Derby this winter, announced last night the busiest week of the year begins tomorrow night when the Southtown Sportsmen hold the first night meet of the season. There will be four tournaments in five days.

Following the Southtown Derby, which will be held in Tuley park, 90th street and South Park avenue, comes the first outdoor ice carnival of the winter in Garfield park, Friday night. The program will include racing, comedy acts, figure skating by the Arena skaters, demonstrations by the Chicago Blackhawks and C. Y. O. Shamrocks hocky teams and novelty events.

Park Skaters Meet.

Charles P. Mustard of Chicago park district, No. 3, has scheduled a meet Saturday afternoon in Garfield park open to all skaters of the association and boys and girls from the twelve major west side parks. The annual Olympic Skating club Derby is scheduled for Sunday afternoon in Garfield park.

These four meets will give the skaters who had bad luck in the Tribune's 21st annual Silver Skates derbies last Sunday a chance to prove their ability to beat the champions.

Bob Heckenbach, winner of the 1938 senior Silver Skates, has established himself as a major threat to Vic Ronchetti and Eddie Schroeder, both former Silver Skates winners.

Watch Those Sisters.

The Swierkos sisters, Helen and Genevieve, have shown by their efforts in the Silver Skates that they are on the road to top honors this season. Genevieve was first, but was disqualified, and Helen, who was second, won the senior women's 1938 Silver Skates title.

MINNESOTA BAN ON ICE FISHING ANGERS ANGLERS

State Tries to Keep Male, Female Balance.

BY BOB BECKER.

Northern Illinois fishermen who like to catch crappies and other fish through the ice are lucky that the Minnesota conservation department isn't regulating this sport in the state of Illinois.

The authorities in Minnesota have banned all ice fishing in that state except for rough fish, contending that the winter fishing destroys the balance between male and female fish population. The conservation department states that female fish are easily caught at this time of the year because they are active and feeding while developing spawn.

Male Fish Dormant.

The male fish, on the other hand, are more or less dormant during the winter months. As a consequence the male fish population is outnumbering the female about 10 to 1 in many waters, according to Minnesota authorities.

Game wardens' reports from all sections of Minnesota indicated that from 75 to 90 per cent of the fish caught through the ice were females.

As a result of the outlawing of ice fishing, protests were received from hundreds of winter anglers. But the conservation department overruled their protests by showing that only slightly more than one per cent of all fishermen are ice fishermen. Of the 482,383 licenses sold in the state in 1937, only 5,400 were sold in the first three months of the year, the chief winter fishing months. The conservation department felt that it would be endangering the sport of 99 per cent of the anglers by allowing that one per cent to enjoy winter fishing.

Helps Aërate Water.

Critics of the new law contended that the holes that winter fishermen make in the ice help to aërate the water. They said that to stop this activity would destroy more fish through smothering under the ice than would be saved by banning winter fishing.

J. O. Nelson, superintendent of Minnesota fish propagation, stated that such a contention was untrue. "Eminent fish culturists," he said, "hold that there is little value in chopping holes in the ice to admit air. Very little water is aërated by a one foot hole in the ice and the hole freezes over as soon as the fisherman leaves it. It takes a wind and waves to properly aërate water."

Commonwealth Edison.

Investors' Guide: I am writing you these few lines in regard to Commonwealth Edison stock. Is it considered a safe investment?—Mrs. B. H.

Answer: Commonwealth Edison company, one of the largest public utility operating organizations in the United States, supplies the entire electric light and power requirements of the city of Chicago. Population served is around 3,500,000.

In addition to serving homes, stores, and factories, Commonwealth Edison sells power to Chicago elevated and surface transit lines and to electrified divisions of the Illinois Central railroad. The complete 1936 report of the company showed the following divisions of electric revenue for the year: Sales to residential users, 33 per cent; to large light and power consumers, mostly industrial, 33½ per cent; to retail commercial users, 24½ per cent, and railways and other utilities, 9 per cent.

During 1937 a plan was virtually consummated for simplifying control of Commonwealth Edison over affiliated companies. Under the plan almost all securities of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Western United Gas and Electric company, and Illinois Northern Utilities company in the hands of the public were retired or exchanged for securities of Edison. There was no physical merger of the properties.

The plan also called for reduction in the par value of Edison stock from $100 to $25 and the splitting of the old shares into four new shares. The company has announced that it will apply for listing of its common stock on the New York Stock exchange.

Gross revenues for eleven months ended Nov. 30, 1937, were $79,578,305, against $75,446,371 in the same 1936 period. Net income for the 1937 period increased to $13,346,511, or $1.73 a share, from $9,146,318, or $1.42 a share in the 1936 period. Record of earnings in recent years:

EMPLOYERS GET TAX EXTENSION IF IT'S NEEDED

Try to Avoid Double Levy by U. S., State.

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, announced yesterday that he had been authorized to grant extensions up to sixty days in certain instances to Illinois employers on the federal unemployment compensation tax return due Jan. 31. The extension order was issued at Washigton by Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, in response to urgent requests of Illinois employers for an extension of time because of inability to meet tax payments, due to the business slump.

Carter Harrison.

The extension will be granted only to employers who apply for it and can show "full reason" for needing it. Employers who get the extension will have sixty days from Jan. 31 in which to escape the "double taxation" by state and federal governments which many have declared could not be avoided without an extension.

Provisions of Act.

Under provisions of the federal social security act, employers are entitled to a credit of 90 per cent against the federal unemployment compensation tax of 2 per cent on 1937 pay rolls if they pay the state unemployment compensation tax of 1.8 per cent in full before the federal return is due.

The deadline for filing the federal tax return is Jan. 31, and the state has ruled that its tax is due Jan. 29, so that employers may get the 90 per cent credit by paying before the federal return due date [Jan. 30 falls on a Sunday].

The Illinois department of labor, which administers the state tax, indicated yesterday that extension beyond Jan. 29 could be granted to employers whose applications to the federal bureau for extensions were granted.

No Blanket Extension.

Martin P. Durkin, director of the Illinois department of labor, emphasized that yesterday's federal order did not grant a blanket extension, but provided for extensions only on application to the collector of internal revenue. He said that he plans to confer with Commissioner Helvering in Washington Thursday about the possibility of obtaining a general extension.

Both the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers association have been trying to obtain the delay for employers. Louis A. Dumond, manager of the industrial department of the association of commerce, said that the federal order made possible some relief for employers, but declared that a blanket extension order to more employers wes needed. John Harrington, counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, also asserted that a general delay would be more desirable.

May Ask Part Payment.

Yesterday's order provided that, if an extension is granted by the federal collector here, he may require the submission of a tentative return and the payment on Jan. 31 of one fourth of the amount of the federal net tax.

The order also said that, for those employers to whom the extension was not granted, state unemployment compensation taxes paid on Jan. 31 would be considered as paid on Jan. 30, which falls on Sunday. Thus, payment of the state tax on Jan. 31 will be considered as payment before Jan. 31 for the purposes of obtaining a credit against the federal tax.

New Industries the Key to Jobs, Says Kettering

It is to the building of new industries and the development of new processes that America must look to find work for its people, Charles F. Kettering last night told the Western Railway club at the Hotel Sherman. Kettering, one of the nation's leading inventors, is president and general manager of the General Motors Research corporation and a vice president of the General Motor corporation.

Because we know so little about anything we now have, Kettering said, the field for development in the future is unlimited.

An obstacle to development, he said, is that industry tries too much to limit the cost of developing an idea from its inception to its marketing.

"I do not believe that we know how to develop a new industry," Kettering said. "If we did we would not have any unemployment.

Urges "Do New Things."

"The way to get jobs is to do new things—to do things that you have never done before. It takes many more persons to build a new industry than it does to operate an old one. If you do not keep on building you will lose employment."

Kettering cited the case of a town built opposite the Panama canal. A man asked what had become of all the people in an almost deserted town near the canal, Kettering said. He was told that after the canal was completed most of the people who built it moved away.

"It took only 25 per cent as many people to operate the canal as were necessary to build it," Kettering said. "And the same is true of every industry. We must keep finding new industries."

"Obsolescence an Economy."

"You can't run an active and prosperous country on interest and depreciation," he continued. "Obsolescence is not a dangerous thing. It is an economy. For with obsolescence we get new things the production of which creates work.

"The thing we need to do is to cast around us. There are a lot of things we understand, but it is surprising how little we actually know about them.

"Just as an example, we thought we knew something about steel. They'd tell us that we had reached the maximum in the tensile strength of steel as we stepped up the strength from 60,000 pounds to the square inch to 100,000 pounds. It is now greater than 500,000 pounds."

Kettering said it was the investigations made to try to find the reason for the knock in gasoline engines that led somewhat accidentally to the development of ethyl gasoline.

Question Still Unsolved.

"And after all our studies we still don't know what makes an engine knock," he added.

He said that the building of Diesel engines by the General Motors corporation resulted from studies made in an effort to find out more about the gasoline engine. During this research, he said, it was found that what made a gasoline engine run rough improved the performance of a Diesel and what made a Diesel engine run roughly improved the performance of a gasoline engine.

"The Diesel engine has opened an entirely new field in the development of power," Kettering said, "but whether this type of power will result in the development of an all round better railroad only time can tell."

COAL BOARD TO LET CONSUMERS' COUNSEL SEE ITS PRICE DATA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The bituminous coal commission decided today to permit its consumers' counsel to see the facts and figures on which the commission based minimum soft coal prices.

This decision was interpreted as the commission's answer to a hint from the Association of American Railroads that the carriers intended to test the legality of the prices in court.

The railroads and the consumers' counsel have asked the commission to set aside the minimum prices pending a public hearing on the price schedule.

ANOTHER SMALL GAIN PREDICTED IN STEEL OUTPUT

Another small gain in operations in the steel industry is scheduled this week, the American Iron and Steel institute reported yesterday. It placed operations at 29.8 per cent of capacity compared with 27.8 per cent a week ago.

The expected improvement is the third successive weekly gain since operations fell to a four year low of 19.2 per cent of capacity at the end of 1937.

A month ago operations were at 23.5 per cent, a year ago they were at 80.6 per cent and nearing the eight year peak reached later in 1937. Two years ago operations were at 49.9 per cent.

Steel makers attribute the current gain in activity to increased requirements of the automobile industry and to some pickup in demand for miscellaneous products.

In the Chicago district, steel operations are scheduled at 25.1 per cent of theoretical capacity. This is a gain of 7-10ths of 1 point from last week and 3.3 points during the last month.

FUTURES TRADE IN PRODUCE IS BEST SINCE 1933

Futures transactions on the Chicago Mercantile exchange in 1937 totaled 69,349 carlots, highest since 1933, Michael E. Fox, president, said yesterday in his annual report. Fox took office yesterday for his third successive term as president of the exchange.

Trading in egg and potato futures increased substantially over 1936, but butter trading declined sharply, the report showed. Turnover in eggs last year was 45,675 carlots, an increase of 28 per cent over the preceding year. Potato trading increased to 3,907 cars, 33 per cent higher than in 1936.

Butter trading amounted to 19,754 cars, compared with 27,926 in 1936. The small butter trade, Fox said, was probably due to the stable condition of butter markets in several important storing months in 1937.

Fox disclosed that the Mercantile exchange is investigating the possibility of extending its futures trading to include scrap iron, peanuts, apples, and hides.

FINAL ARGUMENT IN RAIL RATE CASE IS SET FOR JAN. 31

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Final oral argument of the rate case in which the railroads ask increases of 15 per cent was set today by the interstate commerce commission for Jan. 31. Applications for time allotment for argument must reach the commission by Jan. 27. Written briefs must be filed by Feb. 9, when the case will be submitted for decision.

Commissioner Claude Porter announced that a final hearing on the petition of the eastern rail carriers for an increase in passenger coach rates from 2 to 2½ cents per mile will be held here Thursday morning.

$10,337 Profit Made in Year by Chicago Pit

The Chicago Board of Trade had net profit of $10,337 in 1937, compared with loss of $132,730 in 1936 and loss of $138,339 in 1935, the annual report of the big Chicago grain market disclosed yesterday.

Total assets of the Board of Trade on Dec. 31, 1937, were $3,343,301. Current assets were $506,917, against current liabilities of $23,550. General fund investments totaled $2,548,100, including $2,390,000 of Chicago Board of Trade Deposit company 5 per cent real estate notes carried at book value.

Receives $387,250 in Dues.

Income in 1937 included $387,250 from annual dues, $499,368 from services and fees, and $558,155 from other sources. Operating expenses, including $525,000 in primary rent and $683,790 in all other operating expenses except additional operating rent, totaled $1,208,790.

The report of the stock list committee said the stock list department of the Board of Trade made the greatest progress in 1937, with respect to new listings, additional listings, and income, since the department was first organized.

Volume Less than in 1936.

Volume of trading in stocks for the year, however, fell below 1936 volume, due to the sharp decline in activity in the last half of the year.

The report of the weighing and custodian committee disclosed that 141,876 cars of grain were weighed during 1937, compared with 135,524 in 1936. Grain weighed to and from boats in 1937 aggregated 66,637,467 bushels, against 38,165,377 bushels in 1936. The number of grain trucks weighed in 1937 decreased to 2,157 from 5,916 in the preceding year.

The board's report was given at the annual meeting. Kenneth S. Templeton, recently reëlected president, began his new term. Taking office with him were Barnett Faroll and Orrin S. Dowse, vice presidents, and John G. McCarthy, Harvey S. Austrian, John J. Coffman, Edwin J. Kuh Jr., and George E. Booth, directors.

Report on Rules Due Soon.

Templeton told members attending the meeting that a report will be made soon by the special committee which is developing rules to govern trading at Chicago in cottonseed oil futures contracts. He also reported that another committee is considering advisability of trading in rye and soy beans in round lots of 1,000 bushels.

Members defeated by a vote of 383 to 241 a proposed amendment to the market's rules which would have barred the treasurer of the board of trade from holding any other office in the association during his term of service.

CONGRESS TOLD PROFITS TAX IS MOST FEARED

N. Y. Trade Leader Urges Repeal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—No federal tax is more feared and discredited than the undistributed profits tax, M. L. Seidman, representative of the New York Board of Trade, told the house ways and means committee today. Seidman urged the outright repeal of this tax and the capital gains tax.

The committee is conducting open hearings preliminary to drafting a bill to revise the revenue laws. It already has approved a report recommending alterations in the undistributed profits tax, but keeping it on the statute books.

"No tax has so few friends and none has placed so much fear in the heart of business," Seidman said of the surplus profits tax. "By insisting upon the retention of the principle of this tax, you are fanning the flames of those fears.

Future Danger Forecast.

"The general feeling undoubtedly is that once the principle of the tax is permitted to become permanently embedded in our tax laws, no overabundance of imagination is needed to guess into what it will ultimately grow.

"To my mind, the wisest thing you can do and the sweetest music you can send to the business ear is to say in a loud and clear voice, 'The undistributed profits tax is hereby repealed.' It has earned its execution. Let it die."

Seidman said the New York Board of Trade was on record for the complete repeal of the capital gains and loss provision.

Advantage to All.

"It believes strongly that the elimination of this tax ultimately would work out to the advantage of the taxpayer and government," he said. "Your subcommittee has a very effective analysis for the taxability of capital gains. There is much to be said on both sides of the question. At best, there are many practical difficulties to overcome in bringing about any substantial change from our present system.

"It is our recommendation, therefore, that with a view to ultimate complete elimination of the tax on capital gains and the allowance of capital loss, such gains be subject to a 12½ per cent tax and losses be limited to a 12½ per cent maximum tax saving."

The nation is not particularly worried at present about increased government spending, Seidman said, and the reason is that most taxes are indirect.

Declares Income Levy Best.

"To our way of thinking, the most direct tax and the one that is admittedly the least susceptible to being passed on to the consumer is the personal income tax," he told the committee. "We believe that greater tax consciousness on the part of our people can be brought about by a broadening of the income tax base.

"This can be accomplished by a reduction of personal exemptions and an allowance for dependents so as to reach the many millions of people who now pay indirectly what they would be required under our proposal to pay directly."

Unfair Distrust of Business Cause of Slump, Says Lamont

Thomas W. Lamont.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Scoffing at suggestions that capital had gone on a "strike," Thomas W. Lamont, a senior partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., said in an address here today that a "good part" of the present business recession is due to a "cultivated" distrust of business. He declared business had been unfairly made the scapegoat for the nation's economic ills.

Lamont, a member of the business group which conferred with President Roosevelt at the White House last week, spoke before a luncheon meeting of the University of Pennsylvania's bicentennial endowment campaign.

"Quite contrary to the views apparently held in some quarters, the entire business community has, according to my observation, made the most strenuous and determined efforts to maintain the improvement that marked 1936 and early 1937," he said. "But the obstacles in the path have been too great.

Capital Markets Limited.

"In a great country like America, if enterprise is to continue to advance, fresh capital must be made constantly available for it. Now the capital markets, the fields of private investment, are practically closed. That does not mean that there is a 'strike' of capital.

"There is just as little reason in such a phrase as there would be to say that 30,000 employés who had lost their jobs because of slack orders had gone on strike. Would it not be nearer the mark to say, not that capital was on strike, but that it had been locked out by such things as the surplus profits tax which has given warning to investors that no longer are businesses to be permitted to conserve a fair measure of their earnings for bad times; locked out by the continued unsettlement of the problems of the public utilities, the needs of which—for new capital to be expended in material and labor for improvements—are crying aloud and cannot be answeed?

Distrust Is Cultivated.

"And I cannot but believe that a good part of the current business recession arises from the bewilderment and loss of confidence among our citizens, owing to the general attitude of distrust toward business, which in the last five years has been cultivated in this country."

Lamont said that it is "not surprising" that business and finance have been subjected to violent attack for alleged abuses, many of which have never existed." He said there was a natural tendency of people, "when beset with misfortune, to turn with relief to the shouts of the false prophets."

"Business is especially vulnerable to such attack, for its normal operations, especially if on a great scale, are readily distorted by fevered imagination," he said.

Lamont agreed that some business men have been lacking in foresight, and have even been guilty of "serious lapses," but he also asserted that the government was attempting to go further in its program of regulation than mere correction of abuses.

STOCKYARDS COMPANY NAMES NEW DIRECTORS

Stockholders of the United Stockyards corporation, Chicago, which controls stockyards in various parts of the country, yesterday elected members of a board of directors which included the name of only one person which was on the old board. The holdover is W. K. Wright, president of the company.

Those elected yesterday included C. F. Topping, vice president and treasurer; J. M. Delaney, Harold L. Niles, Robert Farrell, a partner in the Chicago law firm of Chapman & Cutler; Rowley W. Phillips, chairman of the board of the R. F. Griggs company, investment bankers, Waterbury, Conn., and Nittert Aalfs, Sioux City, Ia., capitalist.

MOST HOLDERS OF STOCKS OWN SMALL AMOUNTS

Survey Shows 86 Pct. Have 100 or Less.

A survey of 110 leading industrial corporations by the American Federation of Investors, Inc., discloses that more than 86 per cent of the stockholders of record during 1937 in these companies owned not more than 100 shares of stock each, the federation announced yesterday.

Hugh S. Magill.

Of the total of 4,149,666 stocholders the number of individuals holding lots of 100 shares or less was 3,572,620. The same 110 corporations were shown to have employed an average of 2,454,135 workers during 1037.

Millions Are Affected.

"Regardless of the proportionate value of the aggregate holdings of this vast majority of small stockholders," the report said, "the fact is forcibly brought out that anything that unfavorably affects business reacts directly on millions of industrious, self-supporting citizens whose savings help to make possible the development of industry and the employment of millions of workers."

Making allowance for the fact that some of the 3,572,620 small investors may own stock in several different corporations in the list, the federation estimated the actual number of different individuals owning stock in these companies was approximately 3,000,000. Even at this figure, the number of investors greatly exceeds the number of employés.

Pay Rolls Above 4 Billions.

"Aggregate pay rolls of the 110 companies last year exceeded four billion dollars, which was five hundred millions more than was paid during 1936," the report said. "The Baltimore, Md., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, announced today his company has a $17,500,000 backlog of unfilled orders, the largest in the company's history. He said this reflected "the progress already made in the company's program of expansion, advanced technical development and increased production."

"The company is entering a period of growth in the production of advanced types of aircraft for the world market," he said.

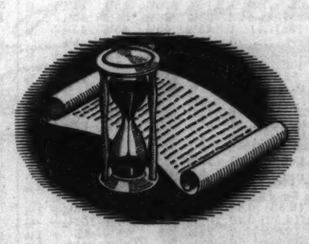
Hiawatha Train Carries 46,206 More Passengers

An increase of 46,206 in the number of revenue passengers carried last year by the streamlined Hiawatha train between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul was reported yesterday by the Milwaukee railroad. The total for the year was 336,116, compared with 289,910 in 1936. Northbound the train carried 165,602 passengers in 1937 as against 144,071 in 1936. The southbound trafic totaled 170,514 against 145,839.

Beware the dangers of an outmoded will



A SENSE OF security rightly arises upon the signing of a Will. But too often that very feeling can make one forget that the effectiveness of such a document can alter amazingly with shifting property values and changing tax laws.

Take this hypothetical case. A Will is filed for probate which was executed in 1929. At that time the estate in question totalled $1,000,000. In the Will are several substantial outright bequests outside the family, amounting to $325,000. The remainder of the estate is left to two daughters.

Unfortunately, since 1929 diminishing security values and rising taxes have reduced the net estate to only $375,000. As a result, the daughters receive but $50,000, which obviously was not the estate owner's intent.

Your Will, properly to express your present wishes, should be reviewed regularly with your attorney—preferably once a year. And in such a periodic review you and your attorney are urged to take advantage of The Northern Trust Company's 48 years of experience in acting as executor and trustee for a large number of important estates.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Paced by public utility issues, leading stocks underwent declines ranging from fractions to 2 points on the stock exchange today. A few specialties and preferred issues lost as much as 4 points.

Shares in this division were heavy from the start. Virtually all common utility shares participated in the decline, with losses of half to 1 point appearing against several favorites, including Consolidated Edison, Electric Power and Light, American Water Works, Columbia Gas and Electric, United corporation, and Standard Gas and Electric. Commonwealth and Southern was active and dropped ¼ point.

Among the preferred issues, Electric Power and Light 6s and 7s and Standard Gas and Electric 6s and 7s dropped 2 to 4 points. As a result, the Dow-Jones average for twenty representative utility issues lost 0.80 to 20.95.

Industrial issues churned about indecisively for most of the session, although steels and aviations displayed a firm tendency in early trading. However, steels were put to pressure in the afternoon and closed with losses ranging from fractions to more than a point. United States Steel common and Bethlehem, both off 1⅜, and Republic, down ⅝ were active.

Aviation issues also weakened in late trading but declines were moderate in most cases.

Rails were depressed throughout, reputedly influenced by the appearance of income statements for November and the Erie default on an equipment trust issue.

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Rail and utility liens were depressed by a late selling movement in the bond market today. Some secondary ratings of both groups declined fractions to about 3 points. In the low yield corporate division price changes were mixed. Japanese bonds declined.

United States government issues pushed up to new high levels for the current movement. Closing gains ranged to 15-32ds of a point. There were two or three minor losses in the treasury list.

Weakness in the rails was attributed to offerings dislodged by the recent sharp declines in various junior liens. Southern Railway 4s closed at 40¼, off 3; Southern Pacific 4½s, 1981, at 59, off 2; Baltimore and Ohio, 4½s at 25½, off 2½, and Erie Refunding 5s, 1975, at 19½, off 1¼.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks were uneven yesterday in quiet trading, but leaders closed down. The volume was 21,000 shares, compared with 24,000 on Friday. Of the seventy-nine issues traded, twenty advanced, twenty-four declined and thirty-five were unchanged. The Tribune average of twenty stocks closed at 10.89, compared with 11.09 on Saturday.

Commonwealth Edison dipped ⅝ to 26⅛, Middle West ⅝ to 5⅜, and Marshall Field ⅛ at 9⅜. General Household was unchanged at 2¾, and Adams Oil and Gas moved up ⅛ to 6⅞.

Everyday Economics

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Split Quotations.

When the grain futures market is active simultaneous trades in the same contract frequently are made at different prices. In such instances both figures are quoted and this is called a split quotation. May wheat, for example, may be quoted 90½ to 90¼ cents a bushel.

In an active market traders in one section of the pit often do not know the bid and offer prices in another section. As a result, prices within the pit may differ, although the range is usually narrow. A wide range may exist when a grain is offered at a certain price and immediately sold. The next best offer at that time may be 1 cent higher, and if some broker has an order to buy at the market he must pay the higher price.

The arrangement of the figures in a split quotation is of no consequence. The quotation may read 90½ to 90¼ or 90¼ to 90½, depending on which trade the pit reporter records first.

Ross Kidnap-Slayer Is Captured in Los Angeles by G-Men—Also Confesses Killing Companion in Crime

KIDNAP KILLER—Peter Anders, who was captured by G-men last Friday, also confessed that he had killed his associate in the kidnaping, James Atwood Gray. Anders is a former logger, having worked near Spokane, Wash. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

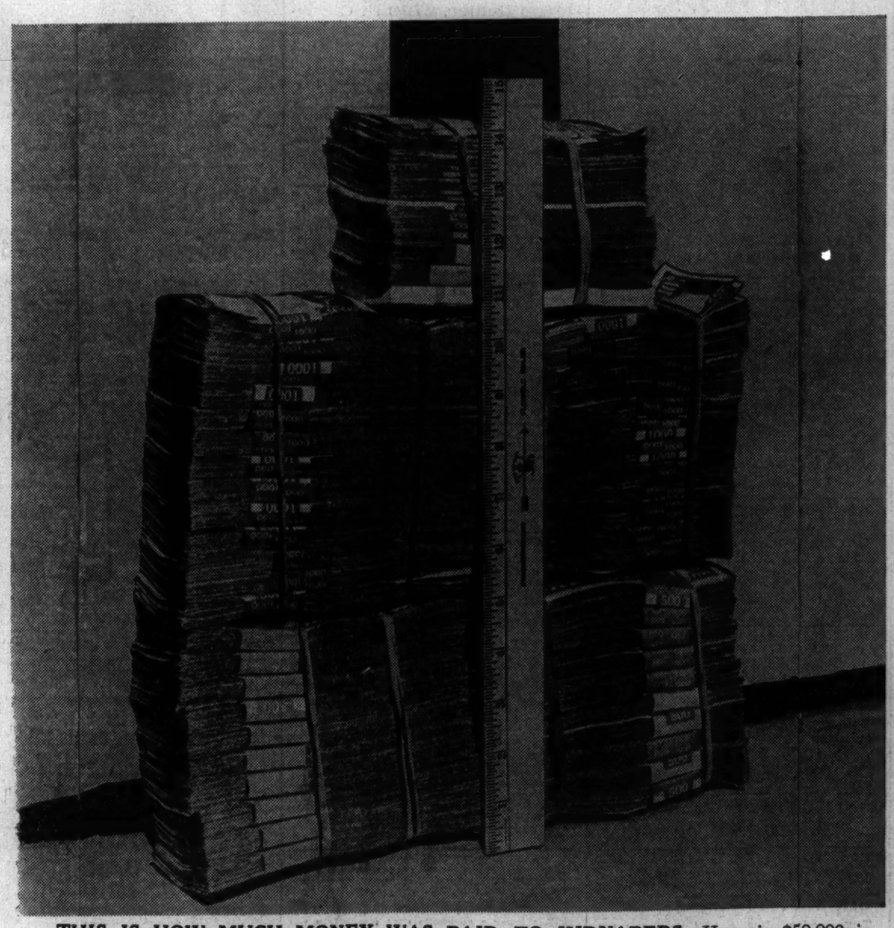
SCENE OF KIDNAPING—Looking south in Wolf road between Grand and North avenues, where Ross' car, in which he was driving north with secretary, was stopped at side of road. The kidnapers forced him into their car. [TRIBUNE Photo.]



THIS IS HOW MUCH MONEY WAS PAID TO KIDNAPERS—Here is $50,000 in bills, amount paid near Rockford. There were 750 twenty dollar bills, 2,500 ten dollar bills, and 2,000 five dollar bills. G-men said $14,402 was recovered. [TRIBUNE Photo.]
